No Space Pilots in Air Crash

17 Persons Die In Kenya Mishap

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. transport plane crashed today in Kenya on a mission connected with Project Mercury space flights, and the Air Force said first reports indicated all 17 persons aboard were killed.

The wreckage of the C130 was found on a mountain near Nairobi, to which the aircraft was en route.

It apparently burned on impact, the Air Force said.

Two helicopters from Nairobi had reached the scene.

The Air Force said that normally a C130 carries a crew of four. This would indicate the others were passengers.

No names were available immediately and the Air Force knew only that the flight was in connection with the forthcoming manned satellite flight.

None of the seven Mercury astronauts could have been aboard, however. In addition to Carpenter, Walter M. Schirra Jr., John H. Glenn Jr., and Virgil I Grissom are at Cape Canaveral where they have been assigned duties to perform during the orbital flight.

Salinger Winds Up Soviet Tour

MOSCOW (AP) —White House press secretary Pierre Salinger today wound up a swing around the Soviet Union during which he collected Premier Khrushchev's views on crucial issues.

"We disagreed amiably," Salinger said when asked how the Russians responded to his plugging of American-style freedom of the press. But, he added, the talks were the most useful part of his trip except for two lengthy conversations with Khrushchev.

Salinger had hoped to make arrangements for an exchange of television interviews between President Kennedy and Khrushchev. However, he admitted over coffee at Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson's residence nothing much has come of this idea.

He arrived on the overnight train from Kiev and met with reporters before going on to inspect Moscow's television facilities and attend a Foreign Ministry luncheon.

Summing up what he told his Soviet hosts—who were led by Alexei Adzhubei, editor of the government paper Izvestia and son-in-law of Khrushchev, Salinger said:

"I favor as many Soviet correspondents coming to our country as possible and as many American correspondents as possible coming here. The more that come and go from both sides, the better for understanding between the Soviet Union and the United States."

ARNOLD P. SABLE

Director of City Library Resigns

The Board of Trustees of the Kingston City Library has announced that Arnold P. Sable, director of the library, has submitted his resignation from that position to take effect June 30.

Sable, director of the library here since February, 1960, will take up new duties on July 2 as director of the Adriance Memorial Library, the public Library of Poughkeepsie.

A graduate of Simmons School of Library Science with a master's degree in library science, Sable has been appointed as the Adriance Memorial Library's first professional library director.

Sable resided in France for two years, where he studied at the Sorbonne and taught English. He was reference librarian at the Hartford, Conn. Public Library from 1956 to 1958. Prior to coming to Kingston, he served as assistant director of the Jervis Library, Rome, N. Y.

Marines Are Rushed To Laotion Border

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — U.S. Marines, carrying a bristling array of bazookas and other arms, moved up to Thailand's border with Communist-weakened Laos today.

A task force of 1,800 Leathernecks in brown-green-blue jungle uniforms came ashore from U.S. 7th Fleet warships at Bangkok with rifles, grenade launchers, machine guns and bazookas and were greeted by the cheering Thai crowds.

Thailand's government had invited American forces to help defend the border which was threatened by a Communist offensive in Laos last week.

The first Marines were flown immediately in huge Hercules transports to a point about 40 miles southeast of the Laos capital of Vientiane—a flat area that is hot and dusty in summer and wet and muddy in winter.

American forces were expected to be strung out in a 500-mile arc along the Mekong River border from the Vientiane area to the southern extremity of Laos.

The nearest tip of the arc is more than 200 miles southeast of Houei Sai, where the Communist offensive in northwest Laos threatened Thailand's frontier.

No Contact Threat

The Americans' position was designed to carry no threat of immediate contact with pro-Communist Pathet Lao forces, but would make it possible to back up the royal government at Vientiane if the Communists continued their drive to seize the administrative capital.

The U.S. combat command in Thailand seemed likely to be bolstered soon by units from other members of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan announced plans to send Royal Air Force fighter units to Thailand if requested. Australia and New Zealand also were reportedly ready to send token forces.

An uneasy quiet prevailed in adjoining Laos—potential flashpoint

Workers Return To Waldorf Jobs, Waiters to Join

Striking waiters at the plush Park Avenue hostelry were expected to follow suit shortly.

There was no immediate report concerning others who joined in the work stoppage—chefs, chambermaids and dishwashers.

Tips' Dispute Did It

The wildcat strike halted service in the hotel's public dining rooms and forced guests to tote their own luggage. It also reduced table fare to such items as cold cheese and tuna sandwiches for private gatherings.

Hotel accountants, secretaries, pitched in to keep essential services going.

A waiters' dispute over tips touched off the hotel's troubles last Sunday.

The hotel termed the strike illegal. Union officials called it unauthorized and sought to encourage the men to return

Sees Return to Normal

"I am confident that before the day is out service at the Waldorf-Astoria will be returned to normal," said City Labor Commissioner Harold A. Felix.

To Take 50 Tons Daily to Supply Thailand Force

WASHINGTON (AP)—The 5,000-man U.S. military task force building up in Thailand will use about 50 tons of supplies a day, even if there is no combat.

If action should start against Communist forces across the Thai border in Laos, the tonnage could double with ammunition expenditure and increased consumption of automotive and aircraft fuel.

The jungle and plateau country in which the Army battle group, the Marine battalion and the air units are taking up positions is out at the far end of a 9,000-mile long supply line from the U.S. mainland.

An Army spokesman said today that U.S. Army troops and Marine forces in Thailand will draw supplies from Army stocks in the Pacific area.

The Army Transportation Corps arranges shipment through both the Military Sea Transport Service and the Military Air Transport System.

Parking Action Praised As Progressive for City

The Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce expressed pleasure and appreciation for the action taken by the Kingston Common Council Wednesday night aimed to lead to the construction of parking facilities in the uptown business district.

The proposed parking lots the Chamber spokesman stated should only be the first of a series of parking facilities developed where studies indicate they are needed to help maintain the tax paying ability of commercial properties.

It was pointed out that all business districts in cities and villages, planned and constructed before the day of automobiles, are faced with the same problem. "If parking and free traffic movement is not provided," the spokesman continued, "the business establishments will eventually move to any location where these basic requirements of today are available. The loss of property valuations caused by any such move of major proportions caused a shift in the tax burden to residential and other tax paying properties. That's why the need for parking is a community problem," the Chamber spokesman concluded, "and not one concerning merchants only."

Weather Doubtful, Astro Still 'Go'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —Atlantic weather conditions were far from desirable today, but Project Mercury officials pushed ahead with plans to launch astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter into orbit on Saturday in his Aurora 7 craft.

Carpenter's physical and mental outlook was reported bright as his big day neared.

Could Clear by Saturday

Causing the greatest concern was a weather system in the central and eastern Atlantic which was creating 11-foot high swells in an area near the Canary Islands where Carpenter's craft would land if the mission were aborted shortly after launching.

This weather condition was reported weakening and could clear by Saturday.

Heavy swells were reported extending from Florida to Bermuda.

Cloudy weather prevailed today in the area 500 miles east of Bermuda where Carpenter's capsule would land if the flight were terminated after one orbit. Continuation of this condition through Saturday would make observation of his parachute re-entry difficult.

Turk Conditions Good

Partly cloudy skies were reported over the second orbit recovery zone 50 miles south of Bermuda, while weather was reported good in the third orbit drop zone near Grand Turk Island, 800 miles southeast of Cape Canaveral.

Meanwhile, Dr. William Douglas said Carpenter, 37, and his backup pilot, Cmdr. Walter M. Schirra Jr., are in top physical condition.

Dress Rehearsal Today

The 5-foot-10 ½, 155-pound Carpenter, who worked as a hod carrier shortly before returning to the Navy 12 years ago, has always excelled in physical activity.

A final dress rehearsal of the flight, which will follow Glenn's flight plan, was on schedule today with Carpenter in the Aurora 7 for a simulated flight from liftoff to recovery.

Bargaining Not For Debate, Says Hercules Manager

D. C. Parker, manager of Hercules Powder Company's plant at Port Ewen said today the company could not publicly debate the issues involved in the current strike at Hercules' plant.

In early broadcasts this morning, Station WGHQ said it had offered time for a debate, that Local 13226, District 50, United Mine Workers of America had accepted, but that the company had not responded.

Parker Gives View

"We believe this would be an invasion of the collective bargaining process," Manager Parker said.

"The law and custom establishes the collective bargaining process as a means of bringing management and labor together to jointly and privately determine the contract under which union members will work.

"It is inconsistent with this process to publicly argue about the working conditions under a labor contract. This is borne out by the fact that with almost no exception has any such debate ever been conducted."

He said again that the company had made many offers to continue negotiations while the plant was operating under an extension of the old contract.

Vote 10-3 On Project For Uptown

Properties Listed Along With Prices

A bond sum of $495,000 contingent upon federal approval as an urban renewal project was approved for off-street parking uptown at a Wednesday night recessed. Common Council session by a 10-3 vote, after more than a year of study and wrangling involving consideration of several plans.

Development of two North Front Street sites involving purchase of properties on both sides of the street is planned at an estimated cost of $380,000 for acquisition of real estate and $115,000 for construction, not due to start until after federal approval which is expected by early summer.

Both approving and dissenting Democratic aldermen were critical of the Republican administration's handling of the parking problem while Republicans held that after a prolonged succession of delays, in the words of First Ward Alderman Edward J. Schrowang it was "time for action."

Three Dissenters

Alderman Donald M. Hastings (D) Third Ward, chairman of the off-street parking committee; Joseph Tomaszewski (D) Sixth Ward, and William G. Davis (D-L) 13th Ward voted against the measure.

Longest in declaiming action on parking by minority party members, was one Democratic alderman who voted for the project, Frank A. Adams, Fifth Ward, and in reading his comment held: "We are in the last minute of decision because of the Republicans and their mayor," and he asked several times, Why were we deceived by Mayor Schwenk?"

Notes Extensive Study

Frank C. Sass (D) Seventh Ward, majority party leader, and chairman of the Common Council's urban renewal committee, emphasized the urgency of the project, plus the study given it, that it would be on a self-liquidating basis to the extent of 70 to 80 per cent and is expected to qualify for urban renewal aid. Some 14 or 15 plans had been "looked at and discussed," he said before it was decided to accept the two on North Front Street.

The plans, as approved, were designated as 3-A and 6 by Brinnier & Larios, architects.

Erie Jury Indicts Six, Expense Padding Charged

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — An Erie County grand jury, investigating alleged expense account padding, has indicted six construction officials remployed by the State Department of Public Works. One of them is the nephew of a congressman.

The district attorney's staff declined to discuss the case details and did not reveal figures for the total amount involved.

The sealed indictments were handed up Monday, but the names and charges were not revealed until Wednesday. The six pleaded innocent at their arraignment.

Clifford F. Bishop, 40, of Attica, an assistant construction engineer, charged with conspiracy, second-degree forgery, submitting false vouchers and petty larceny.

John E. Ostertag, 35, of Attica, an assistant construction engineer, charged with conspiracy, submitting false vouchers, second-degree forgery and petty larceny. He is a nephew of Rep. Harold C. Ostertag (R-NY).

Ellsworth L. Putnam, 42, of Attica, an assistant superintendent construction engineer, charged with conspiracy, submitting false vouchers and petty larceny.

Leon E. Hoyt, 64, of Batavia, a senior superintendent of construction, charged with conspiracy, submitting false vouchers and petty larceny.

In Albany, the State Public Works Department said Bishop, Ostertag and Putnam had been suspended and that departmental charges against them were pending. A spokesman there said the department would study the charges against the other three before determining if any action would be taken in their cases.

Rockefeller Defends Self in Cases Of Tuition, Taking Land for Roads

CORTLAND, N.Y. (AP)—Gov. Rockefeller angrily defended himself as a public official with "the guts to do what I believe is right" as an expected routine visit to this quiet collegiate community erupted into a night of controversy.

The governor, here to address a meeting of the Cortland County Chamber of Commerce, became involved Wednesday night in two sharp debates—one over whether there should be tuition in all Schools of the State University, the other over state policies in appropriating property to make way for highways.

Rockefeller turned today to a possible new battleground in the tuition controversy, the State University College at Geneseo.

Students at State University colleges across the state have been growing increasingly vocal in opposition to tuition at colleges now free.

The Board of Trustees of the State University will decide, probably this year, on whether to impose tuition.

From Geneso, Rockefeller's schedule took him to Rochester for a speech to a senior citizen's group and another to a convention of the state division of the American Association of University Women.

The tuition issue erupted when the governor met with 25 student leaders of the State University College at Cortland. Louis Gilmore 27, of Mahopac, president of the class of 1963, complained that students had been unable to obtain a clear-cut answer from state officials on the tution question.

Gilmore read to the governor a dissertation on courage in public life and said the author was Democratic President John F. Kennedy. Rockefeller flared:

"If you are implying that I haven't got courage, I will say to you that I resent it...If I lacked courage, I'd soft-soap you on tuition and tell you that you would not have tuition."

But, the Republican governor said, the tuition question will be decided by the trustees, and "I will back them fully" in whatever decision they make.

Rockefeller went from the meeting with student leaders to the Chamber of Commerce dinner, where he gave a routine speech in the sweltering heat of a college dining hall.

When he finished, he went out of the building and confronted approximately 50 Syracuse residents who had waited to complain that the state was offering them insufficient settlements for property being taken to provide a right-of-way for the North-South Expressway.

The citizens group demanded the appointment of a state commission to investigate current methods by which the state determined the amount of payment for property it had condemned.

As the discussion ranged over many individual problems, the governor insisted that present procedures for settling claims were adequate.

Earlier in the day, Rockefeller had commented at a news conference on various issues, including these:

Taxes—His pledge to hold the line on tax increases includes a guarantee that tax credits will not be reduced or eliminated.

In the argument over tuition, Rockefeller told Gilmore that he had rejected proposals for a state bonus to Korean veterans and had sponsored a program of tax increases.

"Don't talk to me about guts and talk about courage until you have done something like that," Rockefeller declared.

Marines Are Rushed To Laotion Border

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — U.S. Marines, carrying a bristling array of bazookas and other arms, moved up to Thailand's border with Communist-weakened Laos today.

A task force of 1,800 Leathernecks in brown-green-blue jungle uniforms came ashore from U.S. 7th Fleet warships at Bangkok with rifles, grenade launchers, machine guns and bazookas and were greeted by the cheering Thai crowds.

Thailand's government had invited American forces to help defend the border which was threatened by a Communist offensive in Laos last week.

The first Marines were flown immediately in huge Hercules transports to a point about 40 miles southeast of the Laos capital of Vientiane—a flat area that is hot and dusty in summer and wet and muddy in winter.

American forces were expected to be strung out in a 500-mile arc along the Mekong River border from the Vientiane area to the southern extremity of Laos.

The nearest tip of the arc is more than 200 miles southeast of Houei Sai, where the Communist offensive in northwest Laos threatened Thailand's frontier.

Striking waiters at the plush Park Avenue hostelry were expected to follow suit shortly.

There was no immediate report concerning others who joined in the work stoppage—chefs, chambermaids and dishwashers.

Tips' Dispute Did It

The wildcat strike halted service in the hotel's public dining rooms and forced guests to tote their own luggage. It also reduced table fare to such items as cold cheese and tuna sandwiches for private gatherings.

Hotel accountants, secretaries, pitched in to keep essential services going.

A waiters' dispute over tips touched off the hotel's troubles last Sunday.

The hotel termed the strike illegal. Union officials called it unauthorized and sought to encourage the men to return

Sees Return to Normal

"I am confident that before the day is out service at the Waldorf-Astoria will be returned to normal," said City Labor Commissioner Harold A. Felix.

To Take 50 Tons Daily to Supply Thailand Force

WASHINGTON (AP)—The 5,000-man U.S. military task force building up in Thailand will use about 50 tons of supplies a day, even if there is no combat.

If action should start against Communist forces across the Thai border in Laos, the tonnage could double with ammunition expenditure and increased consumption of automotive and aircraft fuel.

The jungle and plateau country in which the Army battle group, the Marine battalion and the air units are taking up positions is out at the far end of a 9,000-mile long supply line from the U.S. mainland.

An Army spokesman said today that U.S. Army troops and Marine forces in Thailand will draw supplies from Army stocks in the Pacific area.

The Army Transportation Corps arranges shipment through both the Military Sea Transport Service and the Military Air Transport System.

Erie Jury Indicts Six, Expense Padding Charged

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — An Erie County grand jury, investigating alleged expense account padding, has indicted six construction officials remployed by the State Department of Public Works. One of them is the nephew of a congressman.

The district attorney's staff declined to discuss the case details and did not reveal figures for the total amount involved.

The sealed indictments were handed up Monday, but the names and charges were not revealed until Wednesday. The six pleaded innocent at their arraignment.

Clifford F. Bishop, 40, of Attica, an assistant construction engineer, charged with conspiracy, second-degree forgery, submitting false vouchers and petty larceny.

John E. Ostertag, 35, of Attica, an assistant construction engineer, charged with conspiracy, submitting false vouchers, second-degree forgery and petty larceny. He is a nephew of Rep. Harold C. Ostertag (R-NY).

Ellsworth L. Putnam, 42, of Attica, an assistant superintendent construction engineer, charged with conspiracy, submitting false vouchers and petty larceny.

Leon E. Hoyt, 64, of Batavia, a senior superintendent of construction, charged with conspiracy, submitting false vouchers and petty larceny.

In Albany, the State Public Works Department said Bishop, Ostertag and Putnam had been suspended and that departmental charges against them were pending. A spokesman there said the department would study the charges against the other three before determining if any action would be taken in their cases.

Rockefeller Defends Self in Cases Of Tuition, Taking Land for Roads

CORTLAND, N.Y. (AP)—Gov. Rockefeller angrily defended himself as a public official with "the guts to do what I believe is right" as an expected routine visit to this quiet collegiate community erupted into a night of controversy.

The governor, here to address a meeting of the Cortland County Chamber of Commerce, became involved Wednesday night in two sharp debates—one over whether there should be tuition in all Schools of the State University, the other over state policies in appropriating property to make way for highways.

Rockefeller turned today to a possible new battleground in the tuition controversy, the State University College at Geneseo.

Students at State University colleges across the state have been growing increasingly vocal in opposition to tuition at colleges now free.

The Board of Trustees of the State University will decide, probably this year, on whether to impose tuition.

From Geneso, Rockefeller's schedule took him to Rochester for a speech to a senior citizen's group and another to a convention of the state division of the American Association of University Women.

The tuition issue erupted when the governor met with 25 student leaders of the State University College at Cortland. Louis Gilmore 27, of Mahopac, president of the class of 1963, complained that students had been unable to obtain a clear-cut answer from state officials on the tution question.

Gilmore read to the governor a dissertation on courage in public life and said the author was Democratic President John F. Kennedy. Rockefeller flared:

"If you are implying that I haven't got courage, I will say to you that I resent it...If I lacked courage, I'd soft-soap you on tuition and tell you that you would not have tuition."

But, the Republican governor said, the tuition question will be decided by the trustees, and "I will back them fully" in whatever decision they make.

Rockefeller went from the meeting with student leaders to the Chamber of Commerce dinner, where he gave a routine speech in the sweltering heat of a college dining hall.

When he finished, he went out of the building and confronted approximately 50 Syracuse residents who had waited to complain that the state was offering them insufficient settlements for property being taken to provide a right-of-way for the North-South Expressway.

The citizens group demanded the appointment of a state commission to investigate current methods by which the state determined the amount of payment for property it had condemned.

As the discussion ranged over many individual problems, the governor insisted that present procedures for settling claims were adequate.

Earlier in the day, Rockefeller had commented at a news conference on various issues, including these:

Taxes—His pledge to hold the line on tax increases includes a guarantee that tax credits will not be reduced or eliminated.

In the argument over tuition, Rockefeller told Gilmore that he had rejected proposals for a state bonus to Korean veterans and had sponsored a program of tax increases.

"Don't talk to me about guts and talk about courage until you have done something like that," Rockefeller declared.

Sales Tax Out For Ogdensburg

OGDENSBURG, N. Y. (AP)—The city council in this Northern New York community has rejected a proposed sales tax that would have been effective Aug. 1. Another proposal for a sales tax effective Jan. 1 was tabled.

The second action Wednesday night meant that the issue was still alive and could be brought up for reconsideration.

The council's vote killing the sales tax effective Aug. 1 was 5-3.

A council spokesman said the proposed sales tax with a Jan. 1 effective date was kept alive as a defensive measure in case the St. Lawrence County Board of Supervisors decided to impose a county sales tax.

The board, however, has denied it plans a sales tax.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—Trouble seems to be dogging Sgt. William Reamer, a 31-year-old airman, but good fortune has held the upper hand.

Following his rescue Wednesday he said it was "the second time this week my life has been spared."

Mrs. Natalie M. Straub of 14 Washburn Terrace, Saugerties, and Douglas J. Hunt of Lamontville have been awarded full scholarships to American Red Cross National Aquatic Schools of their choice, it was announced today by Gerhard Klemm, Wate. Safety Chairman of the Ulster County Red Cross Chapter.

Mrs. Straub is married to William Straub, owner of Bill Straub's Day Camp, Saugerties. She graduated from Cornell University, class of 1950 with a BS degree in Home Economics. She is employed as associate agent for the Greene County 4-H Club.

Mrs. Straub will attend Aquatic School Camp Lutherlyn, Prospect, Pa., June 12-22, and upon completion plans teaching programs of swimming, lifesaving and canoeing in Saugerties and for the 4-H Camp

Mr. Hunt, son of Lansing and Charlotte Hunt, is a student at the State University of Education, New Paltz, where he is majoring in Mathematics. He is a member of the Players Group, and President of the Outing Club at the University.

Mr. Hunt will attend Gardner Lake Camp Aquatic School at Colchester Conn., June 13-23, and upon completion will be appointed by the Jewish Community Center, Kingston as Pool Director and Swimming Instructor at Camp JCC.

The Aquatic Schools, held at established summer camps before or after the regular camping season, are two of the 26 ten-day training sessions sponsored by the Red Cross throughout the United States.

Since the schools began in 1922, total enrollment, including 1962, has reached nearly 80,000. Their purpose is to increase the number of qualified instructors in swimming, lifesaving, boat safety and first aid. It is hoped that students will participate in Red Cross chapter safety programs and serve as swimming and water-front directors at summer camps, beaches and pools.

In each Red Cross geographic area at least one school will be devoted especially to boat safety in recognition of the fact that boating in recent years has become the nation's largest and most popular family participation sport.

The facilities for these famed schools are made up of volunteers who are experts in their various fields: School and college coaches, well-known athletes, and trained Red Cross staff members.

TV SATELLITE CONTROL

It is common knowledge that television, unlike radio, depends on "line of sight" broadcasting. That is what makes the projected communications satellites of such importance. With several of them in high orbit, television signals to and from any point on the globe will become possible.

The other day, technicians succeeded in transmitting television pictures from California to Massachusetts, a distance of 2,700 miles, by bouncing them off the Echo I satellite balloon orbiting about 1,000 miles high. The feat was a foretaste of the time when a satellite network will relay TV broadcasts everywhere on earth.

The techniques, in short, are being worked out; soon they will be good enough to go into action. The question before Congress and the public is that of who shall be given the right to operate and control the communications satellite network.

The question is essentially whether ownership and control of the system should be public or private, but it is far more complicated than this simple statement might lead one to suppose. A number of bills have been introduced. Most of them, including a compromise measure reportedly satisfactory to the administration, would tend to place control mainly in the hands of private interests—which means, for practical purposes, the dominant American Telephone & Telegraph Company.

Not everyone in Congress goes along with that idea. Two bills would set up a public corporation which would rent the satellite and ground stations to users, but which would keep in public hands the important matter of cooperation with foreign governments in accordance with the dictates of our foreign policy. The issue, then, is not merely the old one of public versus private ownership. The enormous public investment in research and development should not lightly be given away.

THE HARVEST YEARS

Anyone retired or planning to retire at age 65 or younger should take a leaf from the book of Lawrence Henry Gipson, who has just won the Pulitzer prize in American history at the age of 80.

He is a little man physically, frail, stooped, balding and bespectacled for 50 years, looking older than he was then, and now looking younger than he is.

He had an intense, penetrating glance that won him the nickname of "Needle Eye" Gipson from his thousands of history students at the University of Idaho from 1911 to 1917, Wabash College from 1918 to 1924, and Lehigh University, 1924 to 1946.

A Rhodes scholar after graduation from Idaho, he earned a flock of degrees and a whole mantle of prizes, now topped by the Pulitzer.

"Needle Eye" Gipson "retired" from active teaching at age 67 to do research work, and finish the 10-volume history of "The British Empire Before the American Revolution" which he had begun in his spare time in 1927.

Most of his students and associates thought he would never live to finish it. When Volume Six won Columbia's Loubat prize when he was 69, his friends were pleased he was getting recognition while he was still alive.

"Needle Eye" fooled them all. He finished Volume Ten, wrote a couple of other books, and found time to return to England and teach at Oxford in 1951-52.

His achievements offer something of an example for all those who retire and, like bumps on logs, sit around doing nothing, waiting for tomorrow.

GUARD CUT UNLIKELY

It would seem to be axiomatic that the Department of Defense should wield undisputed authority in all matters pertaining to the number and disposition of the armed forces. Axiomatic or not, this concept runs into a stone wall when curtailment of National Guard strength is proposed.

The present administration, like its predecessors, is finding this out the hard way. It has only a small chance of bringing about the projected cut of 33,000 in the 400,000-man strength of the National Guard. The chief opposition rises from the governors, who want to hang onto as much National Guard strength as possible. And the governors are able to marshal tremendous support for their views in Congress.

Arguments for the proposed manpower reduction are persuasive. The cut would give the guard better equipment and more intensive training, thus keeping it at a higher state of readiness. But the governors, for their own reasons, say no. They appear likely to have their way about it.

THE STOCK MARKET

Nearly 16,000,000 Americans own the industrial, commercial and service out-put of the United States. There is undoubtedly some duplication in this figure, but that hardly affects the problem. Some of these Americans are institutions such as colleges and universities or mutual funds that have invested their funds in these industries and therefore the number affected is larger indirectly.

It is ridivulous for the new-fangled economists to say that there is no relation between th stock market and the economy. When the market tumbles, the immediate effect is lack of confidence. So-called market people become liquid, that is, they sell their stocks and bonds and hold on to their cash, hoping to recoup by buying at lower prices. The rebound may be very slow. Those who buy on margin get telephone calls, asking them to cover and if they cannot, their losses may be so great that their private economic situation becomes hopeless. The very rich recoup more quickly by buying preferred European securities, or by purchasing real estate under certain circumstances, or jewels or works of art. Those who are not well off cannot do that. They must take their loss and suffer.

What is a share worth? There are as many opinions as there are buyers and sellers. Certainly no share of stock is worth 100 times the earnings of the company and those who purchase such a stock are speculators. An investor who buys in the hope that the enterprise will grow is on sounder ground or one who buys a stock that sells at about 10 times the earnings of a company is on less uncertain ground.

But when the buyer loses his money, there are no excuses that can be made to him. He translates his misfortune into an opposition to those who caused a general loss of confidence. And loss of confidence is the only reason why there is a general fall of stock prices. There is either loss of confidence in the economy, in the Administration or in international relations.

I have now asked over 100 persons, some of them economic majors, if they knew Gresham's Law. The answer for those under 30 is generally that they never heard of it. The significance of the reply is not that they do not know that bad money drives out good money; it is rather that they do not have a "feel" for money such as a small dealer must have if he is not to go out of business.

Money is a curious catalyst. Fed on confidence, it grows and makes everything about it grow; not fed on confidence, it becomes like an acid which makes everything about it shrivel. The miser, for instance, lacks confidence in the catalytic powers of money and therefore does nothing with it. He holds on to it.

Some believe that the cause of the present loss of confidence started when the President quarrelled with the United States Steel Corporation. That is not so. It started much earlier, as a study of stick prices will show.

The method of collecting the income tax has become so brutal that men are discouraged by the invasion of their private lives and the unbelievable amount of time consumed in answering wasteful and often stupid questionnaires. Because there are a comparatively small number of thieves who cheat, everybody has to be penalized by an indecent withholding tax which is a sign that a democratic government does not trust its own citizens to be truthful.

The American people are an honest people. Generally speaking, they do not cheat. They did not cheat before the withholding tax was instituted. Since then, those who wish to cheat have found ways of doing it. They have transferred their money to European and other countries. It is so easy to do. The fact that the Treasury is incompetent and does not find these manipulators is no reason for penalizing the whole American people and causing them to lose confidence.

President Kennedy would be wise to have an impartial body make a study of the causes of lack of confidence — utilizing a body, organized like the Hoover Commission, whose task forces did such splended work, as the President knows because one of the most capable men on this Commission was his father; his brother, the Attorney General, worked for the Hoover Commission and the President, as Senator, introduced some of its measures in Congress.

When a Heart Stops, You Have 'Life in Your Hands'

By HAROLD T. HYMAN, M.D.
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Direct mouth-to-nose breathing and external cardiac massage are two potentially life-saving measures that can be carried out on the spot by any intelligent person who has taken the time to learn the simple techniques. Here, in summary, are the details. For visual instruction, a film called "Life in Your Hands" may be obtained, by your physician, on request from the Medical Film Center, Smith Kline and French Laboratories, Philadelphia 1, Pa.:

Remove any obstruction in the throat or mouth. This includes dentures.

By the application of pressure under the chin, keep the patient's mouth closed.

Take deep breaths and blow your breath into the patient's nose at a rate of about 12 to 14 a minute.

Check to make sure that the patient's chest expands with each breath.

For manual heart compression (external cardiac massage) that may be carried on with simultaneous direct mouth-to-nose breathing:

Place the patient on a firm level surface (floor or ground).

Request a bystander to begin mouth-to-nose breathing.

Place the heel of one hand on the lower third o fthe breastbone. Extend the fingers at right angles to the breastbone so that their tips cover the breast tissue or muscles.

Place the other hand on top of the one that covers the breastbone.

Using body weight, thrust the breastbone vertically downward. It should yield an inch or more.

Relax pressure and then resume at a rate of about 60 to the minute.

Don't give up until a physician arrives and takes charge of the situation. Unless there is present some complicating condition, the heart beat may be restored provided that compression was begun within four to six minutes of its cessation.

"What's Matter, Don't You Believe in Fairy Tales Any More?"

Washington News

BY PETER EDSON
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—The biennial drive to get more voters registered for the November elections has been kicked off this year by AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education — COPE—under the direction of Roy Reuther, Walther's brother. This year 35 governors and 36 senators are to be chosen, in addition to all the congressmen.

REGISTRATION AND THE NUMBERS OF VOTERS in midterm elections adways fall off by 25 to 30 per cent from the totals in years when a president is elected, which are low in themselves. There was only a 65 per cent turnout in 1960, in comparison to the 75 to 90 per cent votes in Japan, Germany and other European democracies.

Over 68 million Americans went to the polls two years ago, but another 37 million, nearly 1 out of 3 potential voters, stayed away from the polls.

So the total vote this year may not be much over 50 million unless there is a lot of hustling by the two major party organizations, chambers of commerce, labor unions or other patriotic and public service groups.

AFL-CIO international unions have pledged three cents a member for their national registration drive. With 15 million members, that would be $450,000.

On top of this, 21 state and 33 big city labor organizations whose leaders have just ended a two-day organization meeting in Washington, have pledged $250,000 for local drives. It sounds like a lot of money till you start dividing it up among 50 states. The average is $14,000.

THAT MEANS MOST OF THE WORK has to be done by volunteers who will wear out shoe leather on house-to-house canvassing. Most of the money goes for printing and mailing.

One of the big jobs is getting more women to register. That takes women volunteers. In all but a few states, registration must be done by the citizen himself or herself going or being taken to the city hall, court house or other designated place and signing the rolls.

Deadlines against which the registration drives must work vary from state to state. Only in Alaska can voters register at the time of voting. Last primary deadline is Colorado's Aug. 27. Last registration deadline for the November general election is Oct. 27 in Iowa and North Carolina. In the five poll tax states, registration lists are already closed, Virginia being the last on May 5.

Redistricting under the 1960 census will necessitate some re-registration. And the estimated 20 mililon Americans who have moved to different voting districts since last election will have to check their registration.

The COPE registration drive, says Roy Reuther, will naturally be concentrated where organized labor has its greatest strength. But the drive is being conducted as a nonpartisan affair. Both Republicans and Democrats will be aided. The big idea is just to get out the vote. The bigger the vote, the better labor considers its interests will be served. There's a big apathy to overcome.

IN THE COMING CONGRESSIONAL ELECTIONS, labor leaders figure it will take an overturn of 15 to 20 seats now held by conservative representatives to get a more liberal majority.

But to do this there will have to be a reversal of the usual pattern in which the party in control of the White House has allsional strength. This is the big ways — but once — lost congrestest for this year's labor registration drive.

Ripley's Believe It or Not!

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

C. Austin Durr of Sleightsburg spoke to me the other day in Rondout. He said he was interested in having a photograph of the gone but not forgotten yacht, Gardiner. In those days we had execellent water transportation to all the cities and towns around the creek and Hudson River. These yachts were on time easpecially in good weather. The people working in Kingston and other places could depend on them. Fare was very reasonable, and the ride was pleasant. On Sundays people went on these little yachts just for pleasure.

There is an interesting exhibit of photographs of Kingston doctors and nurses at the Artcraft Camera Shop, 694 Broadway. This exhibit can be seen through the glass doors if the store is closed. The pictures cover 60 years from around 1900 to 1962. The many pictures were gathered and beautifully arranged by Miss Kathryn Heavey, RN, a nurse at the Tumor Clinic. She has pictures of Dr. Ross of Port Ewen, Dr. A. A. Stern, Dr. Van Hoevenberg, then school physician, Dr. Dan Connelly, Dr. Ingalls, Dr. Gillette and Dr. Loughran, whose grandson is a physician in town today. I did not check all the pictures, but some of the other prominent physicians of the 1920s were: Dr. George F. Chandler, now retired and living at the Governor Clinton Hotel; Dr. Mary Gage Day, also a school physician of those days; Dr. Clarence Gannon; Dr. Gates; Dr. Will and Dr. John O'Leary, also Dr. Mark O'Meara. From downtown there should be Dr. C. Keefe of 3 East Strand, Dr. Jacob Simonds and Dr. J. Robinson of Abeel Street besides of course Dr. A. A. Stern.

Looking through the Kingston Weekly Freeman of Thursday, March 26, 1903, I found that Henry B. Sleight and J. Sterling Bird of Hyde Park, who aided in rescuing Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Rogers from the icy water of the Hudson when their yacht broke through the ice in winter of 1902, each received a silver loving cup from the Rogers.

An April 2, 1903, item from Sawkill tells about St. Ann's Hall about to be completed. It was to be formally dedicated on Easter Monday evening with an entertainment and dance to follow. S. D. Coykendall, at the time, was placing a new railroad track in his quarry at Jockey Hill.

An item from Kingston on same date tells about Policeman William Vogt who found a purse containing a good sum of money at the Ellenville and Kingston depot. He later was able to locate the owner, a woman from Ellenville and give her back her purse intact. The item was headed "An honest cop."

Same date an item tells about Wilbur's business "booming like old times." It seems the Sweeney blue stone mill, then operated by the Union Bluestone Co., had been running night and day to its full capacity for the past two weeks, and there was a large quantity of stone on the docks.

March 26, 1903, John F. Church sold his popular horse, "The Dominie," which had been his faithful horse for over 14 years drawing the peddler's wagon, and it was said, knew every customer on the route. Lately, in 1903, the horse had grown old and feeble and Mr. Church felt the horse could not work another summer. No doubt all his customers also knew the horse and petted him. I read recently that horses retired from the New York City Police Department are put in a special farm where they are treated with great kindness as they should be.

So They Say..

One thing the Russians could really use is a chewing gum factory. We have been mobbed again and again by youngsters wanting gum. They would have traded us almost anything they owned for it.

Kennedy Aged - Care Plan: Is Self - Reliance Obsolete?

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—Once upon a time a President of the United States made an inaugural speech in which he said:

"Ask not what your country can do for you—ask what you can do for your country."

Once upon a time parents struggled through the years to give their children a comfortable home with proper care and an education that would enable those same children some day to earn their own livelihood. Then the grateful children would take care of their parents in old age. They felt glad to do so. Those who did not have children to assume this responsibility and who were unfortunate enough to become indigent were cared for by relatives and in some cases by the states or cities or churches through nursing homes.

Now comes a message from President Kennedy to Congress this week asking for a five-year program, costing $50 million for "grants to improve services for the aged."

The Federal government thus seeks to assume the responsibility for all the problems of the aged—no just in medical care alone.

A White House statement says the purpose of the grants would be "to provide Federal assistance to help train personnel for work in the field of aging and to provide Federal aid for pilot community planning projects and demonstration and research projects to gain further knowledge about how the specific needs of older people can best be met."

A Family Problem

This is a rather vague outline of how $50 million is to be spent. There is no attention being paid to the fact that this is a problem for the family of the citizen himself or, in emergency cases, for the local community. Suddenly, however, it is to become a Federal function, and Federal funds are sought to pay for it.

There are about 110 million persons over 21 years of age in America. Of these, about 17 million are 65 years of age or older. Is it conceivable that any considerable number out of the 17 million cannot provide for themselves or be provided for by their children or relatives? Aren't the local communities and welfare organizations capable of handling the problems of those aged persons who do not have children or relatives and are without Social Security or other adequate income?

President Kennedy in his message to Congress says that the projects will, "in most instances, be under the control of the states, local communities and non-profit institutions and organizations." But why, it will be asked, is it necessary for the Federal government to appropriate $50 million when the state and local governments collect annually about $50 billion in taxes?

Perhaps the real purpose is to set up another of the many forms of political control over local affairs which the crusaders for more and more centralized government constantly espouse.

The President's message to Congress says the project will "encourage and assist universities, professional schools and other institutions, organizations and agencies to increase their programs for training those professional and technical people needed to provide the broad range of services required by older people."

Mr. Kennedy says that life expectancy has increased, and hence many of our older citizens "face special problems resulting from reduced incomes, inadequate housing, large medical bills, declining health, unproductive leisure time and lack of opportunity to continue their useful service to society."

But is it the function of the Federal government to spend taxpayers' money trying to provide for the productivity of the leisure time of the aged and for opportunities "to continue their useful service to society"?

How, moreover, will the Kennedy administration solve the dilemma it faces in Congress, where any grants to colleges or universities operated by churches are promptly opposed as unconstitutional? Many of the institutions taking care of older people are integral parts of the churches of various denominations.

But none of these barriers seems to be insurmountable to the Administration's idea men. Every few days the mimeograph machines at the executive offices busily turn out the pronouncements on "social welfare" on the theory that it is really the business of the government to care for the individual "from the cradle to the grave." Indeed, the phrases of the Kennedy inaugural about encouraging self-reliance and individual responsibility, rather than dependence on government, seem already to have become obsolete, although the same words are less than 18 months old.

The advertisement has existed from ancient times. Traders made themselves known and called attention to their products by mural inscriptions before the age of printing. Most of his students and associates thought he would never live to finish it. When Volume Six won Columbia's Loubat prize when he was 69, his friends were pleased he was getting recognition while he was still alive.

"Needle Eye" fooled them all. He finished Volume Ten, wrote a couple of other books, and found time to return to England and teach at Oxford in 1951-52.

His achievements offer something of an example for all those who retire and, like bumps on logs, sit around doing nothing, waiting for tomorrow.

GUARD CUT UNLIKELY

It would seem to be axiomatic that the Department of Defense should wield undisputed authority in all matters pertaining to the number and disposition of the armed forces. Axiomatic or not, this concept runs into a stone wall when curtailment of National Guard strength is proposed.

The present administration, like its predecessors, is finding this out the hard way. It has only a small chance of bringing about the projected cut of 33,000 in the 400,000-man strength of the National Guard. The chief opposition rises from the governors, who want to hang onto as much National Guard strength as possible. And the governors are able to marshal tremendous support for their views in Congress.

Arguments for the proposed manpower reduction are persuasive. The cut would give the guard better equipment and more intensive training, thus keeping it at a higher state of readiness. But the governors, for their own reasons, say no. They appear likely to have their way about it.

THE STOCK MARKET

Nearly 16,000,000 Americans own the industrial, commercial and service out-put of the United States. There is undoubtedly some duplication in this figure, but that hardly affects the problem. Some of these Americans are institutions such as colleges and universities or mutual funds that have invested their funds in these industries and therefore the number affected is larger indirectly.

It is ridivulous for the new-fangled economists to say that there is no relation between th stock market and the economy. When the market tumbles, the immediate effect is lack of confidence. So-called market people become liquid, that is, they sell their stocks and bonds and hold on to their cash, hoping to recoup by buying at lower prices. The rebound may be very slow. Those who buy on margin get telephone calls, asking them to cover and if they cannot, their losses may be so great that their private economic situation becomes hopeless. The very rich recoup more quickly by buying preferred European securities, or by purchasing real estate under certain circumstances, or jewels or works of art. Those who are not well off cannot do that. They must take their loss and suffer.

What is a share worth? There are as many opinions as there are buyers and sellers. Certainly no share of stock is worth 100 times the earnings of the company and those who purchase such a stock are speculators. An investor who buys in the hope that the enterprise will grow is on sounder ground or one who buys a stock that sells at about 10 times the earnings of a company is on less uncertain ground.

But when the buyer loses his money, there are no excuses that can be made to him. He translates his misfortune into an opposition to those who caused a general loss of confidence. And loss of confidence is the only reason why there is a general fall of stock prices. There is either loss of confidence in the economy, in the Administration or in international relations.

I have now asked over 100 persons, some of them economic majors, if they knew Gresham's Law. The answer for those under 30 is generally that they never heard of it. The significance of the reply is not that they do not know that bad money drives out good money; it is rather that they do not have a "feel" for money such as a small dealer must have if he is not to go out of business.

Money is a curious catalyst. Fed on confidence, it grows and makes everything about it grow; not fed on confidence, it becomes like an acid which makes everything about it shrivel. The miser, for instance, lacks confidence in the catalytic powers of money and therefore does nothing with it. He holds on to it.

Some believe that the cause of the present loss of confidence started when the President quarrelled with the United States Steel Corporation. That is not so. It started much earlier, as a study of stick prices will show.

The method of collecting the income tax has become so brutal that men are discouraged by the invasion of their private lives and the unbelievable amount of time consumed in answering wasteful and often stupid questionnaires. Because there are a comparatively small number of thieves who cheat, everybody has to be penalized by an indecent withholding tax which is a sign that a democratic government does not trust its own citizens to be truthful.

The American people are an honest people. Generally speaking, they do not cheat. They did not cheat before the withholding tax was instituted. Since then, those who wish to cheat have found ways of doing it. They have transferred their money to European and other countries. It is so easy to do. The fact that the Treasury is incompetent and does not find these manipulators is no reason for penalizing the whole American people and causing them to lose confidence.

President Kennedy would be wise to have an impartial body make a study of the causes of lack of confidence — utilizing a body, organized like the Hoover Commission, whose task forces did such splended work, as the President knows because one of the most capable men on this Commission was his father; his brother, the Attorney General, worked for the Hoover Commission and the President, as Senator, introduced some of its measures in Congress.

When a Heart Stops, You Have 'Life in Your Hands'

By HAROLD T. HYMAN, M.D.
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Direct mouth-to-nose breathing and external cardiac massage are two potentially life-saving measures that can be carried out on the spot by any intelligent person who has taken the time to learn the simple techniques. Here, in summary, are the details. For visual instruction, a film called "Life in Your Hands" may be obtained, by your physician, on request from the Medical Film Center, Smith Kline and French Laboratories, Philadelphia 1, Pa.:

Remove any obstruction in the throat or mouth. This includes dentures.

By the application of pressure under the chin, keep the patient's mouth closed.

Take deep breaths and blow your breath into the patient's nose at a rate of about 12 to 14 a minute.

Check to make sure that the patient's chest expands with each breath.

For manual heart compression (external cardiac massage) that may be carried on with simultaneous direct mouth-to-nose breathing:

Place the patient on a firm level surface (floor or ground).

Request a bystander to begin mouth-to-nose breathing.

Place the heel of one hand on the lower third o fthe breastbone. Extend the fingers at right angles to the breastbone so that their tips cover the breast tissue or muscles.

Place the other hand on top of the one that covers the breastbone.

Using body weight, thrust the breastbone vertically downward. It should yield an inch or more.

Relax pressure and then resume at a rate of about 60 to the minute.

Don't give up until a physician arrives and takes charge of the situation. Unless there is present some complicating condition, the heart beat may be restored provided that compression was begun within four to six minutes of its cessation.

"What's Matter, Don't You Believe in Fairy Tales Any More?"

Washington News

BY PETER EDSON
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—The biennial drive to get more voters registered for the November elections has been kicked off this year by AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education — COPE—under the direction of Roy Reuther, Walther's brother. This year 35 governors and 36 senators are to be chosen, in addition to all the congressmen.

REGISTRATION AND THE NUMBERS OF VOTERS in midterm elections adways fall off by 25 to 30 per cent from the totals in years when a president is elected, which are low in themselves. There was only a 65 per cent turnout in 1960, in comparison to the 75 to 90 per cent votes in Japan, Germany and other European democracies.

Over 68 million Americans went to the polls two years ago, but another 37 million, nearly 1 out of 3 potential voters, stayed away from the polls.

So the total vote this year may not be much over 50 million unless there is a lot of hustling by the two major party organizations, chambers of commerce, labor unions or other patriotic and public service groups.

AFL-CIO international unions have pledged three cents a member for their national registration drive. With 15 million members, that would be $450,000.

On top of this, 21 state and 33 big city labor organizations whose leaders have just ended a two-day organization meeting in Washington, have pledged $250,000 for local drives. It sounds like a lot of money till you start dividing it up among 50 states. The average is $14,000.

THAT MEANS MOST OF THE WORK has to be done by volunteers who will wear out shoe leather on house-to-house canvassing. Most of the money goes for printing and mailing.

One of the big jobs is getting more women to register. That takes women volunteers. In all but a few states, registration must be done by the citizen himself or herself going or being taken to the city hall, court house or other designated place and signing the rolls.

Deadlines against which the registration drives must work vary from state to state. Only in Alaska can voters register at the time of voting. Last primary deadline is Colorado's Aug. 27. Last registration deadline for the November general election is Oct. 27 in Iowa and North Carolina. In the five poll tax states, registration lists are already closed, Virginia being the last on May 5.

Redistricting under the 1960 census will necessitate some re-registration. And the estimated 20 million Americans who have moved to different voting districts since last election will have to check their registration.

The COPE registration drive, says Roy Reuther, will naturally be concentrated where organized labor has its greatest strength. But the drive is being conducted as a nonpartisan affair. Both Republicans and Democrats will be aided. The big idea is just to get out the vote. The bigger the vote, the better labor considers its interests will be served. There's a big apathy to overcome.

IN THE COMING CONGRESSIONAL ELECTIONS, labor leaders figure it will take an overturn of 15 to 20 seats now held by conservative representatives to get a more liberal majority.

But to do this there will have to be a reversal of the usual pattern in which the party in control of the White House has alsional strength. This is the big ways — but once — lost congrestest for this year's labor registration drive.

Ripley's Believe It or Not!

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

C. Austin Durr of Sleightsburg spoke to me the other day in Rondout. He said he was interested in having a photograph of the gone but not forgotten yacht, Gardiner. In those days we had execellent water transportation to all the cities and towns around the creek and Hudson River. These yachts were on time easpecially in good weather. The people working in Kingston and other places could depend on them. Fare was very reasonable, and the ride was pleasant. On Sundays people went on these little yachts just for pleasure.

There is an interesting exhibit of photographs of Kingston doctors and nurses at the Artcraft Camera Shop, 694 Broadway. This exhibit can be seen through the glass doors if the store is closed. The pictures cover 60 years from around 1900 to 1962. The many pictures were gathered and beautifully arranged by Miss Kathryn Heavey, RN, a nurse at the Tumor Clinic. She has pictures of Dr. Ross of Port Ewen, Dr. A. A. Stern, Dr. Van Hoevenberg, then school physician, Dr. Dan Connelly, Dr. Ingalls, Dr. Gillette and Dr. Loughran, whose grandson is a physician in town today. I did not check all the pictures, but some of the other prominent physicians of the 1920s were: Dr. George F. Chandler, now retired and living at the Governor Clinton Hotel; Dr. Mary Gage Day, also a school physician of those days; Dr. Clarence Gannon; Dr. Gates; Dr. Will and Dr. John O'Leary, also Dr. Mark O'Meara. From downtown there should be Dr. C. Keefe of 3 East Strand, Dr. Jacob Simonds and Dr. J. Robinson of Abeel Street besides of course Dr. A. A. Stern.

Looking through the Kingston Weekly Freeman of Thursday, March 26, 1903, I found that Henry B. Sleight and J. Sterling Bird of Hyde Park, who aided in rescuing Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Rogers from the icy water of the Hudson when their yacht broke through the ice in winter of 1902, each received a silver loving cup from the Rogers.

An April 2, 1903, item from Sawkill tells about St. Ann's Hall about to be completed. It was to be formally dedicated on Easter Monday evening with an entertainment and dance to follow. S. D. Coykendall, at the time, was placing a new railroad track in his quarry at Jockey Hill.

An item from Kingston on same date tells about Policeman William Vogt who found a purse containing a good sum of money at the Ellenville and Kingston depot. He later was able to locate the owner, a woman from Ellenville and give her back her purse intact. The item was headed "An honest cop."

Same date an item tells about Wilbur's business "booming like old times." It seems the Sweeney blue stone mill, then operated by the Union Bluestone Co., had been running night and day to its full capacity for the past two weeks, and there was a large quantity of stone on the docks.

March 26, 1903, John F. Church sold his popular horse, "The Dominie," which had been his faithful horse for over 14 years drawing the peddler's wagon, and it was said, knew every customer on the route. Lately, in 1903, the horse had grown old and feeble and Mr. Church felt the horse could not work another summer. No doubt all his customers also knew the horse and petted him. I read recently that horses retired from the New York City Police Department are put in a special farm where they are treated with great kindness as they should be.

So They Say..

One thing the Russians could really use is a chewing gum factory. We have been mobbed again and again by youngsters wanting gum. They would have traded us almost anything they owned for it.

Kennedy Aged - Care Plan: Is Self - Reliance Obsolete?

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—Once upon a time a President of the United States made an inaugural speech in which he said:

"Ask not what your country can do for you—ask what you can do for your country."

Once upon a time parents struggled through the years to give their children a comfortable home with proper care and an education that would enable those same children some day to earn their own livelihood. Then the grateful children would take care of their parents in old age. They felt glad to do so. Those who did not have children to assume this responsibility and who were unfortunate enough to become indigent were cared for by relatives and in some cases by the states or cities or churches through nursing homes.

Now comes a message from President Kennedy to Congress this week asking for a five-year program, costing $50 million for "grants to improve services for the aged."

The Federal government thus seeks to assume the responsibility for all the problems of the aged—no just in medical care alone.

A White House statement says the purpose of the grants would be "to provide Federal assistance to help train personnel for work in the field of aging and to provide Federal aid for pilot community planning projects and demonstration and research projects to gain further knowledge about how the specific needs of older people can best be met."

A Family Problem

This is a rather vague outline of how $50 million is to be spent. There is no attention being paid to the fact that this is a problem for the family of the citizen himself or, in emergency cases, for the local community. Suddenly, however, it is to become a Federal function, and Federal funds are sought to pay for it.

There are about 110 million persons over 21 years of age in America. Of these, about 17 million are 65 years of age or older. Is it conceivable that any considerable number out of the 17 million cannot provide for themselves or be provided for by their children or relatives? Aren't the local communities and welfare organizations capable of handling the problems of those aged persons who do not have children or relatives and are without Social Security or other adequate income?

President Kennedy in his message to Congress says that the projects will, "in most instances, be under the control of the states, local communities and non-profit institutions and organizations." But why, it will be asked, is it necessary for the Federal government to appropriate $50 million when the state and local governments collect annually about $50 billion in taxes?

Perhaps the real purpose is to set up another of the many forms of political control over local affairs which the crusaders for more and more centralized government constantly espouse.

The President's message to Congress says the project will "encourage and assist universities, professional schools and other institutions, organizations and agencies to increase their programs for training those professional and technical people needed to provide the broad range of services required by older people."

Mr. Kennedy says that life expectancy has increased, and hence many of our older citizens "face special problems resulting from reduced incomes, inadequate housing, large medical bills, declining health, unproductive leisure time and lack of opportunity to continue their useful service to society."

But is it the function of the Federal government to spend taxpayers' money trying to provide for the productivity of the leisure time of the aged and for opportunities "to continue their useful service to society"?

How, moreover, will the Kennedy administration solve the dilemma it faces in Congress, where any grants to colleges or universities operated by churches are promptly opposed as unconstitutional? Many of the institutions taking care of older people are integral parts of the churches of various denominations.

But none of these barriers seems to be insurmountable to the Administration's idea men. Every few days the mimeograph machines at the executive offices busily turn out the pronouncements on "social welfare" on the theory that it is really the business of the government to care for the individual "from the cradle to the grave." Indeed, the phrases of the Kennedy inaugural about encouraging self-reliance and individual responsibility, rather than dependence on government, seem already to have become obsolete, although the same words are less than 18 months old.

Area to Launch New Education Curriculum

National Salvation Army week will be observed in Kingston, and throughout the country from May 20 to May 27, with special services in Kingston and Saugerties during the observance.

One of the highlights of the week in Kingston will be appearance of the Salvation Army Brooklyn Citadel Corps band of 26 members, which will present a concert in the Old Dutch Church Saturday, May 26, at 8 p. m. It will also take part in the Sunday service at the drive-in on 9W at 8:45 a. m. and at the 11 a. m. service in Old Dutch Church. Sunday the band will give a concert at the First Congregational Church of Saugerties at 3 p. m., returning to Kingston where at 6:30 p. m. there will be an open air march followed by a meeting at Salvation Army Building on North Front Street at 7 p. m.

To Stress Ministry

The Salvation Army's religious and social welfare ministry to the poor, the hungry, the troubled and the lonely will be stressed during the week observance through the theme, "Hands of Mercy."

To give people of Kingston a chance to take a close look at the Army's program of service in this area, open house will be held at the Kingston Corps building located at 94 North Front Street, each afternoon throughout the week from 2 to 4 p. m. and from 7 to 8:30 p. m., Major Foster J. Meitrott, officer in charge, said.

Part of Chest Program

"The Salvation Army could not effectively serve the community without the generous support of people sympathetic with our aims," Major Meitrott said. "We are profoundly grateful for the help of volunteers and gifts of contributors through the Ulster County Community Chest."

Despite the rigid attitude of society a century ago, the Salvation Army, founded in the slums of London in 1865, campaigned for more compassionate treatment for society's outcasts and at the same time extended "Hands of Mercy" to those unfortunates.

The first haven was in a house of a Salvation Army woman who spread clean sheets on her own bed for a penitent girl from a brothel. Later a cottage housing 13 women was secured and this became the first Salvation Army Rescue Home. From that beginning sprang the present program of Salvation Army social work for women. Two such homes and hospitals serve the Kingston area, one in Buffalo and one in Flushing. The service has been extended to include all kinds of unfortunates.

Salvationists are no longer persecuted and their right of assembling on the streets to preach the gospel in open air ministry across the country and the world is no longer questioned. The Salvation Army has never lost its compassion for the transgressor or lessened its efforts to restore him to useful, respected places in society.

Early to recognize that drunkenness must sometimes be accounted a disease, the Salvation Army has worked diligently to restore to productive living those lives which have been ravished by drink. Across the country the Army maintains treatment centers to aid homeless men, many of whom are alcoholics, and in addition maintains special centers for the rehabilitation of alcoholics.

Kingston area works with the men's social service department located in Poughkeepsie for such cases:

Help Guide Children

Recreational and character-building activities as well as camp experiences help guide children and young people to responsible maturity. Older people find fellowship through senior citizen programs. The Salvation Army through its emergency disaster service, provides hot food and coffee for disaster workers as well as securing food and shelter for the victims. Locally last year the Army gave assistance at three fires and also during floods.

Among the community services rendered last year was service to 1961 transients with 775 meals being provided. Night lodgings for 550 was provided and numerous transient persons were given clothing and other assistance. Under the Family Service 116 food orders were given, over 2,000 articles of clothing was given and many in distress were supplied with furniture when fire had destroyed homes.

At sumer camp six boys and 25 girls were cared for. During the year the League of Mercy visited 17 institutions, bringing cheer to some 800 persons.

In the religious and character building activities program there were 1960 youth activities carried out including Sunday school group work activities and other meetings.

Help Make Yule Brighter

The scope of activities each year is little known to the general public. The Kingston Army conducted a total of 370 youth meetings with an attendance totaling 6,208. In the activities carried out for adults there was some 528 meetings of a religious nature, both indoor and outdoor, with a total attendance of 12,413. Activities at the Community Center numbered 79 with an attendance of 505 persons and Sunshine Baskets were distributed; 326 children were entertained at Christmas parties and over 600 toys were distributed to the needy. Christmas food orders totaled 125 and other Christmas services, including one at Napanoch Institution with an attendance of 1,000, brought the total of individuals assisted to 2,530, during the Christmas season.

"No, I'm NOT playing 'Little Jack Horner'! I'm serving time!"

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON

EDITOR'S NOTE—Maybe you are more disturbed by the government-business fracas than you need be. In this, first in a series, each self contained, on California reaction to the Kennedy administrations' labor-management policy, Sam Dawson, AP business news analyst, reports that many West Coast executives think so.

AP Business News Analyst

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Business has been taking some lumps—from government and the stock market. But many business and financial leaders in the West are taking this more calmly—or so they say—than some of their colleagues back East.

Here they think business will go right along setting records for some time yet and making a profit doing it.

Too Early for Trend

And most of those interviewed here think it's much too early to say that a real antibusiness trend by government has set in. Many of them think business will find ways to live with seemingly new policies that startled them at first. These included setting up guidelines for their dealings with labor, for setting prices, for profit goals.

They don't like it but they aren't panicky about it.

"The pendulum will swing back," says a leader in a basic industry, referring to recent government crackdowns—the steel price hike failure, antitrust suits, bans on mergers—which made others see a strong antibusiness, antibigness swing setting in.

"Today's attitude in Washington isn't anywhere near as strong as the antibusiness drive of the 1930s," says a leading banker.

"There are plenty of signs that the administration wants us to prosper," says a manufacturer.

"Stock prices have dropped before and the nation has survived," says a utility executive. Utility stock prices are more stable than some. "It's harder to shake our confidence out here. Our growth outlook is too good."

All Share One Belief

But for all their confidence—and as far as California's future is concerned it might almost be called cockiness—all those interviewed share one belief:

The government is sticking its nose into private business a lot more than it should—even if business isn't going to curl up its toes because of it, as the pessimists have been predicting.

They called this trend dangerous if carried too far. Most hope it won't be. With one voice they say they could do better in the public interest if left alone and regulated less.

Many protest increasing competition from government getting into business on its own in some fields and becoming a more dominant partner with private business in others.

And all express a common fear. Increasingly they have to be careful what they do, what they say, or some regulatory or investigating agency will be swooping down to look for violations of the fine print in the gvernment rules for conducting a business—and the rules seem to multiply.

Early Microscopes

The history of miscroscopes goes back to the simple magnifying glasses found in the ruins of Ninevah, Pompeii and other ancient cities.

Resin vs. Rosin

Resin is a yellowish gummy substance exuded from plants, especially pine or fir trees. When resin is distilled, a hard, amber-colored substance is obtained and this is called rosin.

The president of the United States needs no passport when he travels abroad.

Stolen Painting

The "Mona Lisa," Leonardo da Vinci's famous painting, was stolen from the Louvre Gallery in Paris on Aug. 22, 1911, and finally was found on Dec. 12, 1913, in Florence, Italy.

The rhinoceros at one time was the most common and widespread of all land mammals.

"The Best Service in Town"

Area to Launch New Education Curriculum

National Salvation Army week will be observed in Kingston, and throughout the country from May 20 to May 27, with special services in Kingston and Saugerties during the observance.

One of the highlights of the week in Kingston will be appearance of the Salvation Army Brooklyn Citadel Corps band of 26 members, which will present a concert in the Old Dutch Church Saturday, May 26, at 8 p. m. It will also take part in the Sunday service at the drive-in on 9W at 8:45 a. m. and at the 11 a. m. service in Old Dutch Church. Sunday the band will give a concert at the First Congregational Church of Saugerties at 3 p. m., returning to Kingston where at 6:30 p. m. there will be an open air march followed by a meeting at Salvation Army Building on North Front Street at 7 p. m.

To Stress Ministry

The Salvation Army's religious and social welfare ministry to the poor, the hungry, the troubled and the lonely will be stressed during the week observance through the theme, "Hands of Mercy."

To give people of Kingston a chance to take a close look at the Army's program of service in this area, open house will be held at the Kingston Corps building located at 94 North Front Street, each afternoon throughout the week from 2 to 4 p. m. and from 7 to 8:30 p. m., Major Foster J. Meitrott, officer in charge, said.

Part of Chest Program

"The Salvation Army could not effectively serve the community without the generous support of people sympathetic with our aims," Major Meitrott said. "We are profoundly grateful for the help of volunteers and gifts of contributors through the Ulster County Community Chest."

Despite the rigid attitude of society a century ago, the Salvation Army, founded in the slums of London in 1865, campaigned for more compassionate treatment for society's outcasts and at the same time extended "Hands of Mercy" to those unfortunates.

The first haven was in a house of a Salvation Army woman who spread clean sheets on her own bed for a penitent girl from a brothel. Later a cottage housing 13 women was secured and this became the first Salvation Army Rescue Home. From that beginning sprang the present program of Salvation Army social work for women. Two such homes and hospitals serve the Kingston area, one in Buffalo and one in Flushing. The service has been extended to include all kinds of unfortunates.

Salvationists are no longer persecuted and their right of assembling on the streets to preach the gospel in open air ministry across the country and the world is no longer questioned. The Salvation Army has never lost its compassion for the transgressor or lessened its efforts to restore him to useful, respected places in society.

Early to recognize that drunkenness must sometimes be accounted a disease, the Salvation Army has worked diligently to restore to productive living those lives which have been ravished by drink. Across the country the Army maintains treatment centers to aid homeless men, many of whom are alcoholics, and in addition maintains special centers for the rehabilitation of alcoholics.

Kingston area works with the men's social service department located in Poughkeepsie for such cases:

Help Guide Children

Recreational and character-building activities as well as camp experiences help guide children and young people to responsible maturity. Older people find fellowship through senior citizen programs. The Salvation Army through its emergency disaster service, provides hot food and coffee for disaster workers as well as securing food and shelter for the victims. Locally last year the Army gave assistance at three fires and also during floods.

Among the community services rendered last year was service to 1961 transients with 775 meals being provided. Night lodgings for 550 was provided and numerous transient persons were given clothing and other assistance. Under the Family Service 116 food orders were given, over 2,000 articles of clothing was given and many in distress were supplied with furniture when fire had destroyed homes.

At sumer camp six boys and 25 girls were cared for. During the year the League of Mercy visited 17 institutions, bringing cheer to some 800 persons.

In the religious and character building activities program there were 1960 youth activities carried out including Sunday school group work activities and other meetings.

Help Make Yule Brighter

The scope of activities each year is little known to the general public. The Kingston Army conducted a total of 370 youth meetings with an attendance totaling 6,208. In the activities carried out for adults there was some 528 meetings of a religious nature, both indoor and outdoor, with a total attendance of 12,413. Activities at the Community Center numbered 79 with an attendance of 505 persons and Sunshine Baskets were distributed; 326 children were entertained at Christmas parties and over 600 toys were distributed to the needy. Christmas food orders totaled 125 and other Christmas services, including one at Napanoch Institution with an attendance of 1,000, brought the total of individuals assisted to 2,530, during the Christmas season.

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON

EDITOR'S NOTE—Maybe you are more disturbed by the government-business fracas than you need be. In this, first in a series, each self contained, on California reaction to the Kennedy administrations' labor-management policy, Sam Dawson, AP business news analyst, reports that many West Coast executives think so.

AP Business News Analyst

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Business has been taking some lumps—from government and the stock market. But many business and financial leaders in the West are taking this more calmly—or so they say—than some of their colleagues back East.

Here they think business will go right along setting records for some time yet and making a profit doing it.

Too Early for Trend

And most of those interviewed here think it's much too early to say that a real antibusiness trend by government has set in. Many of them think business will find ways to live with seemingly new policies that startled them at first. These included setting up guidelines for their dealings with labor, for setting prices, for profit goals.

They don't like it but they aren't panicky about it.

"The pendulum will swing back," says a leader in a basic industry, referring to recent government crackdowns—the steel price hike failure, antitrust suits, bans on mergers——which made others see a strong antibusiness, antibigness swing setting in.

"Today's attitude in Washington isn't anywhere near as strong as the antibusiness drive of the 1930s," says a leading banker.

"There are plenty of signs that the administration wants us to prosper," says a manufacturer.

"Stock prices have dropped before and the nation has survived," says a utility executive. Utility stock prices are more stable than some. "It's harder to shake our confidence out here. Our growth outlook is too good."

All Share One Belief

But for all their confidence—and as far as California's future is concerned it might almost be called cockiness—all those interviewed share one belief:

The government is sticking its nose into private business a lot more than it should—even if business isn't going to curl up its toes because of it, as the pessimists have been predicting.

They called this trend dangerous if carried too far. Most hope it won't be. With one voice they say they could do better in the public interest if left alone and regulated less.

Many protest increasing competition from government getting into business on its own in some fields and becoming a more dominant partner with private business in others.

And all express a common fear. Increasingly they have to be careful what they do, what they say, or some regulatory or investigating agency will be swooping down to look for violations of the fine print in the gvernment rules for conducting a business—and the rules seem to multiply.

The history of miscroscopes goes back to the simple magnifying glasses found in the ruins of Ninevah, Pompeii and other ancient cities.

Resin vs. Rosin

Resin is a yellowish gummy substance exuded from plants, especially pine or fir trees. When resin is distilled, a hard, amber-colored substance is obtained and this is called rosin.

Jeanne Cooper's View

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A regular role in a television series however attractive, is no plum for a performer who intends to spend his working life in the theater.

That is the conviction of a tall, red-haired actress named Jeanne Cooper, who as a freelance has performed in more than 200 different television roles and currently is a candidate for an "Emmy" award for her performance in an episode of ABC's "Ben Casey."

"That is particularly true for a woman," Miss Cooper continued earnestly. "Money can't compensate for experience when you are young.

"Some day youre going to reach 40, the lines will start to show—and after that it is ability that counts."

Miss Cooper's point about a television series being a performer's trap is this:

"You play one person over and over," she said.

"This is bad for the development of an actor—the only way to make native ability and talent grow is by stretching and exercising it."

Miss Cooper says she makes more money as a freelance performer than she would in a steady part. In addition, she can accept motion picture roles, almost impossible for series actors, and while in New York this week is looking into some Broadway projects for next season.

ABC has turned its Saturday evening 7:30-8:30 spot next fall over to Roy Rogers and Dale Evans for a Western-style variety hour. With the new Jackie Gleason show opposite on CBS, Jack Paar and Andy Williams coming onto NBC with variety shows and with Perry Como, Garry Moore, Mitch Miller, Dinah Shore and the Telephone Hour returning, it looks as if song, dance and comedy is scheduled to be next season's trend.

And now NBC will give us a half-hour Vic Damone program to replace "Hazel" for eight weeks in the late summer and early fall.

Recommended tonight: "Sing Along with Mitch," NBC, 10-11 (Eastern Daylight Time)—highlighting songs of Scotland.

Kingston High Students To Run Penney's Friday

Senior students from the distributive education program at Kingston High School will take over the operation of the J. C. Penney Store, 318 Wall Street, Friday with 29 students participating in the event.

The students will assume positions ranging from manager to stock clerk. They were elected by their classmates according to their ability.

Students Are Anxious

Plans for this special event were made through the efforts of Loryne B. Connick, director of the Business Department and coordinator or distributive education at Kingston High School and Richard Whittington, manager of the local J. C. Penney Company.

The students have been looking forward to this opportunity and have been studying all phases of selling, display, and other matters connected with the operation of the store.

Friday, the students will put into practice the daily duties of the store in each department, thus giving them an opporunity to put into use the practice which they have studied.

To Have Fashion Show

Girls from Kingston High School retailing class will appear in a fashion show in the front show window, with students modeling Penney's latest fashions. There will be five models, a fashion co-ordinator and her assistant. All students participating are in the local high school retailing class.

Career Day has been conducted for nine years at the local Penney Store and each year the students of the class endeavor to exceed the quotas and sales interest set by the class of the preceding year.

Stamp Trader Is Released After 4-Month Term

UTICA, N.Y. (AP) — Theodore Berkeley, in trouble with the courts because he set up a national trading-stamp bank, was a free man today after four months in jail.

Berkeley was jailed Jan. 10 on a contempt-of-court charge that resulted from his activities in exchanging various kinds of trading stamps for a fee. He paid a fine of $500 and $31 in court costs Wednesday night and was released.

Berkeley previously had refused to pay the fine and said he was going to jail in the interest of "the American housewife."

The Sperry & Hutchinson Co., one of the nation's largest trading stamp firms, had obtained an injunction restraining Berkeley from dealing in S&H stamps.

When he defied the court order, the fine was imposed.

After his release Wednesday night, Berkeley vowed he would "continue the battle."

"I am not giving up but I don't at present want to comment on why I paid the fine," he said. "What comes next...is up to my attorney. We have appeals now in the courts and will have to await their outcome."

"I am convinced my operation is right," he added.

Berkeley was served with a Supreme Court notice Wednesday that Robert H. Bankert, a Utica lawyer, had been named receiver for the stamp bank.

According to a court spokesman, the order authorizes Bankert to take possession of all correspondence sent to the stamp bank and return to senders all trading stamps sent for exchange.

Nephew Goes Beserk

Explosions Follow Slayings, Suicide

EAST MEADOW, N.Y. (AP)—A former mental patient shot his aunt and uncle to death today, wounded their two small daughters and killed himself.

The slayer, Marvin Rosen, 29, set the family's $25,000 split-level home afire with bottles of gasoline.

Two explosions followed. A side of the house was blown out.

Slain by rifle shots were Albert Mittleman, 42, a lawyer; and his wife, Blanche, 39.

Their children — Lorraine, 14, and Michele, 13, wounded and dazed—were found stumbling in the yard as flames spread through the house.

The children were taken to Meadowbrook Hospital. There was no immediate report on how seriously they were wounded.

Neighbors rushed from their homes as they heard the explosions about 5 a.m. in the Mittleman home, where Rosen also had been living.

Police said they could not immediately determine Rosen's motive.

They said they smelled gasoline around the blazing house, and found bottles of gasoline in Rosen's car.

The bodies of Mittleman and his wife were found in the fire ruins.

Dr. Francis Moore, Nassau County assistant medical examiner, said Rosen had been under mental treatment at least twice in the past three years at Pilgrim State Hospital at Brentwood N.Y., east of here on Long Island.

Rosen's ailment was diagnosed as acute schizophrenia.

Uproar Over Salan

PARIS (AP)—Defense and prosecution attorneys shouted angrily across the courtroom today in the Raoul Salan treason trial as the defense tried to prove special French police were responsible for some of the violence in Algiers.

Prosecutor Andre Galvada cried "It's almost scandal! You're making politics!"

Bernard le Coroller, a Salan attorney, fired back: "You do not want justice!"

Ex-Gen. Salan, whose chest was once heavy with decorations, is on trial for his life for heading the European Secret Army Organization in Algeria and for his role in the April 1961 Algiers generals' putsch.

Light Vote Seen Due to Lack of Demos' Contest

HARRISBURG (AP) — Democratic State Chairman Otis B. Morse said today the Democrats polled less votes than Republicans in Tuesday's primary election because the Democrats had less of a contest.

"I was shocked at the small turnout, especially with such important offices at stake," Morse said. "It was a shame, but I think the lack of a primary contest had a lot to do with it."

Morse's remarks came on the heels of a statement Wednesday by his Republican counterpart, George I. Bloom, claiming Richardson Dilworth "showed his weakness as a candidate" by capturing only 72 per cent of the Democratic vote.

"U.S. Rep. William W. Scranton not only won our party nomination for governor overwhelmingly, but showed he will defeat Dilworth in November," Bloom declared in a statement.

Dilworth, selected as the Democratic candidate for governor, had 674,586 votes with 9,119 of the state's 9,157 precincts accounted for. A total of 888,770 votes were cast.

Scranton, on the other hand, had polled 732,172 of the 937,281 votes cast in 9,089 precincts—or approximately 78 per cent of the GOP vote.

An appraisal of Mrs. Boyd's fortune was filed Wednesday at the Dauphin County Courthouse here.

Mrs. Boyd was the daughter of John Hay, private secretary and adjutant to President Abraham Lincoln. She was the wife of James W. Wadsworth, who served as speaker of the New York State Assembly and later was a member of the U.S. Senate and House.

Her son is James J. Wadsworth, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations under former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Physician Choice Of Pennsy GOP

Republicans in Mercer, Crawford and Erie counties picked Dr. James D. Weaver of Erie over veteran U. S. Representative Carroll D. Kearns for the GOP congressional nomination in the Tuesday primary.

Weaver, 41, has never held public office despite his excursions into the field of politics.

He is a son of a former Republican leader, the late Forman Weaver. Dr. Weaver also worked for the party in state and national campaigns. He was chairman of the Pennsylvania Professional Committee for Eisenhower, Nixon and Duff in 1956.

In 1951, he ran for the school board in Erie but lost.

Weaver, a father of eight children ranging in age from two to 19, has been active in medical organizations. A graduate of Syracuse University and the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, he currently is a trustee and councilor of the Pennsylvania Medical Society.

Scranton, on the other hand, had polled 732,172 of the 937,281 votes cast in 9,089 precincts—or approximately 78 per cent of the GOP vote.

An appraisal of Mrs. Boyd's fortune was filed Wednesday at the Dauphin County Courthouse here.

Mrs. Boyd was the daughter of John Hay, private secretary and adjutant to President Abraham Lincoln. She was the wife of James W. Wadsworth, who served as speaker of the New York State Assembly and later was a member of the U.S. Senate and House.

Her son is James J. Wadsworth, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations under former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

America's Indian Summer corresponds to St. Luke's Summer, or St. Martin's Summer, in England. Elsewhere on the European continent it is known by a variety of names.

Physician Choice Of Pennsy GOP

Republicans in Mercer, Crawford and Erie counties picked Dr. James D. Weaver of Erie over veteran U. S. Representative Carroll D. Kearns for the GOP congressional nomination in the Tuesday primary.

Weaver, 41, has never held public office despite his excursions into the field of politics.

He is a son of a former Republican leader, the late Forman Weaver. Dr. Weaver also worked for the party in state and national campaigns. He was chairman of the Pennsylvania Professional Committee for Eisenhower, Nixon and Duff in 1956.

In 1951, he ran for the school board in Erie but lost.

Weaver, a father of eight children ranging in age from two to 19, has been active in medical organizations. A graduate of Syracuse University and the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, he currently is a trustee and councilor of the Pennsylvania Medical Society.

Others in Field Question Marks

By ROBERT T. GRAY

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Repeated assertions by Democratic leaders that their party has a wealth of strong candidates to challenge Gov. Rockefeller and Sen. Jacob K. Javits run counter to some political facts of life.

The continuing Democratic references to a strong field of potential candidates, with no sign of any individual challenger emerging, could be based on one of two strategy considerations:

1. Democratic leaders want to encourage as long as possible a "wide-open race" to avoid repetition of the "bossism" issue that proved such a problem in 1958, when a candidate for U.S. senator was chosen in a hotel room while delegates waited for several hours in the convention hall.

Many Names . . .But

2. The party does not yet have satisfactory candidates to run for governor and U.S. senator and is making time until they appear on the scene.

Questioned about candidates at present, a Democratic leader will rattle off the names of City Council President Paul Screvane of New York City, Dist. Atty. Frank O'Connor of Queens, Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. and Howard Samuels, an Upstate industrialist.

For the nomination for senator to oppose Javits, the names of James A. Farley, former postmaster general and Democratic national chairman, and Edward R. Murrow, now director of the U.S. Information Agency, are presented.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York City, the state's Democratic leader, said in removing himself from consideration as a candidate for governor: "There are a number of outstanding Democrats who....can take the measure of Gov. Rockefeller."

State Chairman William McKeon is proclaiming that same message throughout the state.

Some Very Little Known

But does the present crop of potential candidates offer two men who could deliver the victories over Rockefeller and Javits that, for current campaign purposes, Democratic leaders describe as inevitable?

Screvane and O'Connor are scarcely known outside New York City and time is running out for the type of statewide buildup that would be needed to make them front-rank challengers. Samuels is little known outside his home area.

Farley is nearing 75, has been long out of active politics.

Roosevelt was shunted aside by Democrats when he bid for the party nomination for governor in 1954 and was defeated by Javits for attorney general that year. Those developments appear to have shown that his famous name is no key to political success.

Stratton has proven himself able to win in what had been considered strongly Republican districts.

The fact that Stratton has not acquired a reputation as a Democrat of the liberal bent considered necessary to hold party strength in New York City seems to be a major liability in his quest for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Murrow's Appeal Is TV

Murrow's chief appeal to Democrats mentioning his name appears to be his status as a well-known television personality.

"When Murrow's name came up four years ago in connection with the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senator, he said then: "The only thing I would like to say is that I have neither the intention nor the appetite to run for elective office."

He has given no specific indication he has changed his mind, although some observers think he is leaving the door open for a bid this year.

Javits, who commands strong support Upstate because he is a Republican and strong support in New York City because of his reputation as a leading liberal, is a formidable candidate.

Some observors think that, despite Wagner's strong statement he would not be a candidate, he remains not only the strongest possible nominee the Democrats could send against Rockefeller but the only one with any realistic chance of defeating the incumbent governor.

When Democrat Averell Harriman was governor, Republicans carefully groomed Rockefeller to be ready when Harriman stood for re-election.

In contrast with the GOP planning, Democrats under a Republican governor have been engaged in a long series of fights among themselves.

The endorsement was given Wednesday at a meeting of the Metropolitan Cooperative Milk Producers Bargaining Agency, which claims 22,000 members.

An engineering consultant suggested that the plant be erected between Utica and Canajoharie, but no site was chosen.

An agency spokesman said dry-milk powder and butter would be produced at the plant.

He said the dairy farmer believed the plant was needed to "secure the true value of his product and also to improve former bargaining power."

C. J. Blanford, administrator of the New York-New Jersey Milk-marketing area, told the 94 delegates to the meeting that he had long advocated control of surplus milk by producers rather than dealers.

He said that in the past eight weeks, the milkshed had been in its most critical period since the 1930s and early 1940s.

He called conditions "chaotic." Milk production has been increasing steadily while consumption has declined.

Favorite Haunt

The barbershop was a favorite place for idle persons in the 18th century. In addition to its attraction as a focal point of news, some musical instrument alwas was kept for the entertainment of waiting customers.

Judge Giaccone Replacing Reid On Rights Board

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Francis X. Giaccone, 65, of Brooklyn, a former State Supreme Court Justice, will replace Ogden R. Reid on the State Commission for Human Rights.

Reid resigned to run for the Republican nomination for Congress in the 26th District, which is in Westchester County.

Gov. Rockefeller, who named Giaccone Wednesday, previously appointed George W. Fowler of New York City to take over from Reid as chairman of the commission, which is charged with investigating complaints of violations of the state's anti-discrimination laws.

Giaccone must be sworn in before he takes his seat on the commission.

He will receive $19,500 a year. His term will run to July 1, 1966.

Among other appointments, the governor named John R. Winter of Utica, as a member of the Board of Visitors of Marcy State Hospital for a term ending Dec. 31, 1967. The post is unsalaried.

Winter, 64, succeeds the late Charles DeAngelis of Holland Patent.

The governor renamed Charles V. Paganelli of Albion, and Mrs. Doris Corwith of South Hempstead to the World War Memorial Authority. Members of that agency are unsalaried.

Others in Field Question Marks

By ROBERT T. GRAY

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Repeated assertions by Democratic leaders that their party has a wealth of strong candidates to challenge Gov. Rockefeller and Sen. Jacob K. Javits run counter to some political facts of life.

The continuing Democratic references to a strong field of potential candidates, with no sign of any individual challenger emerging, could be based on one of two strategy considerations:

1. Democratic leaders want to encourage as long as possible a "wide-open race" to avoid repetition of the "bossism" issue that proved such a problem in 1958, when a candidate for U.S. senator was chosen in a hotel room while delegates waited for several hours in the convention hall.

Many Names . . .But

2. The party does not yet have are a number of outstanding satisfactory candidates to run for governor and U.S. senator and is making time until they appear on the scene.

Questioned about candidates at present, a Democratic leader will rattle off the names of City Council President Paul Screvane of New York City, Dist. Atty Frank O'Connor of Queens, Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. and Howard Samuels, an Upstate industrialist.

For the nomination for senator to oppose Javits, the names of James A. Farley, former postmaster general and Democratic national chairman, and Edward R. Murrow, now director of the U.S. Information Agency, are presented.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York City, the state's Democratic leader, said in removing himself from consideration as a candidate for governor: "There are a number of outstanding Democrats who....can take the measure of Gov. Rockefeller."

State Chairman William McKeon is proclaiming that same message throughout the state.

Some Very Little Known

But does the present crop of potential candidates offer two men who could deliver the victories over Rockefeller and Javits that, for current campaign purposes, Democratic leaders describe as inevitable?

Screvane and O'Connor are scarcely known outside New York City and time is running out for the type of statewide buildup that would be needed to make them front-rank challengers. Samuels is little known outside his home area.

Farley is nearing 75, has been long out of active politics.

Roosevelt was shunted aside by Democrats when he bid for the party nomination for governor in 1954 and was defeated by Javits for attorney general that year. Those developments appear to have shown that his famous name is no key to political success.

Stratton has proven himself able to win in what had been considered strongly Republican districts.

The fact that Stratton has not acquired a reputation as a Democrat of the liberal bent considered necessary to hold party strength in New York City seems to be a major liability in his quest for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Murrow's Appeal Is TV

Murrow's chief appeal to Democrats mentioning his name appears to be his status as a well-known television personality.

"When Murrow's name came up four years ago in connection with the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senator, he said then: "The only thing I would like to say is that I have neither the intention nor the appetite to run for elective office."

He has given no specific indication he has changed his mind, although some observers think he is leaving the door open for a bid this year.

Javits, who commands strong support Upstate because he is a Republican and strong support in New York City because of his reputation as a leading liberal, is a formidable candidate.

Some observors think that, despite Wagner's strong statement he would not be a candidate, he remains not only the strongest possible nominee the Democrats could send against Rockefeller but the only one with any realistic chance of defeating the incumbent governor.

When Democrat Averell Harriman was governor, Republicans carefully groomed Rockefeller to be ready when Harriman stood for re-election.

In contrast with the GOP planning, Democrats under a Republican governor have been engaged in a long series of fights among themselves.

The endorsement was given Wednesday at a meeting of the Metropolitan Cooperative Milk Producers Bargaining Agency, which claims 22,000 members.

An engineering consultant suggested that the plant be erected between Utica and Canajoharie, but no site was chosen.

An agency spokesman said dry-milk powder and butter would be produced at the plant.

He said the dairy farmer believed the plant was needed to "secure the true value of his product and also to improve former bargaining power."

C. J. Blanford, administrator of the New York-New Jersey Milk-marketing area, told the 94 delegates to the meeting that he had long advocated control of surplus milk by producers rather than dealers.

He said that in the past eight weeks, the milkshed had been in its most critical period since the 1930s and early 1940s.

He called conditions "chaotic." Milk production has been increasing steadily while consumption has declined.

Predicts Medicare Proposal to Die Within Committee

NEW YORK (AP)—The ranking Republican member of the House Ways and Means Committee predicts that the administration's medical care for the aged bill will die in his committee.

Rep. Thomas B. Curtis of Missouri told a news conference Wednesday night that 16 members of the committee were opposed to the bill, as against 9 in favor. He attacked the medicare proposal as a step toward government control of hospitals and termed chances for passage of the bill "very poor."

Earlier, Curtis criticized the measure at the annual dinner of the New York State Medical Society.

The society's leaders, also against the plan to provide such medical insurance under the Social Security system, proposed an alternative to the bill — which would give all aged persons tax credits on private medical insurance and provide additional federal help to the needy aged.

The plan is incorporated in a resolution to be put before the society's house of delegates today.

The resolution continues the attack on the King-Anderson bill sponsored by President Kennedy, saying it would "regiment the care of the individual and deny the senior citizen his right to choose his own doctor and hospital."

Methodists Take Step for Merger

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP)—The first step has been taken toward uniting 194,000 Methodists in Connecticut and lower New York State.

The New York East Conference of the Methodist Church voted Wednesday night to merge with the New York Conference.

Members of the New York Conference will take a similar vote next week in Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

The united conference would include 590 churches and would be known as the New York Annual Conference. Its first meeting would be held next summer.

Troop 34, 66 Set WeekendCampout

Boy Scout Troop 66, West Hurley and Troop 34, Woodstock will participate on camping trip during this weekend.

During the course of this campout the two troops will compete in scouting skills and physical activities. Three patrols from each troop will be present to participate in the activities which have been designed to prepare both troops for the forthcoming Rip Van Winkle Council Camporee.

Senior Patrol Leader, Paul Goins of Troop 66 and Senior Patrol Leader, Jeff May of Troop 34 will lead their troops in the competition.

The two troops will be camping in a new area between Spillway Road and Stone Road which has been given to Troop 66 to use as a campsite by the owners James Goins and Robert Hall. In all, about 200 acres have been turned over to the troop for scouting purposes. The troop plans to provide areas for patrol camping and outdoor recreation for members and their families. Part of the land will be used for individual conservation projects for those scouts working on the Nature-Conservation merit badge group.

Plans for the campout are being made by the leadership of the troops and their respective committees. Howard Hopkins of the Western District Camping and Activities Committee will be in charge of the camping trip and the development of the camping area.

To Honor State Doctor

BOSTON (AP)—The Massachusetts Medical Society said today it will award gold badges to 21 physicians who have been members of the society for 5 years. The badges will be presented at the society's annual meeting May 22.

Sausage making became a culinary art in the middle ages, and certain modern popular sausages derive their names from the cities in which they originated: frankfurters from Frankfurt-on-Main, Germany; bologna from Bologna, Italy. While there is no documentary proof, it has been deduced that salami may have been named for the ancient Grecian city, Salamis, on the east coast of Cyprus.

Plattekill Board Hears Report on Route 32 Project

Information regarding the reconstruction of Route 32 in Town of Plattekill to be completed in a year, at an approximate cost of $1 million was outlined by Supervisor Joseph Martorana at a recent Plattekill Town Board meeting.

The new section of highway within the township will run from Orange County line south of Plattekill to the intersection of Routes 44-55 and 32 in Modena.

The road will be 22 feet wide, two lanes and will have nine-foot shoulders. It will be mostly under new alignment to eliminate many of the curves and low areas on the existing road.

Supervisor Martorana was reporting for the committee on highways which in addition to himself includes Councilmen George Sisti Jr., and Richard J. Joy. He said the committee and Roy Pauli, a member of the Town Planning Board met recently with state officials of the Public Works Department and specifications were discussed.

Following the completion of bid specifications, the letting of bids should take place this summer and contracts awarded by the fall.

In other business, Supervisor Martorana was authorized to execute a five-year agreement for the use of lands as a town dump.

Wet Season Beginning in Thailand

Rains Could Be Help, Hindrance to Marines

WASHINGTON (AP)—The rain will be an ally of American soldiers and Marines defending Thailand's Mekong River border from Communist penetration.

From now until mid-September, the almost daily rains will swell the already unfordable Mekong which forms most of Thailand's 1,000-mile boundary with Laos.

The Mekong, some 1,000 to 5,000 feet wide, is considered the last major physical barrier standing in the path of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao who dominate the heavily wooded ridges running much of the length of Laos. These ridges overlook plans extendng to the Mekong.

The rany season, now starting in Thailand, will hinder the American expedition in some ways.

It is expected to hamper somewhat the operation of U.S. fighter bombers and other aircraft supporting the American infantrymen and Marines ranged along the frontier.

Also, the rains would cut down tank operations in the northeast plateau where the American forces are to be deployed.

Indications are that the American Marines and infantrymen probably will try to guard a roughly 500-mile arc.

The best defense line in this area is along the Mekong. To hold such a line, U.S. troops would have to enter Laos.

Wyoming Methodists Elect New Secretary

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — The Rev. George R. Akers of Honesdale, Pa., was elected permanent secretary of the Wyoming Conference of the Methodist Church Wednesday night.

He succeeds the late Rev. Austin T. Rogers of Vestal Center, N.Y.

Chosen as Mr. Akers' assistants were:

The Rev. Leighton E. Pitkin, Scranton; Edwin Schumacher, Union Center, N.Y.; the Rev. Richard P. James, Factoryville, Pa., and William E. Newhart, Scranton.

Teachers Given Last Offer

NEW YORK (AP)—The Board of Education today presented what it said was its "final" offer on wages and other money items to the AFL-CIO United Federation of Teachers.

Negotiators for the union said they would put the offer before the members for consideration.

Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, chief negotiator for the board of education, announced the offer shortly before 2 a.m., following a 9½-hour negotiating session.

She said the total value to the city's teachers was "a whole lot."

The union representatives would not say whether they would recommend membership acceptance of the offer. Charles Cogen, president of the union, indicated that he understood the offer was the board's final one.

Mrs. Rosenberg said the money offer was contingent upon the union's acceptance of some non-money terms. She declined to tell newsmen whether these terms included a no-strike agreement, and she would not discuss the nature of any of the terms.

The federation staged a one-day strike April 11, which closed more than 20 schools and disrupted operations in almost all the city's 900 schools.

The 15,000-member federation is the recognized bargaining agent for all 40,000 teachers in the public schools. About 20,000 teachers participated in the strike, called off by the union in compliance with a State Supreme Court order.

Was 104th Birthday

Wet Season Beginning in Thailand

Rains Could Be Help, Hindrance to Marines

WASHINGTON (AP)—The rain will be an ally of American soldiers and Marines defending Thailand's Mekong River border from Communist penetration.

From now until mid-September, the almost daily rains will swell the already unfordable Mekong which forms most of Thailand's 1,000-mile boundary with Laos.

The Mekong, some 1,000 to 5,000 feet wide, is considered the last major physical barrier standing in the path of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao who dominate the heavily wooded ridges running much of the length of Laos. These ridges overlook plans extending to the Mekong.

The rany season, now starting in Thailand, will hinder the American expedition in some ways.

It is expected to hamper somewhat the operation of U.S. fighter bombers and other aircraft supporting the American infantrymen and Marines ranged along the frontier.

Also, the rains would cut down tank operations in the northeast plateau where the American forces are to be deployed.

Indications are that the American Marines and infantrymen probably will try to guard a roughly 500-mile arc.

The best defense line in this area is along the Mekong. To hold such a line, U.S. troops would have to enter Laos.

Wyoming Methodists Elect New Secretary

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — The Rev. George R. Akers of Honesdale, Pa., was elected permanent secretary of the Wyoming Conference of the Methodist Church Wednesday night.

He succeeds the late Rev. Austin T. Rogers of Vestal Center, N.Y.

Chosen as Mr. Akers' assistants were:

The Rev. Leighton E. Pitkin, Scranton; Edwin Schumacher, Union Center, N.Y.; the Rev. Richard P. James, Factoryville, Pa., and William E. Newhart, Scranton.

Teachers Given Last Offer

NEW YORK (AP)—The Board of Education today presented what it said was its "final" offer on wages and other money items to the AFL-CIO United Federation of Teachers.

Negotiators for the union said they would put the offer before the members for consideration.

Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, chief negotiator for the board of education, announced the offer shortly before 2 a.m., following a 9½-hour negotiating session.

She said the total value to the city's teachers was "a whole lot."

The union representatives would not say whether they would recommend membership acceptance of the offer. Charles Cogen, president of the union, indicated that he understood the offer was the board's final one.

Mrs. Rosenberg said the money offer was contingent upon the union's acceptance of some non-money terms. She declined to tell newsmen whether these terms included a no-strike agreement, and she would not discuss the nature of any of the terms.

The federation staged a one-day strike April 11, which closed more than 20 schools and disrupted operations in almost all the city's 900 schools.

The 15,000-member federation is the recognized bargaining agent for all 40,000 teachers in the public schools. About 20,000 teachers participated in the strike, called off by the union in compliance with a State Supreme Court order.

Weekly Food Review

Broiler chickens, mighty fine eating any one of the several ways they can be fixed, are one of the star treats at supermarkets this weekend.

Some Midwestern markets are selling them at close to cost and they are a good buy in stores all around the country.

Production is not expected to match last year's extraordinarily large volume, but they are nonetheless very abundant.

Among red meats, beef cuts offer a good variety of buys this weekend. One national chain is featuring rib roasts or boneless chuck pot roast at 59 cents a pound in its New York outlets.

Chuck and rump roasts and sirlion and porterhouse steaks are other attractive beef features.

Area Reserve Unit Sponsors Public Display Saturday

The local U. S. Army Reserve unit of Kingston will sponsor a public display on Armed Forces Day, Saturday.

The 854th Engineer Battalion is planning to celebrate the occasion between the hours of 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. at the parking lot of the Rondout National Bank, which is located on the corner of Broadway and Henry Street, Kingston.

A Presidential Proclamation of March 5, 1957, proclaimed the third Saturday in May of each year as Armed Forces Day. So appropriate was the slogan of the 1953 observance—Power for Peace—that it has been retained each year since.

The local engineer battalion will display about a dozen different aspects of its capabilities. Also participating will be local organizations and programs related to the defense effort.

Leaders of Kingston area industries and well-known local figures are expected to attend. The public is urged to attend and support the efforts of their citizen soldiers.

Chopstick Chicken Is 'Hearty' Fare

GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

When the girls get together to hear the glad news of a wedding announcement, or when they give a shower for the bride-to-be, here's a delicate, different and appropriate dish to serve. Prepare it in a heart-shaped casserole, easily made of heavy-duty foil.

For the heart-shaped casserole, use sturdy cardboard. Heart should be 8¼ inches from the bottom tip, to the top depression, and 8¼ inches across the widest portion. Place cardboard heart between two sheets of super-strength heavy duty aluminum foil. Turn up the foil around the edges of the cutouts to make a 1½-inch deep casserole.

Chopstick Chicken Casserole (6 Servings)

Two 10½-ounce cans cream of mushroom soup, ½ cup water, ½ cup water, ⅓-ounce can chow mein noodles, 2 cups thinly sliced celery, 1 cup salted cashews, ⅓ cup chopped onion, dash pepper. 1 11-ounce can mandarin oranges, drained.

Combine soup, water; blend well. Reserve ½ cup chow mein noodles for top of casserole. Add remaining noodles to soup mixture, along with chicken, celery, cashews, onion, pepper; toss lightly. Spoon into heart-shaped foil pan. Sprinkle reserved noodles over top. Bake 20 to 25 minutes at 375 degrees F. Garnish with mandarin orange sections. Serve in heart-shaped casserole.

Proper Way to Lose Trick

If North had bid three diamonds instead of three spades, South probably would have gone to three no-trump. Right or wrong, North did jump to three spades and South continued to the spade game.

Dummy's queen of clubs held the first trick and it was up to South to plan his play. His first consideration was the trump suit and he decided that West's heart overcall plus the club lead indicated that he was likely to be short in spades. South, therefore, cashed dummy's king of trumps, led the nine and let it ride. When West showed out South picked up the rest of the trumps and went after the diamonds.

He had to lose one diamond trick, but there was a right way and a wrong way to go about losing it, and South chose the right way.

He went over to dummy with the ace of clubs, led a low diamond and played his ten.

West was in with the queen, but could do nothing about beating the contract. South was sure to be able to discard two hearts on dummy's long diamonds.

Navy Lists New Leave Policy for Grads, Others

The Navy Recruiting Office in Kingston has received notice on a new advanced leave policy for June graduates and all reenlistments.

The Navy Department has announced that the new program is inaugurated to enlist high school seniors anytime after June 18 and to grant them an immediate leave of up to 11 days so that they may still be present for their graduation. Under the new policy, enlistees will receive their full pay, allowances and benefits starting on the day they enlist and still be able to attend high school graduation exercises prior to leaving for recruit training.

For all reenlistees, the 30 day advanced leave may still be given upon request if reenlistment is effected prior to Aug. 31.

In addition to the 11 days advanced leave, all June graduates are being guaranteed a technical trade school in the field of their choice, providing they qualify both physically and mentally. This guarantee is given to the applicant, in writing, at his request.

The local Navy recruiting office in Kingston is open five days a week from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I had seen some of the other girls try to hang onto their careers after they had started to slide. I vowed that would never happen to me. So when I got married, it was very easy to quit."

This was Billie Dove explaining why she ended her movie career at the height of her stardom almost 30 years ago. One of the screen's greatest beauties, she married socialite Robert Kenaston and never returned to films—until now.

Any American male who admits to middle age will recall the stunning looks of Billie Dove. She was Douglas Fairbanks' leading lady in "The Black Pirate," and starred in such films as "The Yellow Lily," "American Beauty" "The Heart of a Follies Girl" and "The Stolen Bride."

There is good news for us aging males: Billie Dove is still a stunner. The hair is white now, but the face is still smooth and faultless, the figure trim, the ankles slim.

The story of her return to films is a curious tale, but she is willing to swear on a Bible that it is true.

She entered a contest and won a movie role.

"I swear that is the way it happened," she said. "It's almost too unbelievable to be true, but it is."

Last year Columbia Studios conducted a jingle contest to plug "Gidget Goes Hawaiian." The prize was to be a trip to Hawaii to appear in the new film "Diamond Head."

Miss Dove, whose verse has appeared in national magazines, entered the contest and thought no more about it. One day she was talking to a friend at the Kenastons' Palm Springs house. The friend asked if she ever thought about returning to films.

"Oh, I suppose I might if there were something that interested me," Miss Dove remarked. "I never announced that I was retiring, because I think that actors who do so and then return later look rather silly.

"But honestly, going back is one decision I hope I never have to make."

A few minutes later, her mother entered with a letter from Columbia. Miss Dove looked at it and exclaimed: "Oh, dear, it looks as if I'll have to make that decision!"

Columbia wanted her to play a role, but she declined for a token appearance in a luau scene at the studio this week—"just enough to keep it honest."

5 From Kingston Attend NY Wing CAP Conference

Last weekend a New York Wing Conference of Civil Air Patrol, Auxiliary of the United States Air Force, was held in Binghamton. Those attending from the Kingston Composite Squadron were Maj. Sidney Lane, squadron commander, and Capt. Julia Lane, Capt. Marian Radcliffe, Lt. Wesley Hogan and Lt. Victor Osborn.

The morning session which convened at 10 consisted of a general assembly at which time Col. Jess Strauss, wing commander, stressed the importance of CAP communications, rescue and cooperation with Civil Defense. In this last year many members have been trained in first aid, radio procedures, and radiological monitoring. Personnel have also received Air Force training through the correspondence courses offered by the Extension Course Institute from Gunter Air Force Base.

Individual workshop sessions were held in the afternoon so that specific problems, according to job assignments, could be worked out.

This wing conference is held annually in different sections of the state so that new regulations and procedures may be explained and carried out.

Why We Say--

USE INITIALS: We now abreviate projects with initials, but in the 17th century it was common merely to shorten words. That's how "mob" got started. It is a shortened form of the Latin "mobile vulgus," which meant the fickle throng. Vulgus also meant the common people, soon turning into our popular word vulgar.

Hudson Doctor Elected

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dr. Caldwell B. Esselstyn, a Hudson, N.Y., physician who is retiring as president of the Group Health Insurance Association of America, has been elected to the new post of chairman of the association's board of directors.

The election took place Wednesday at the closing session of the organization's 12th annual convention.

The association also endorsed financing medical care for the aged through the Social Security program. The position constituted support for the Kennedy administration's controversial medicare bill now before Congress.

Injuries Fatal To Florida Man, Hurt on May 8

NEWBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — A Florida motorist critically injured May 8 in an accident on the New York State Thruway here died today in St. Luke's Hospital.

Police said the victim, Hannes N. Vuoris, 64, of Lamana, Fla., was attempting to back his car from the Thruway into an entrance ramp when it was struck by a truck.

Arsenal to Hire Trainees as Part Of New Program

Watervliet Arsenal, in cooperation with area high school authorities, is launching a new machine tool operator trainee program that will serve the double purpose of providing job opportunities for recent high school graduates, and also help fill the Arsenal's continuing need for qualified shop personnel. It is expected that 25 to 50 trainees will be hired by the Arsenal under the new program.

John E. Benson Jr., Arsenal civilian personnel officer, outlined details of the plan at a meeting of area high school superintendents, guidance counsellors and directors who will advise eligible prospective graduates of the opportunity. Communities represented at the meeting included: Troy, Watervliet, Waterford, Schenectady, North Colonie, Rensselaer and East Greenbush.

Open to HS Graduates

As approved by the U. S. Civil Service Commission, the trainee program is open to high school graduates who are 18 years of age at the time of application. There is no experience requirement. Applications close June 1.

Applicants will take a written examination testing their abilities in solving problems in measurement, percentage, ratio and proportion, scaling, etc.; knowledge and understanding of mechanical principles and devices, and of basic physical science; and knowledge of English usage.

Successful applicants will be placed on a Civil Service register from which 25 to 50 will be selected by the Arsenal as machine tool operator trainees at a starting hourly wage of $1.90 (W-1). Upon completion of six months of training, the trainee will be promoted to grade W-6, paying $2.25 hourly.

The six-months program will consist of both on-the-job training and classroom instruction in the basics of trade tasks—shop math, blueprint reading, measuring instruments etc., and in the machinery and materials of the trade.

The trainees will be eligible for further advancement after 12 to 18 months when they will be considered for the Arsenal's machine tool operator development program which consists of three years training with eventual designation as full-fledged machinist.

Further details on the program may be obtained at the Civilian Personnel Office, Watervleit Arsenal.

The next race is a special one with birds from Kingston and Middletown clubs. It will be 350 miles and is slated this Sunday.

Must Start in Home

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The solution to problems involving alcoholic beverages must come primarily "from the home and other social forces," a state senator who heads a study of New York State's minimum drinking age says.

Sen. John J. Marchi, R-Staten Island, told the National Conference of State Liquor Administrators Wednesday that such problems "will never be fully resolved by government."

Marchi is chairman of New York's Joint Legislative Committee on Revision of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Law. The committee this year is concentrating on the question of raising the state's minimum legal drinking age from 18 to 21.

Last weekend a New York Wing Conference of Civil Air Patrol, Auxiliary of the United States Air Force, was held in Binghamton. Those attending from the Kingston Composite Squadron were Maj. Sidney Lane, squadron commander, and Capt. Julia Lane, Capt. Marian Radcliffe, Lt. Wesley Hogan and Lt. Victor Osborn.

The morning session which convened at 10 consisted of a general assembly at which time Col. Jess Strauss, wing commander, stressed the importance of CAP communications, rescue and cooperation with Civil Defense. In this last year many members have been trained in first aid, radio procedures, and radiological monitoring. Personnel have also received Air Force training through the correspondence courses offered by the Extension Course Institute from Gunter Air Force Base.

Individual workshop sessions were held in the afternoon so that specific problems, according to job assignments, could be worked out.

This wing conference is held annually in different sections of the state so that new regulations and procedures may be explained and carried out.

Hudson Doctor Elected

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dr. Caldwell B. Esselstyn, a Hudson, N.Y., physician who is retiring as president of the Group Health Insurance Association of America, has been elected to the new post of chairman of the association's board of directors.

The association also endorsed financing medical care for the aged through the Social Security program. The position constituted support for the Kennedy administration's controversial medicare bill now before Congress.

Watervliet Arsenal, in cooperation with area high school authorities, is launching a new machine tool operator trainee program that will serve the double purpose of providing job opportunities for recent high school graduates, and also help fill the Arsenal's continuing need for qualified shop personnel. It is expected that 25 to 50 trainees will be hired by the Arsenal under the new program.

John E. Benson Jr., Arsenal civilian personnel officer, outlined details of the plan at a meeting of area high school superintendents, guidance counselors and directors who will advise eligible prospective graduates of the opportunity. Communities represented at the meeting included: Troy, Watervliet, Waterford, Schenectady, North Colonie, Rensselaer and East Greenbush.

Open to HS Graduates

As approved by the U. S. Civil Service Commission, the trainee program is open to high school graduates who are 18 years of age at the time of application. There is no experience requirement. Applications close June 1.

Applicants will take a written examination testing their abilities in solving problems in measurement, percentage, ratio and proportion, scaling, etc.; knowledge and understanding of mechanical principles and devices, and of basic physical science; and knowledge of English usage.

Successful applicants will be placed on a Civil Service register from which 25 to 50 will be selected by the Arsenal as machine tool operator trainees at a starting hourly wage of $1.90 (W-1). Upon completion of six months of training, the trainee will be promoted to grade W-6, paying $2.25 hourly.

The six-months program will consist of both on-the-job training and classroom instruction in the basics of trade tasks—shop math, blueprint reading, measuring instruments etc., and in the machinery and materials of the trade.

The trainees will be eligible for further advancement after 12 to 18 months when they will be considered for the Arsenal's machine tool operator development program which consists of three years training with eventual designation as full-fledged machinist.

Must Start in Home

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The solution to problems involving alcoholic beverages must come primarily "from the home and other social forces," a state senator who heads a study of New York State's minimum drinking age says.

Sen. John J. Marchi, R-Staten Island, told the National Conference of State Liquor Administrators Wednesday that such problems "will never be fully resolved by government."

Marchi is chairman of New York's Joint Legislative Committee on Revision of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Law. The committee this year is concentrating on the question of raising the state's minimum legal drinking age from 18 to 21.

USE INITIALS: We now abreviate projects with initials, but in the 17th century it was common merely to shorten words. That's how "mob" got started. It is a shortened form of the Latin "mobile vulgus," which meant the fickle throng. Vulgus also meant the common people, soon turning into our popular word vulgar.

Tactics Likely to Be Same in Push for Medicare

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — When President Kennedy talks on television and radio Sunday about medical care for the aged it will be the start of the big push for his program and a vivid insight into a way he handles Congress.

For almost a decade — ever since President Truman left — there have been no brawls between the White House and senators and representatives.

President Eisenhower, while sometimes critical of the Democrats as a party, followed an opposite technique for eight years in dealing with individual members of Congress in both parties.

Same System as Ike's

He didn't attack or criticize individually. Kennedy pursues the same system. Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, because that's the way he operated in the Senate, probably would have done likewise if he were president.

Whether Eisenhower was, or Johnson is, an influence on Kennedy in his velvet-glove approach is not clear. Probably not. After 14 years in Congress himself, Kennedy could be expected to operate this way. It's his way.

But just because medical care for the aged is one of his major programs and one of those for which he will fight hardest, his tactics in pressing it illuminate a number of things about his presidency.

By avoiding head-on clashes with individual members of Congress who oppose him on one issue, he puts no personal reason in the way of their support on other programs where they have no particular stake or feeling.

Careful Handling Vital

For example: Some of the Southern Democrats who wrecked his few civil rights measures will be with him in other fields but probably wouldn't be if he had gone out of his way to jab at them on civil rights. He didn't.

Or, to take a specific example: Kennedy has been very careful and gentle with Rep. Wilbur Mills, Arkansas Democrat and chairman of the very powerful House Ways and Means Committee.

Mills has been a major stumbling block to Kennedy in the House on his medical care bill. But you hear no White House attacks on Mills.

The Kennedy administration feels Mills has been a great help on other issues and will be again on still more when the medical care issue is out of the way. So the administration is trying to get around him, not through him.

Whether all this adds up to the ideal way of handling Congress is a matter of Kennedy's political judgment. It could be argued that if Kennedy is really anxious to get through all the programs he tells Congress he wants he should be willing to fight hard for all of them.

4-Year Judging His Aim

If he gets his special major items, or some of them, through this year, they'll be out of the way. Next year he can be expected to put his weight behind some other special projects while merely giving his blessing to others.

This would indicate Kennedy is hoping to be judged at the end of his four years on his total performance instead of on a year-by-year reckoning of hits and misses.

That's the long view but it seems to be the one he has.

He and his aides have been laying the groundwork for a real effort on medical care. The big drive starts next Sunday when he talks in New York's Madison Square Garden.

Ruling Due Today On Fine Print

LEWISBURG, Pa. (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Frederick V. Follmer rules today whether some defense documents may be admitted as evidence in support of the government at the income tax evasion trial of former Gov. John S. Fine and Donald P. Morgan.

The papers consist of scrap notes and penciled drafts of Fine's tax returns for 1955-56-57—years in which the government alleges the defendants attempted to evade $45,554 of Fine's income taxes.

The defense had the papers marked for identification while cross examining Fine's accountant, Paul J. Griesmer, at the start of the trial now entering its seventh day.

Federal prosecutors attempted then to seize the papers as government evidence but Follmer put them off for the time being.

When the government made another effort to introduce them Wednesday, defense co-counsel Arthur A. Maguire objected strenuously.

Prosecutor John Burke retorted that the defense "overreached itself by offering the exhibits."

Follmer interrupted the attorneys and asked Burke: "Are you saying these are a windfall?"

"Cross examination frequently produces windfalls," Burke said with a smile, adding:

"Until they were brought up in cross examination we had no legal way in the world to get them."

Trouble in This Paradise Of Socialized Medicine

BY TOM A. CULLEN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

LONDON, (NEA) — There's trouble in this island paradise of socialized medicine. Britain's National Health Service shows signs of coming apart at the seams.

Main cause is an acute shortage of doctors. Apparently disgusted with the health service, doctors are leaving Britain to take up better paying jobs overseas.

Statistics show that one-third of the British doctors qualifying today are emigrating overseas. This is five times the prewar rate of emigration.

If the present exodus continues, the health service may grind to a standstill by 1970, it is freely predicted here.

As it is, all that keeps some British hospitals open are the foreign doctors—Indians, Pakistanis, Egyptians, Israelis, Africans, Maltese and Turks—who come here for training and experience.

(Of course, this problem is not peculiar to Britain. Many U. S. hospitals are able to provide service only because of the presence of thousands of interns and residents from abroad.)

Current estimates show that over 40 percent of the junior hospital staffs in Britain are from abroad. Many of these foreigners speak little or no English, and at least one hospital employs a psychiatrist who needs an interpreter to communicate with his patients.

Britain is hoping that by joining the Common Market she may ease her problem. For example, Italy has a surplus of doctors, some of whom might welcome the opportunity to practice in Britain.

Better pay is the chief reason why so many doctors are leaving Britain to practice abroad. The average family doctor here earns about $7,000 a year, which is about half what he could earn overseas.

One Chicago hospital offers free passage for newly-qualified doctors and their wives, a large salary plus free furnished home, free meals and laundry.

Many of them are discusted with the National Health Service and its "conveyor belt" methods. They protest that they are not allowed to practice medicine at the high standards they have been taught.

Because of the doctor shortage, they are encouraged to carry caseloads of up to 3,500 patients. During the winter months they may see as many as 80 patients a day. The average time given to an examination is five minutes instead of 15.

The temptation is to pass the buck: to make out prescriptions just to get rid of the patient, or to pass him on for an examination to an already overtaxed hospital.

"Medicine in Britain is a mess," warns the British Medical Journal. Dr. Donald Johnson, a member of the House of Commons, calls it a "Frankenstein monster," speaks of its grotesque and ramshackle administrative structure."

Lack of educational and training facilities is partly responsible for the present doctor shortage. Britain has built no new medical schools in the past 60 years, and there are long waiting lists for openings in the existing schools.

This year only 1,691 doctors will qualify, the lowest number since the war.

One indication that socialized medicine is breaking down here is the rush of people to take out private health insurance. These include a quarter of the doctors, who have insured themselves and their families for private hospital treatment.

War Orphans May Now Obtain N. Y., U. S. School Aid

Charles Culver, NYS veteran counselor, NYS Division of Veterans Affairs and John B. Tyler, director, Ulster County Veterans Service Agency, report that effective May 1, it is no longer necessary for an eligible child of a deceased veteran to choose between a New York State Regents Scholarship and the U.S. War Orphans Assistance which is administered under the federal laws.

In effect, an eligible child will be able to receive simultaneously the benefits under the War Orphans Assistance Program and the New York York State Regents Scholarship Program, provided he or she meets other necessary qualifications.

Information concerning education and training, pension, insurance, burial benefits, hospitalization, etc., may be obtained by contacting Culver or Tyler at 32 Main Street, Monday through Friday, 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Gets Indefinite Term In Death of Child

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Henry C. Mallory, 21, was sentenced to an indefinite term in the Elmira Reformatory after he pleaded guilty Wednesday to a charge of second-degree assault in the fatal beating of his 2½-year-old son.

Police said Mallory and the boy's mother, Sarah A. Leigh, 24, admitted beating the child, Henry Jr., with a belt on several occasions to discipline him.

A pathologist reported that the boy's body bore 200 scars at the time of his death.

Mallory had been charged with first - degree manslaughter, but County Judge Martin Schenck permitted him to plead guilty to the reduced charge.

Miss Leigh pleaded guilty last week to first-degree manslaughter and was sentenced to serve a 4-to-10-year term at Westfield State Farm.

Need Volunteers For Library Fair

Volunteers are urgently needed to make our Woodstock Library Fair the exciting and fruitful event it has been for the last 35 years.

Seventeen selfless ladies presided over by the 1962 fair chairman, Mrs. Percy Lyon, met Monday evening to plan the campaign strategy. Many interesting projects and ideas are in the works. The great expectations grand prize will be a dashing Datsun automobile. The apron table will have originally crafted wrap-around skirts and the entertainment program with very well known personalities will be a big surprise.

Mrs. Monroe Longendyke needs workers to help at the Library Fair Collection Center (in back of the Library), and people with station wagons or trucks are desperately needed to pick up contributions—especially strong men to heft the big things.

The Collection Center is open through the month of May on Saturdays from 10 to 12 a. m. and 1:30 to 4:30 p. m. During June the Center will be open Monday, Tuesday and Saturday at the same hours. Telephone Mrs. Percy Lyon at ORiole 9-6301 or Mrs. Monroe Longendyke at ORiole 9-9024 to make arrangements, or just present yourself during open hours at the Collection Center ready to work and in full battle dress.

Poppy Days Will Be Held May 19 and 26

Woodstock American Legion Auxiliary 1026 has announced that Saturday, May 19 and Saturday, May 26 will be Poppy Days in Woodstock.

Mrs. Marge Styles, chairman of the Poppy Committee, will be busy with her volunteer workers and junior members selling poppies throughout the streets of the town.

All funds received from the observance of Poppy Days will go directly to aid local disabled veterans or their families.

Plan Publication

Ten students in the Woodstock area have organized the WSS (Woodstock Student Sane). Temporary officers include: Monelle Malkine, chairman; Miriam Villchur, secretary; Peter Moncure, treasurer. One of the first projects will be the publishing of a newspaper, "Student Voice," which will include factual and editorial articles. It is expected to be published in two or three weeks. Questions concerning the group and its projects should be sent to "Student Voice," care of Peter Moncure, P.O. Box 272, Woodstock.

Woodstock Guild Craft Exhibit

The Woodstock Historical Society calls attention of area residents to the craft exhibit in the windows of the Kingston Savings Bank until May 24.

This exhibit arranged by the Woodstock Guild of Craftsmen shows some of the work of the current Guild members. It also includes some examples of older Woodstock craft work from the work shops of Byrdcliffe before World War I.

These highly skilled craftsmen are carrying on today a tradition of Woodstock crafts going back to the early days of the last century. The women of Woodstock turned out beautiful quilts and other woven materials while the blacksmiths, carpenters and wood turners used their spare time to make decorative hardware cabinets and fancy turnings for furniture.

In addition the glass blowers from the glass factories in Bristol (Shady) made decorative pitchers, bowl and stem glasses in their spare time or to use up the end of a glass batch. Later the quarrymen used their spare time to make bowls and other useful, long wearing objects from pieces of bluestone.

The work shops of Byrdcliffe, founded partly on the ideas of William Morris, expanded Woodstock crafts into leather work, ceramics, printing, furniture and other arts and for a while their products were sold in fashionable New York stores. But, their products couldn't compete with mass production products and the self-supporting feature of Byrdcliffe collapsed.

for a war that could spill over that country's borders. U.S. officials were hopeful that the American show of force would deter the so far victorious pro-Communist rebels and that the leaders of the country's three factions would agree on a coalition government.

Greeted by American diplomatic and military officials and Marshal Dawee Chullasapa, chief of staff of Thailand's armed forces, the first batch of 1,400 U.S. Marines landed at Bangkok's port district of Klong Toey from the LSD (landing ship dock) Point Defiance and the attack transport Navarro.

Another 400 aboard the carrier Valley Forge were flown by helicopters to Bangkok's Don Muang Airport.

U.S. C130 Hercules transports were warmed up to rush the Marines to bases in northeast Thailand to start patrolling along the Mekong River nearby between Thailand and Laos.

Jungle Expert on Way

Led by Lt. Col. Fred A. Steele of Ventura, Calif., the Marine task force will bolster a 1,300-man American Army combat group already in Thailand since the SEATO maneuvers here two weeks ago. That group was to be strengthened by another 700 men from Hawaii and Okinawa, and U.S. Army, Marine and Air Forces in Thailand will total about 5,000 men.

Lt. Gen. James L. Richardson, jungle warfare expert and deputy chief of U.S. Army forces in the Pacific, arrived in Saigon, South Viet Nam, on his way to Bangkok to take command of the American forces in Thailand. In Saigon he conferred with Gen. Paul D. Harkins, who heads U.S. forces in both Viet Nam and Thailand.

The American Marines and infantrymen are expected to be strung out along a 500-mile arc running from Udon, a town just below the Laotian capital of Vientiane, and east and south to Ubon, across from the southern part of Laos near Cambodia. Both Udon and Ubon have airports and are on rail lines to Bangkok.

The American invasion-by-invitation of this ancient land of Buddhist temples, smiling people and rich rice fields went off smoothly.

Maj. W. R. Affleck, 38, of Buford, S.C., was asked how long the Marines expected to be in Thailand. "As long as we are needed," he replied tersely.

Royal Thai army trucks rushed the Marines to Don Muang Airport where they joined the group being airlifted from the carrier Valley Forge.

Within five hours the first big turboprop transport took off with Marines for the rail and highway center of Korat, about 180 miles northeast of Bangkok.

A spokesman said the airlift out of Bangkok may take up to two days.

Korat, a staging center for further movement north, has rail lines to Nongkai, on the Laotian border in the north, and to Ubon, a large town near the frontier northeast of Bangkok.

Movement of the Marines to the northeast—instead of to the northwest where the pro-Communist Pathet Lao forces drove closest to the Thai border—was seen in Bangkok as an attempt to demonstrate U.S. intentions of avoiding anything resembling aggressive action.

The swift action by President Kennedy in sending troops to stand by worried Thailand drew the approval of other nations in the anti-Communist Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Macmillan, Aides Meet

British Prime Minister Macmillan met Wednesday night with his defense committee of senior cabinet ministers and military chiefs. Macmillan was expected to tell Parliament later today that Britain is ready to send about 200 men to Thailand. Britain has 600 crack Marine commandos aboard the aircraft carrier Bulwark at Jessleton, North Borneo, about 48 hours from Bangkok.

Australian Foreign Minister Sir Garfield Barwick told his Parliament Australia might also send regular army troops to Thailand if the Thais ask for military aid.

France, Pakistan and the Philippines are the other members of the eight-nation SEATO alliance. The Philippines had previously pressed for intervention in Laos when serious fighting there first flared up. France was against any such move at that time.

No Reports of Fighting

There were no reports of fighting in Laos since the royal forces in Houei Sai fled in panic across the Mekong River into Thailand a week ago.

U.S. officials in Washington still pinned their hopes for peace on resumption of political negotiations between the conservative, neutralist and pro-Communist factions in Laos.

The United States was reported considering resuming its monthly payment of $3 million to pay the expenses of the right-wing Vientiane government of Premier Prince Boun Oum. But indications in Washington were that the Kennedy administration would demand Boun Oum dump his chief deputy and the real power in the regime, Gen. Phoumi Nosavan.

Fatal Error in Laos: Trusting Communists

By LEON DENNEN
Newspaper Enterprise Analyst

NEW YORK—(NEA)—There is an old lesson to be learned from the post mortems on the new crisis in Laos. The crucial fact is, of course, that the Communists never intended to honor the East-West agreements reached in Geneva in 1961.

The United States had compelling logistic reasons for seeking to terminate hostilities in the little Southeast Asian kingdom with a coalition government of the three fighting princes — Communist, neutralist and anti-Communist. As President Kennedy made it clear, "it was difficult to continue to hold lines" in an area which was "in some cases exposed" and subject to constant pressure.

To be sure, it was a dubious formula since it implied trust in Nikita Khrushchev's word. It ignored the Soviet Premier's firm and oft-repeated policy calling for "wars of national liberation."

But even had Moscow — for once — decided to uphold an agreement with the West, this could not guarantee its observance by Red China and its satellites in Communist North Viet Nam and Pathet Lao.

There was never doubt among specialists on communism that the Vietnamese and Pathet Lao forces, trained and supplied by Mao Tse-tung's agents, used the endless Geneva negotiations and the cease-fire agreements to enhance their positions in Laos. Mao Tse-tung used this tactic against Chiang Kai-shek as he seized power in China.

As long ago as last July, Prince Boun Oum, the anti-Communist Premier of Laos, warned that the Reds were abusing the cease-fire to conquer more territory.

The Premier is now derided by some of President Kennedy's advisers on Southeast Asia as inept, stubborn, and an incorrigible "rightist." Nevertheless, for all his glaring faults, Boun Oum saw the nature of Red aggression more clearly than the State Department.

Averell Harriman, Assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern Affairs, was clearly in error when he suggested that there were many places in the world where anti-Communists triumphed over Communists after joining them in coalition governments. Until the very debacle, Harriman told the President that "That may well be the case in Laos."

It is one thing to assess a perilous strategic situation as soberly as President Kennedy did. It is quite another matter to delude oneself and others by tailoring hard facts to fit the situation.

Harriman would be hard-pressed to name one nation where in the past 45 years—anti-Communists who formed coalitions with the Reds were not doomed to death, exile or imprisonment. This was the fate of Chiang Kai-shek in China and of the democratic leaders in East Europe now under Soviet domination. It was certainly true in Poland and Romania after the 1945 Yalta agreement.

Harriman himself—then acting as President Roosevelt's emissary—helped engineer some of the coalition regimes that paved the way for the Red takeover.

Exiled East European democratic leaders now in the United States see a close parallel between Ambassador Harriman's role in their countries in 1945 and 1946 and his current diplomacy in Laos. The old Yalta cast seems to be repeating history in the new Southeast Asian setting.

The Laos crisis represents for the free world much more than the loss of—what Harriman so undiplomatically described — a "not very attractive piece of real estate with about 2 million people." (Couldn't the same thing be said one day of Soviet-encircled West Berlin which also has about 2 million inhabitants?) For in opening Pandora's box of Red aggression by relying on the weak reed of "coalition governments" the entire perimeter of the West's defense in the Pacific is threatened.

Boyce Car Is Stolen

Police were notified early this afternoon that the car of Harold Boyce, of Port Ewen, was stolen. It had been driven to 18½ East St. James Street, Kingston, by Dennis Boyce, 20, who was on his lunch hour, and parked there at about 12:10 p. m. the report said.

The U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation labeled robbery as the most significant crime of 1960.

SEC Is Probing Non-Public Data On Mutual Funds

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Securities and Exchange Commission says it is investigating the possibility that some mutual fund insiders are profiting from data not available to the public.

The SEC said it was distributing a special questionnaire to 50 unnamed mutual funds. It wants the names of all persons who might have access to advance information about changes in the stock portfolios of the funds.

Since mutual funds often buy or sell stocks in large quantities that influence prices, and because they benefit from costly research advice, an insider who knew in advance of a pending transaction might be able to cash in on his knowledge.

The SEC said that, as part of its broad investigation of the securities industry, it will make a spot check later of personal stock dealings by those named in the questionnaires returned by the 50 funds.

To facilitate the check, the funds are being asked to report all purchases and sales made between Dec. 1, 1960, and June 30, 1961.

Weather Doubtful

colm Scott Carpenter Sr. At his home in Palmer Lake, Colo., the elder Carpenter recalled his son's first flight into space — as a year-old baby. The future astronaut climbed from his crib, tumbled into space and hit head on a radiator. He has a small scar over his left eye to show for that outing.

The elder Carpenter plans to watch his son's flight on television and said he is not especially worried about it.

"Our American team values human life and they won't let the boys go up until every contingency imaginable is taken care of," he said.

Wife to Watch From Beach

Presumably, Carpenter will go into seclusion in Hangar S with only telephone contact with his pretty wife, Rene. The blonde mother of the four Carpenter children is staying at a private home in nearby Cocoa Beach.

She came here earlier this week from the family home at Langley Air Force Base, Va. She said she prefers to watch the beginning of her husband's flight from the beach.

"There's nothing at all like it," she said, "to stand on the beach and see it go up — and the prayerful attitude of the crowd."

She will be the first of the astronauts' wives to be in the Cape area to watch her husband launched into space.

Employe Recognition Day At Benedictine Hospital

Benedictine Hospital employes completing five, 10, 15, 20, 25 and more years of service were honored by the hospital at its second annual employe Recognition Day. Edwin B. Bolz, associate administrator, paid tribute to the employes receiving the awards. He stated that with the new names added to the list of employes completing five years of service to the hospital and the community it serves, 25 per cent of the entire working force at the hospital have completed five or more years of service.

Bolz said that hospital care is inescapably "personal care." The Benedictine Hospital strives in every way possible to meet the physical, personal, emotional and spiritual needs of each patient. "When new scientific services are perfected they will be added to our hospital against the time when they will save a human life. But scientific services will never replace the compassionate understanding and the individual care so necessary to each patient's speedy recovery," he declared.

He concluded, "It is for this reason that the Board of Directors and Administration of the Benedictine Hospital are deeply and justly proud of the service rendered by this large segment of loyal employes."

Four employes having 25 and more years of service received awards of U. S. Government Bonds, citations and pins for service. They were Miss Mary Zoda, Mrs. Germaine Callahan, Miss Anastasia Henderson and John Wilson.

Mrs. Anna Woods received a gold award for the completion of 20 years of service.

Mrs. Josephine Jones received a special award for the completion of 18 years of service.

The employes receiving silver awards for 15 years of service were Miss Katheryn McGrane and Mrs. Theresa Thies.

Fourteen other employes receiving silver awards for completing five years of employment were: Theresa DeFillipes, Katherine Salmi, Marie Bruck, Helen Longendyke, Catherine Redmond, Jadwiga Brzytwa, Elizabeth Reis, Emilie Hankh, Mary McNamara, Audrey McCullough, Margaret Kearney, Ruth Jones, Margaret Emmerling and Helen Staeth.

A special award was given to Ralph Mitchell, hospital laundry manager. It was a framed certificate from the Catholic Hospital Association in cooperation with St. Louis University, indicating attendance and participation in the program of continuing education on laundry service, April 9-13, 1962 in St. Louis, Missouri. The certificate was signed by Father John J. Flanagan, S.J., executive director of the Catholic Hospital Association.

Among the special guests present for the award presentation was Rev. Mother Cornelia, Mother Superior of the Benedictine Sisters, who traveled from Elizabeth, New Jersey Motherhouse, especially to be present at the celebration.

The other special guests present were—Dr. Robert McCaig, president of the Medical Staff of the Benedictine Hospital; James Dwyer, George Rusk, J. Ellis Briggs and Adrian Kaplan, all members of the Hospital's Lay Advisory Board. Mrs. William Cranston, president of the Benedictine Hospital Women's Auxiliary, also was present representing the Auxiliary.

Dr. McCaig stated that "It was a pleasure to help pass around the laurels when they are so richly deserved. I am glad on behalf of the Medical Staff to extend to you, the employes being honored, the staff's heartiest congratulations. We are grateful for your long and faithful service. It is you people that make our hospital something more than a building with rooms and beds. Your spirit and unselfish dedication has made our institution a powerfully effective force for good in the community."

Dr. McCaig concluded, "It is not the Medical Staff that gives this hospital its reputation, it is you, the people in the nursing service, the kitchen and diagnostic facilities. Your constant contact with our patients, your kindness, sympathy and forebearance in your service to the patient, are the things the patients always remember.

"Congratulations to all the employes of the Benedictine Hospital and there is no greater wish we can express as the Sisters of Saint Benedict that God may bless each and every one of you with His choice blessings—give you health and strength to assist us in maintaining our Benedictine Hospital. We are few but at present our Sisters are in key positions where their influence, interest and encouragement is experienced each day even though sometimes unconsciously. The Benedictine order being the oldest order in the church is characteristic of maintaining family spirit. All of you are part of this Benedictine family. We are all working toward the same goal."

"The society at large is changing and we too must change our line of organization. The catholic layman is here to work with us. We as religious have a special duty to fulfill and that is the Apostolate. The layman functions in many other capacities where religious would not be able to function. Benedictine has been one of the first hospitals to recognize the wishes of our late Pope in utilizing the abilities of our Catholic Layman so Mr. Bolz has functioned in the past years and we are all aware of his untiring efforts and his accomplishments in behalf of the Benedictine Hospital."

"Reverend Mother has given me the privilege to work as co-administrator with Mr. Bolz so we all in the spirit of St. Benedict will continue to work together attempting to live our motto—'That in all things may God be glorified.'"

Workers Return

Wednesday to include almost 700 of the 1,800 employes.

Hilton Goes to Bar

Into the breach stepped Conrad Hilton, president of the Hilton Hotel chain, treasurer Frank Constantine, and national sales representative John Counts.

Hilton moved behind the bar in the Starlight Roof and poured a bourbon and water for Gov. Edwin L. Mechem of New Mexico.

Constantine filled in as a waiter and later as a bartender.

Counts handled the emergency sandwich production line.

Only three of the Waldorf's 50 chefs were on duty. All seven of the hotel's public restaurants were shut down. Of four bars, only one was open.

The registered guests, about 1,600 of them, seemed to be taking it all in good humor. They toted their own bags and exchanged badinage with the lady bellhops and elevator operators, all of them recruited from other departments. Only about half the maids stayed on the job, slowing that service considerably.

The dispute is in the hands of an impartial arbitrator, who says it may be several days before a decision is reached.

Won't Condone Stoppages

Noting that the union employes have a no-strike contract, management said Wednesday it "cannot and will not condone wildcat stoppages."

Not affected by the strike was the Waldorf Towers, the upper-level suites occupied as permanent residences by such notables as former President Herbert Hoover and Gen. Douglas MacArthur. Its facilities are separate from the rest of the hotel.

Last Sunday night waiters in the grand ballroom walked out for 90 minutes in a protest against the plate-passing system for tips at some private banquets. They demanded an automatic 12 per cent tip on the hotel's receipts for each serving. Most tips at the hotel are handled in this manner, but some organizations do not arrange it that way, and waiters must pass the plate.

On Monday, the hotel dismissed eight waiters. Then hundreds of other employes walked out in sympathy, pledging not to return until the eight were reinstated.

Robberies reported to U.S. city police departments in 1960 increased 17.3 per cent over the preceding year.

Marines Are . . .

for a war that could spill over that country's borders. U.S. officials were hopeful that the American show of force would deter the so far victorious pro-Communist rebels and that the leaders of the country's three factions would agree on a coalition government.

Greeted by American diplomatic and military officials and Marshal Dawee Chullasapa, chief of staff of Thailand's armed forces, the first batch of 1,400 U.S. Marines landed at Bangkok's port district of Klong Toey from the LSD (landing ship dock) Point Defiance and the attack transport Navarro.

Another 400 aboard the carrier Valley Forge were flown by helicopters to Bangkok's Don Muang Airport.

U.S. C130 Hercules transports were warmed up to rush the Marines to bases in northeast Thailand to start patrolling along the Mekong River nearby between Thailand and Laos.

Jungle Expert on Way

Led by Lt. Col. Fred A. Steele of Ventura, Calif., the Marine task force will bolster a 1,300-man American Army combat group already in Thailand since the SEATO maneuvers here two weeks ago. That group was to be strengthened by another 700 men from Hawaii and Okinawa, and U.S. Army, Marine and Air Forces in Thailand will total about 5,000 men.

Lt. Gen. James L. Richardson, jungle warfare expert and deputy chief of U.S. Army forces in the Pacific, arrived in Saigon, South Viet Nam, on his way to Bangkok to take command of the American forces in Thailand. In Saigon he conferred with Gen. Paul D. Harkins, who heads U.S. forces in both Viet Nam and Thailand.

The American Marines and infantrymen are expected to be strung out along a 500-mile arc running from Udon, a town just below the Laotian capital of Vientiane, and east and south to Ubon, across from the southern part of Laos near Cambodia. Both Udon and Ubon have airports and are on rail lines to Bangkok.

The American invasion-by-invitation of this ancient land of Buddhist temples, smiling people and rich rice fields went off smoothly.

Maj. W. R. Affleck, 38, of Buford, S.C., was asked how long the Marines expected to be in Thailand. "As long as we are needed," he replied tersely.

Royal Thai army trucks rushed the Marines to Don Muang Airport where they joined the group being airlifted from the carrier Valley Forge.

Within five hours the first big turboprop transport took off with Marines for the rail and highway center of Korat, about 180 miles northeast of Bangkok.

A spokesman said the airlift out of Bangkok may take up to two days.

Korat, a staging center for further movement north, has rail lines to Nongkai, on the Laotian border in the north, and to Ubon, a large town near the frontier northeast of Bangkok.

Movement of the Marines to the northeast—instead of to the northwest where the pro-Communist Pathet Lao forces drove closest to the Thai border—was seen in Bangkok as an attempt to demonstrate U.S. intentions of avoiding anything resembling aggressive action.

The swift action by President Kennedy in sending troops to stand by worried Thailand drew the approval of other nations in the anti-Communist Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Macmillan, Aides Meet

British Prime Minister Macmillan met Wednesday night with his defense committee of senior cabinet ministers and military chiefs. Macmillan was expected to tell Parliament later today that Britain is ready to send about 200 men to Thailand. Britain has 600 crack Marine commandos aboard the aircraft carrier Bulwark at Jesselton, North Borneo, about 48 hours from Bangkok.

Australian Foreign Minister Sir Garfield Barwick told his Parliament Australia might also send regular army troops to Thailand if the Thais ask for military aid.

France, Pakistan and the Philippines are the other members of the eight-nation SEATO alliance. The Philippines had previously pressed for intervention in Laos when serious fighting there first flared up. France was against any such move at that time.

No Reports of Fighting

There were no reports of fighting in Laos since the royal forces in Houei Sai fled in panic across the Mekong River into Thailand a week ago.

U.S. officials in Washington still pinned their hopes for peace on resumption of political negotiations between the conservative, neutralist and pro-Communist factions in Laos.

The United States was reported considering resuming its monthly payment of $3 million to pay the expenses of the right-wing Vientiane government of Premier Prince Boun Oum. But indications in Washington were that the Kennedy administration would demand Boun Oum dump his chief deputy and the real power in the regime, Gen. Phoumi Nosavan.

Fatal Error in Laos: Trusting Communists

By LEON DENNEN
Newspaper Enterprise Analyst

NEW YORK—(NEA)—There is an old lesson to be learned from the post mortems on the new crisis in Laos. The crucial fact is, of course, that the Communists never intended to honor the East-West agreements reached in Geneva in 1961.

The United States had compelling logistic reasons for seeking to terminate hostilities in the little Southeast Asian kingdom with a coalition government of the three fighting princes — Communist, neutralist and anti-Communist. As President Kennedy made it clear, "it was difficult to continue to hold lines" in an area which was "in some cases exposed" and subject to constant pressure.

To be sure, it was a dubious formula since it implied trust in Nikita Khrushchev's word. It ignored the Soviet Premier's firm and oft-repeated policy calling for "wars of national liberation."

But even had Moscow — for once — decided to uphold an agreement with the West, this could not guarantee its observance by Red China and its satellites in Communist North Viet Nam and Pathet Lao.

There was never doubt among specialists on communism that the Vietnamese and Pathet Lao forces, trained and supplied by Mao Tse-tung's agents, used the endless Geneva negotiations and the cease-fire agreements to enhance their positions in Laos. Mao Tse-tung used this tactic against Chiang Kai-shek as he seized power in China.

As long ago as last July, Prince Boun Oum, the anti-Communist Premier of Laos, warned that the Reds were abusing the cease-fire to conquer more territory.

The Premier is now derided by some of President Kennedy's advisers on Southeast Asia as inept, stubborn, and an incorrigible "rightist." Nevertheless, for all his glaring faults, Boun Oum saw the nature of Red aggression more clearly than the State Department.

Averell Harriman, Assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern Affairs, was clearly in error when he suggested that there were many places in the world where anti-Communists triumphed over Communists after joining them in coalition governments. Until the very debacle, Harriman told the President that "That may well be the case in Laos."

It is one thing to assess a perilous strategic situation as soberly as President Kennedy did. It is quite another matter to delude oneself and others by tailoring hard facts to fit the situation.

Harriman would be hard-pressed to name one nation where in the past 45 years—anti-Communists who formed coalitions with the Reds were not doomed to death, exile or imprisonment. This was the fate of Chiang Kai-shek in China and of the democratic leaders in East Europe now under Soviet domination. It was certainly true in Poland and Romania after the 1945 Yalta agreement.

Harriman himself—then acting as President Roosevelt's emissary—helped engineer some of the coalition regimes that paved the way for the Red takeover.

Exiled East European democratic leaders now in the United States see a close parallel between Ambassador Harriman's role in their countries in 1945 and 1946 and his current diplomacy in Laos. The old Yalta cast seems to be repeating history in the new Southeast Asian setting.

The Laos crisis represents for the free world much more than the loss of—what Harriman so undiplomatically described — a "not very attractive piece of real estate with about 2 million people." (Couldn't the same thing be said one day of Soviet-encircled West Berlin which also has about 2 million inhabitants?) For in opening Pandora's box of Red aggression by relying on the weak reed of "coalition governments" the entire perimeter of the West's defense in the Pacific is threatened.

Boyce Car Is Stolen

Police were notified early this afternoon that the car of Harold Boyce, of Port Ewen, was stolen. It had been driven to 18½ East St. James Street, Kingston, by Dennis Boyce, 20, who was on his lunch hour, and parked there at about 12:10 p. m. the report said.

The U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation labeled robbery as the most significant crime of 1960.

SEC Is Probing Non-Public Data On Mutual Funds

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Securities and Exchange Commission says it is investigating the possibility that some mutual fund insiders are profiting from data not available to the public.

The SEC said it was distributing a special questionnaire to 50 unnamed mutual funds. It wants the names of all persons who might have access to advance information about changes in the stock portfolios of the funds.

Since mutual funds often buy or sell stocks in large quantities that influence prices, and because they benefit from costly research advice, an insider who knew in advance of a pending transaction might be able to cash in on his knowledge.

The SEC said that, as part of its broad investigation of the securities industry, it will make a spot check later of personal stock dealings by those named in the questionnaires returned by the 50 funds.

To facilitate the check, the funds are being asked to report all purchases and sales made between Dec. 1, 1960, and June 30, 1961.

Weather Doubtful

colm Scott Carpenter Sr. At his home in Palmer Lake, Colo., the elder Carpenter recalled his son's first flight into space — as a year-old baby. The future astronaut climbed from his crib, tumbled into space and hit head on a radiator. He has a small scar over his left eye to show for that outing.

The elder Carpenter plans to watch his son's flight on television and said he is not especially worried about it.

"Our American team values human life and they won't let the boys go up until every contingency imaginable is taken care of," he said.

Wife to Watch From Beach

Presumably, Carpenter will go into seclusion in Hangar S with only telephone contact with his pretty wife, Rene. The blonde mother of the four Carpenter children is staying at a private home in nearby Cocoa Beach.

She came here earlier this week from the family home at Langley Air Force Base, Va. She said she prefers to watch the beginning of her husband's flight from the beach.

"There's nothing at all like it," she said, "to stand on the beach and see it go up — and the prayerful attitude of the crowd."

She will be the first of the astronauts' wives to be in the Cape area to watch her husband launched into space.

Employe Recognition Day At Benedictine Hospital

Benedictine Hospital employes completing five, 10, 15, 20, 25 and more years of service were honored by the hospital at its second annual employe Recognition Day. Edwin B. Bolz, associate administrator, paid tribute to the employes receiving the awards. He stated that with the new names added to the list of employes completing five years of service to the hospital and the community it serves, 25 per cent of the entire working force at the hospital have completed five or more years of service.

Bolz said that hospital care is inescapably "personal care." The Benedictine Hospital strives in every way possible to meet the physical, personal, emotional and spiritual needs of each patient. "When new scientific services are perfected they will be added to our hospital against the time when they will save a human life. But scientific services will never replace the compassionate understanding and the individual care so necessary to each patient's speedy recovery," he declared.

He concluded, "It is for this reason that the Board of Directors and Administration of the Benedictine Hospital are deeply and justly proud of the service rendered by this large segment of loyal employes."

Four employes having 25 and more years of service received awards of U. S. Government Bonds, citations and pins for service. They were Miss Mary Zoda, Mrs. Germaine Callahan, Miss Anastasia Henderson and John Wilson.

Mrs. Anna Woods received a gold award for the completion of 20 years of service.

Mrs. Josephine Jones received a special award for the completion of 18 years of service.

The employes receiving silver awards for 15 years of service were Miss Katheryn McGrane and Mrs. Theresa Thies.

Fourteen other employes receiving silver awards for completing five years of employment were: Theresa DeFillipes, Katherine Salmi, Marie Bruck, Helen Longendyke, Catherine Redmond, Jadwiga Brzytwa, Elizabeth Reis, Emilie Hankh, Mary McNamara, Audrey McCullough, Margaret Kearney, Ruth Jones, Margaret Emmerling and Helen Staeth.

A special award was given to Ralph Mitchell, hospital laundry manager. It was a framed certificate from the Catholic Hospital Association in cooperation with St. Louis University, indicating attendance and participation in the program of continuing education on laundry service, April 9-13, 1962 in St. Louis, Missouri. The certificate was signed by Father John J. Flanagan, S.J., executive director of the Catholic Hospital Association.

Among the special guests present for the award presentation was Rev. Mother Cornelia, Mother Superior of the Benedictine Sisters, who traveled from Elizabeth, New Jersey Motherhouse, especially to be present at the celebration.

The other special guests present were—Dr. Robert McCaig, president of the Medical Staff of the Benedictine Hospital; James Dwyer, George Rusk, J. Ellis Briggs and Adrian Kaplan, all members of the Hospital's Lay Advisory Board. Mrs. William Cranston, president of the Benedictine Hospital Women's Auxiliary, also was present representing the Auxiliary.

Dr. McCaig stated that "It was a pleasure to help pass around the laurels when they are so richly deserved. I am glad on behalf of the Medical Staff to extend to you, the employes being honored, the staff's heartiest congratulations. We are grateful for your long and faithful service. It is you people that make our hospital something more than a building with rooms and beds. Your spirit and unselfish dedication has made our institution a powerfully effective force for good in the community."

Dr. McCaig concluded, "It is not the Medical Staff that gives this hospital its reputation, it is you, the people in the nursing service, the kitchen and diagnostic facilities. Your constant contact with our patients, your kindness, sympathy and forebearance in your service to the patient, are the things the patients always remember.

"Congratulations to all the employes of the Benedictine Hospital and there is no greater wish we can express as the Sisters of Saint Benedict that God may bless each and every one of you with His choice blessings—give you health and strength to assist us in maintaining our Benedictine Hospital. We are few but at present our Sisters are in key positions where their influence, interest and encouragement is experienced each day even though sometimes unconsciously. The Benedictine order being the oldest order in the church is characteristic of maintaining family spirit. All of you are part of this Benedictine family. We are all working toward the same goal."

"The society at large is changing and we too must change our line of organization. The catholic layman is here to work with us. We as religious have a special duty to fulfill and that is the Apostolate. The layman functions in many other capacities where religious would not be able to function. Benedictine has been one of the first hospitals to recognize the wishes of our late Pope in utilizing the abilities of our Catholic Layman so Mr. Bolz has functioned in the past years and we are all aware of his untiring efforts and his accomplishments in behalf of the Benedictine Hospital."

"Reverend Mother has given me the privilege to work as co-administrator with Mr. Bolz so we all in the spirit of St. Benedict will continue to work together attempting to live our motto—'That in all things may God be glorified.'"

Workers Return

Wednesday to include almost 700 of the 1,800 employes.

Hilton Goes to Bar

Into the breach stepped Conrad Hilton, president of the Hilton Hotel chain, treasurer Frank Constantine, and national sales representative John Counts.

Hilton moved behind the bar in the Starlight Roof and poured a bourbon and water for Gov. Edwin L. Mechem of New Mexico.

Constantine filled in as a waiter and later as a bartender.

Counts handled the emergency sandwich production line.

Only three of the Waldorf's 50 chefs were on duty. All seven of the hotel's public restaurants were shut down. Of four bars, only one was open.

The registered guests, about 1,600 of them, seemed to be taking it all in good humor. They toted their own bags and exchanged badinage with the lady bellhops and elevator operators, all of them recruited from other departments. Only about half the maids stayed on the job, slowing that service considerably.

The dispute is in the hands of an impartial arbitrator, who says it may be several days before a decision is reached.

Won't Condone Stoppages

Noting that the union employes have a no-strike contract, management said Wednesday it "cannot and will not condone wildcat stoppages."

Not affected by the strike was the Waldorf Towers, the upper-level suites occupied as permanent residences by such notables as former President Herbert Hoover and Gen. Douglas MacArthur. Its facilities are separate from the rest of the hotel.

Last Sunday night waiters in the grand ballroom walked out for 90 minutes in a protest against the plate-passing system for tips at some private banquets. They demanded an automatic 12 per cent tip on the hotel's receipts for each serving. Most tips at the hotel are handled in this manner, but some organizations do not arrange it that way, and waiters must pass the plate.

On Monday, the hotel dismissed eight waiters. Then hundreds of other employes walked out in sympathy, pledging not to return until the eight were reinstated.

Robberies reported to U.S. city police departments in 1960 increased 17.3 per cent over the preceding year.

Policemen Deny They're Taking Care of Ponies

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two ponies named Macaroni and Tex emerged as clean as hounds' teeth today from a charge they may be living in undemocratic luxury, with uniformed servants waiting on them.

The suspicion about Caroline Kennedy's small horses was voiced recently by Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa. When a bill to increase the uniformed White House police force from 170 to 250 men came up on the House floor he blocked it, at least temporarily.

He demanded assurances that policemen are not used as nursemaids for "the horses presently parked at the White House."

Indignant denials came from the policemen.

"Suh," one officer told a newsman, "I'm a veteran of the Air Force and I never mess with hosses. Nor do the other members of the police force."

It developed that, under a long-standing division of labor at the White House, hosses and other members of the menagerie come under the jurisdiction of Robert Redmond, head gardener.

His platoon of experts include men wise in the needs of ponies as well as petunias. They can wield a deft fodder fork, and know just how to settle a pony for the night in the backyard stable.

As a matter of fact, 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue is not the official residence of the ponies. Their permanent stables are at Glen Ora, the Kennedy country place in Virginia. But Macaroni often comes up to Washington by horse trailer, Tex less frequently.

If the two ponies created a bit of political stir, it is not the first time in White House history. The National Geographic Society recalls that economyites in Congress raised a fuss when President Martin Van Buren spent $6,670 on stables and again when President Ulysses S. Grant spent $14,016.

Most presidents have been pet fanciers. But under Teddy Roosevelt, the White House resembled a zoo. Playmates for the children included cats, lizards, snakes, guinea pigs, kangaroos and an uncounted array of dogs, including Scamp, a rat terrier, and Mike, a bull terrier. One pony thought nothing of riding the elevator with the kids.

Police Decline Defense in Case Of Judge's Son

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Two suspended Syracuse policemen have declined to defend themselves against departmental charges arising from the alleged pistol-whipping and shooting of a judge's son.

Detective Patrick Kerrigan and Patrolman Leo Leathley at a disciplinary hearing Wednesday withdrew previous pleas of innocent and entered pleas of no defense. They agreed that the case be decided on the basis of evidence already presented.

Kerrigan is accused of pistol-whipping William W. Bergan and shooting him in the thigh March 29. Leathley, who was with Kerrigan at the time of the incident, is charged with refusing to file a written report of what happened.

Bergan, 25, is a commercial artist here and the son of Presiding Justice Francis Bergan of the Appellate Division of State Supreme Court in Albany.

The hearing was conducted before City Assessment Commissioner Benjamin Gingold. He said he expected to submit his recommendations to Mayor William Walsh by Monday.

Bergan testified that Kerrigan shot him as he ran from his automobile after a two-mile chase. He said the chase had begun in front of a restaurant near the Syracuse University campus when he blew his car horn to summon friends.

The policemen, both off-duty at the time, objected to his blowing the horn, Bergan said.

No charges were filed against Bergan.

The policemen also were accused of refusing to take alcohol tests, of conduct unbecoming policemen and of bringing discredit to the Police Department.

A PECK OF TROUBLE — Jimmy Fishbeck, five, had his hands full when asked to pose with a white-breasted toucan, new addition to St. Paul, Minn., zoo. Jimmy was willing, offered his treat and then yelped when the bird gave him a nip on the chin.

Cleric, 80, Dies

TROY, N.Y. (AP) — The Rev. Homer B. Silvernail, of Latham, pastor emeritus of the New Scotland Presbyterian Church, died Wednesday in Samaritan Hospital after a brief illness. He was 80.

During 50 years as an active clergyman, he served as pastor in various churches in Northeastern New York and one at North Adams, Mass. He retired in 1959.

Senate Probers Ready Estes' Investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Investigations subcommittee meets today to order the start of public hearings—possibly late this month—on the explosive Billie Sol Estes case.

Request Assured

Members of the subcommittee called it a foregone conclusion they would grant the request of Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., for authority to launch the hearings.

They said the closed-door meeting also would provide an opportunity to determine the extent of any possible partisan bickering in the inquiry.

Both McClellan and Sen. Karl E. Mundt of South Dakota, the subcommittee's senior Republican member, have declared they hope partisanship will not be a problem.

McClellan and Mundt also teamed up in requesting the usual authority for the chairman to order balky or questionable witnesses to be quizzed in closed door session in advance of public hearings. They explained this is a precaution not used very often, but valuable in cases of witnesses who, as Mundt put it, seem prone to "spread a lot of names in the record without any evidence."

Won't Pull Punches

Both senators have said they want the hearings to be objective, with no punches pulled.

Since April 17 the subcommittee has had an expanded staff, now totaling 30, exploring the allegations of influence dealing which flowed from the indictment of Estes, 37, in Texas on fraud charges.

The Pecos man built a fortune of $5 million out of dealings in the government's farm program and an attempt to corner the ammonia fertilizer market in West Texas. His sprawling, intricate financial manipulations reportedly extended from coast to coast before they collapsed and he declared himself bankrupt.

Mundt said Estes surely would be called to testify in public hearings and might be questioned first in closed door session. He has been subpoenaed.

Patrolman's Son Bitten by Rat, To Test Carcass

David Short, 6, son of Patrolman and Mrs. Harry Short, of 75 Andrew Street, was bitten on the left index finger by a rat Wednesday afternoon.

A report by Officer Short at 6:15 p. m. said David was near the fenceline of an adjacent property when he was bitten. David was treated by a doctor. The rat was killed and the carcass, turned over to the County Health Department, was forwarded to Albany for laboratory tests.

Officer Short said the rat was about six inches long and acted sickly and lazy. A report from Albany is not expected for several days.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market skidded lower under mounting selling pressure early this afternoon. Trading was slow.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 1.2 to 240.30 with industrials off 2.30, rails off .20 and utilities off .40.

The decline ate sharply into the gains racked up in the healthy recovery Monday and Tuesday.

Brokers said traders who snapped up temporary bargains at the low point of the sell-off Monday morning were taking profits.

A new selling move was noted in stocks with high price-earnings ratios. Among these, IBM lost 10, Polaroid 8 and Xerox 7¾.

Losses of key issues spread from fractions to about 2 points.

Steels, motors, rubbers, aircrafts, utilities, nonferrous metals, chemicals, rails, oils, tobaccos and drugs took losses. Mail order-retails and airlines were mixed.

U.S. Steel and Republic, each with a fall of more than a point, led a general decline among steels.

Du Pont declined 3 and AT&T and International Telephone each were down about a point.

Litton Industries was off more than 3 and Amerada and Liggett & Myers dropped nearly 3.

Reads Mayor's Letter

Alderman Francis R. Koenig (D) Ninth Ward, as the council's finance committee chairman, read a letter from Mayor Schwenk, emphasizing that the bond issue was contingent upon federal approval of the off-street parking project as part of uptown urban renewal, and would not become effective until such approval is received.

Alderman Schrowang indicated that his approval of the North Front Street lots was not a question of getting votes in his ward which involves the uptown business district. Most of the merchants involved, he said, did not live in the ward, and about half of them did not own property there. He cited vacant stores on North Front Street as a motive for action, and said a vacant store on Wall Street "had never been seen before." He reported also that the fact that his father was designing an uptown shopping center (Kingston Shopping Plaza) had no bearing upon his vote.

Alderman Hastings noted that he had reported his approval of an off-street parking project (during the Radel administration) involving an expenditure of some $240,000 to $250,000, and the majority party then thought it the better plan.

Instead of that plan, he said, the city is involved with one costing a half million and "feels justified" because it is to be part of urban renewal development. He indicated he favored a single project first, and if there were to be more they should be spread out and not in the one area.

Points to Other Projects

Hastings feared that with such an expenditure now uptown the city might be using too much of its credits in conjunction with urban renewal and might not be able to meet "unforseen contingencies."

The city might be faced with later sewer problems and others, he said, and he noted that the water board is involved with a survey that is expected to mean the expenditure of from $3 million to $5 million in the next several years. He was hopeful, he said, that the uptown project would not interfere with future city plans, and recalling that he had once proposed a municipal swimming pool project on some site like the Dietz Stadium grounds, indicated he felt some of the money could be better used on such a project.

Hastings cited figures of a 1958 Chamber of Commerce survey, which, in part, noted that among shoppers queried 46 per cent said they shopped out of the city because of a wider variety of merchandise and lower prices while 38 per cent gave parking facilities as a reason.

Davis Blames Merchants

Alderman Tomazewski, in voting against the project, indicated that a main reason was that it would interfere with downtown urban renewal, and Davis said he believed in development of one lot first, and he was opposed to the cost of development of two sites at this time. He noted Schrowang's mention of empty stores uptown and held this was due largely to not meeting "super-market" competition.

In referring to Mayor Schwenk's recent statement dealing with "who's going to get the credit" as not worthy of consideration as compared to getting something done, Davis said, "If it's going to be a dud or white elephant, then let's see who's going to get the credit."

Anticipates Consideration

Alderman Sass said that even though he is chairman of the council's urban renewal committee, he still has a lot to learn about urban renewal. He felt, however, that the "contingencies" as mentioned by Hastings, could be met without heavy burden on the city, and he also thought it possible that water department projects might come "under a special section for urban renewal help." If the city gets in a plight that becomes too tight fiancially ,he felt the federal government would give it consideration.

Alderman Robert P. Slover (R) Fourth Ward, said the main point to be considered was that "We're looking for adequate parking." The city, he felt, should not place itself in the position of the farmer, who spent too much time fixing a wrecked wagon, only to find that the horse had died.

Changes His Mind

Arthur Smith (D) Eighth Ward, indicated he had arrived at the meeting intending not to vote for the off-street parking plan, "because he was a little mad at the administration" for other reasons, one being the ringing of his telephone night and day because of interest in employment in his ward.

Donald E. Quick (D) 10th Ward, indicated his vote was based on the mayor's statement, as read by Koenig, and promising no action until federal assitance was approved.

Koenig emphasized that "One main thing was being overlooked." Had the city, he said, in the past 25 years "looked into problems concerning its growth, it would not have the problems facing it now. He felt also, he said, that it is now up to the merchants to do something to benefit themselves. They must "take the bull by the horns," he said and try to mete the competition of outlying areas.

Alderman Adams held that "We must give the city off-street parking, or stop dangling the program in front of the faces of our merchants." After appointment of a committee in the Radel administration, he noted, and because of the "complex nature of the problem" no hasty decision could be given.

The committee, he said, put in many hours of study and the firm of Brinnier & Larios was employed. "During the campaign," he said, "Mayor Schwenk denounced the use of this firm as being unnecessary and a waste of the taxpayers' money. Strange as it may seem Mayor Schwenk has used the same firm to prepare another plan. Why were we deceived by Mayor Schwenk?"

In December, he noted, the Radel administration offered a plan considered the best after months of study, but "Republicans on the advice of Mayor Schwenk voted against this plan." The reason given, he said was that the mayor had a plan that should be considered before any action was taken.

Sees No Value Now

"We could have had parking in operation now, and at less cost than is now proposed," he said. "Mayor Schwenk presented his plan." It was rejected, he said, "by everyone I have spoken to. It has been rejected by his own advisory committee, and Republican members of this council." He contended that the Schwenk plan had no value now, and "never had," and again asked, "Why were we deceived by Mayor Schwenk?"

Adams recalled the mayor's contention that a project should be so placed as to not remove property from the tax rolls. His present plan, he said, "does just that," and again the question, "why were we deceived, etc."

On the question of spreading out the lots, Adams held, but the present plan does just the opposite. Now, he said the plan includes "part of the area offered in the Radel plan of December. What was not good in December is good in May."

Adams contended that "we were deceived" by the mayor, "because he wanted to be elected mayor more than he wanted to hold on to the principles of honesty, integrity and sincerity. Now with the help of a $4,750 city paid public relations man, he is feeding the citizens a picture of a mayor who wants only what is good for the city. I am convinced that Mayor Schwenk is concerned only with what is good for Mayor Schwenk."

'Must Act Tonight'

The present plan, Adams claimed, had been studied in conjunction with others proposed, "except the Schwenk plan, which has been discarded to the junk heap as being most impractical." All groups that have studied off-street parking, he said, have agreed that "the present plan is the preferred plan of them all," and have reached the state "where further study will only add to the already confused and highly political ping-pong ball. We must act tonight, either for or against."

Adams noted that the bond resolution does not indicate a tie-in with urban renewal, but said, "we have the assurance of the administration that the bonds will not be used unless and until two conditions are met:

1. That uptown urban renewal is approved. 2. That money spent for off-street parking will be applied as credit toward our urban renewal obligation in full.

The alderman expressed a preference for a plan that would not be so expensive, nor take such high tax-producing properties from the rolls, but one that would be diversified and one that would "do the job it set out to do." However, he felt, more delay would mean passing "the point of no return."

Moving into decay, and then spending money on a dead issue, he said, could not be afforded.

Since there was no assurance that the plan would solve all "problems that prevail uptown," he advised that merchants "will be expected to re-evaluate their operations and find means of attracting shoppers to the area." He said he had received assurance from merchants that stores would be improved.

Hopes There's Time

"We can only hope," he said, "it is not too late. I will grant that one-half million dollars is a large amount of money, but when we compare this with loss of tax that will result if uptown goes into decay, we are not spending money foolishly." Noting that the project would not be 100 per cent liquidating, he held that people must be given stronger inducement to shop uptown, and if not, the blame will be with the merchants. He said at the end: "Let us not forget we have been deceived by Mayor Schwenk, but let us not compound his faults with shortsightedness."

The aldermen voted to hire Attorney Hubert A. Richter, to handle two pending assessment claims for which Corporation Counsel Harry Gold has disqualified himself because of former dealing with parties involved. Mayor Schwenk recently vetoed a measure which authorized the hiring of Attorney George A. Beck, because the mayor felt a conflict of interest due to Beck's connection with similar past cases. Beck also withdrew.

John Kain Hurt Trying to Stop Car From Moving

John Kain, 68, of 608 Broadway, suffered a scalp laceration and possible concussion, when he attempted to stop a car which had rolled back on Foxhall Avenue Wednesday afternoon, police said.

A report at 1:20 p. m. said the car of Mary G. Seafidi of 58 Roosevelt Avenue, parked on Foxhall Avenue near Broadway began rolling back apparently after its hand brake failed to hold, and Kain, who was walking in the area, was thrown to the ground as he tried to stop it. Officer Edward Edwards and Kain was treated at Kingston Hospital.

Young Mother Erred in Picking Speculative Issues

Q) "I am 27 years old, married, and have a 5-months-old daughter. I have accumulated some stocks which I thought had growth appeal, but they show serious losses. My holdings include Roosevelt Field, Bowling Corp. of America, Infrared Industries, and Lestoil Products. I'm investing for my daughter's education and would like your advice." — P. P.

A) It's always very pleasant to encounter a forward-looking parent. I believe your daughter's future is in good hands.

In making your initial purchases, however, I think you have fallen into one of the most common of all investment errors —confusing growth stocks with speculative situations that can fluctuate for special reasons. Your shares, in my opinion, fall into the latter category rather than into the growth class.

Broadley speaking, a growth stock is one where sales, earnings and dividends have risen faster than the economy as a whole over a period of time. There should be a consistent and established pattern of such growth, and the company should be in an expanding industry.

Judged by these standards, none of your stocks measure up, although Lestoil and Infrared could eventually do so. I would hold these two and dispose of the others. As a replacement I suggest National Starch (NYSE).

Q) "I am 74 years old and I need a place to live. I own 500 shares of General Motors; 120 U. S. Steel; 220 Lone Star Gas; 100 United Gas Corp. I have $4,000 on loan to reliable parties and $40 per month social security. How can I buy a nice small home and still have enough to live on?" — M. R.

A) I think you can just about do it, provided you can buy a nice small home for around $9,600. To raise this sum, I would sell 120 shares of U. S. Steel—where the present dividend rate doesn't look too secure — and also 100 shares of Lone Star Gas. If you are getting 6 per cent on your loans, you will have an income, at current dividend rates, of about $43 a week.

Area Firm Places In Service New Bulk Cement Ship

Marquette Cement Manufacturing Company and its subsidiary, North American Cement Corporation, next month will place the new bulk cement carrier, the 329-foot motor ship NORAMAR, in operation on the Atlantic seaboard. Final work of commissioning is now being completed by Todd Shipyards Corporation in Brooklyn.

Soon after June 1 the Noramar will regularly ply between Marquette's producing plant on the Hudson River, at Catskill, and its new distributing plants at College Point, L. I., and Providence, R. I. Later in the year this movement of cement by water will be extended to other distributing plants to be located elsewhere along the Atlantic seaboard, according to company officials. The vessel will thus facilitate economical distribution of the cement marketed in the East by North American Cement Corporation, near Catskill.

The ship has a capacity of 20,000 barrels of cement which it will move at a speed of about 11 knots. Highly automated, it contains equipment to discharge its cargo at destination in less than six hours. Facilities on the dock at Catskill enable loading the 20,000 barrel cargo in a mere two hours.

Senate Probers Ready Estes' Investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Investigations subcommittee meets today to order the start of public hearings—possibly late this month—on the explosive Billie Sol Estes case.

Request Assured

Members of the subcommittee called it a foregone conclusion they would grant the request of Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., for authority to launch the hearings.

They said the closed-door meeting also would provide an opportunity to determine the extent of any possible partisan bickering in the inquiry.

Both McClellan and Sen. Karl E. Mundt of South Dakota, the subcommittee's senior Republican member, have declared they hope partisanship will not be a problem.

McClellan and Mundt also teamed up in requesting the usual authority for the chairman to order balky or questionable witnesses to be quizzed in closed door session in advance of public hearings. They explained this is a precaution not used very often, but valuable in cases of witnesses who, as Mundt put it, seem prone to "spread a lot of names in the record without any evidence."

Won't Pull Punches

Both senators have said they want the hearings to be objective, with no punches pulled.

Since April 17 the subcommittee has had an expanded staff, now totaling 30, exploring the allegations of influence dealing which flowed from the indictment of Estes, 37, in Texas on fraud charges.

The Pecos man built a fortune of $5 million out of dealings in the government's farm program and an attempt to corner the ammonia fertilizer market in West Texas. His sprawling, intricate financial manipulations reportedly extended from coast to coast before they collapsed and he declared himself bankrupt.

Mundt said Estes surely would be called to testify in public hearings and might be questioned first in closed door session. He has been subpoenaed.

Patrolman's Son Bitten by Rat, To Test Carcass

David Short, 6, son of Patrolman and Mrs. Harry Short, of 75 Andrew Street, was bitten on the left index finger by a rat Wednesday afternoon.

A report by Officer Short at 6:15 p. m. said David was near the fenceline of an adjacent property when he was bitten. David was treated by a doctor. The rat was killed and the carcass, turned over to the County Health Department, was forwarded to Albany for laboratory tests.

Officer Short said the rat was about six inches long and acted sickly and lazy. A report from Albany is not expected for several days.

Most Members Ever, Dutchess Council Reports

The 42nd annual dinner and meeting of the Dutchess County Council, Boy Scouts of America, was held last night at the Nelson House in Poughkeepsie. The Invocation was given by Rabbi Manning H. Bleich.

Following dinner Edward VanA. Howard, toastmaster introduced guests and turned the business meeting over to David J. Chamberlain who outlined the 1961 record of the council accomplishments.

Scout Executive George A. Darlington reported to the Council that 35 per cent of the available boys in Dutchess County are Boy Scouts. He thanked all of the volunteers for the fine service that they had given to the boys and the Scouting program during the past year.

The report of the Nominating Committee was given to F. Irving Bower. The following officers and members-at-large were elected by the Council for the year 1962-1963: President, Harold C. Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market skidded lower under mounting selling pressure early this afternoon. Trading was slow.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 1.2 to 240.30 with industrials off 2.30, rails off .20 and utilities off .40.

The decline ate sharply into the gains racked up in the healthy recovery Monday and Tuesday.

Brokers said traders who snapped up temporary bargains at the low point of the sell-off Monday morning were taking profits.

A new selling move was noted in stocks with high price-earnings ratios. Among these, IBM lost 10, Polaroid 8 and Xerox 7¾.

Losses of key issues spread from fractions to about 2 points.

Steels, motors, rubbers, aircrafts, utilities, nonferrous metals, chemicals, rails, oils, tobaccos and drugs took losses. Mail order-retails and airlines were mixed.

U.S. Steel and Republic, each with a fall of more than a point, led a general decline among steels.

Du Pont declined 3 and AT&T and International Telephone each were down about a point.

Litton Industries was off more than 3 and Amerada and Liggett & Myers dropped nearly 3.

Reads Mayor's Letter

Alderman Francis R. Koenig (D) Ninth Ward, as the council's finance committee chairman, read a letter from Mayor Schwenk, emphasizing that the bond issue was contingent upon federal approval of the off-street parking project as part of uptown urban renewal, and would not become effective until such approval is received.

Alderman Schrowang indicated that his approval of the North Front Street lots was not a question of getting votes in his ward which involves the uptown business district. Most of the merchants involved, he said, did not live in the ward, and about half of them did not own property there. He cited vacant stores on North Front Street as a motive for action, and said a vacant store on Wall Street "had never been seen before." He reported also that the fact that his father was designing an uptown shopping center (Kingston Shopping Plaza) had no bearing upon his vote.

Alderman Hastings noted that he had reported his approval of an off-street parking project (during the Radel administration) involving an expenditure of some $240,000 to $250,000, and the majority party then thought it the better plan.

Instead of that plan, he said, the city is involved with one costing a half million and "feels justified" because it is to be part of urban renewal development. He indicated he favored a single project first, and if there were to be more they should be spread out and not in the one area.

Points to Other Projects

Hastings feared that with such an expenditure now uptown the city might be using too much of its credits in conjunction with urban renewal and might not be able to meet "unforseen contingencies."

The city might be faced with later sewer problems and others, he said, and he noted that the water board is involved with a survey that is expected to mean the expenditure of from $3 million to $5 million in the next several years. He was hopeful, he said, that the uptown project would not interfere with future city plans, and recalling that he had once proposed a municipal swimming pool project on some site like the Dietz Stadium grounds, indicated he felt some of the money could be better used on such a project.

Hastings cited figures of a 1958 Chamber of Commerce survey, which, in part, noted that among shoppers queried 46 per cent said they shopped out of the city because of a wider variety of merchandise and lower prices while 38 per cent gave parking facilities as a reason.

Davis Blames Merchants

Alderman Tomazewski, in voting against the project, indicated that a main reason was that it would interfere with downtown urban renewal, and Davis said he believed in development of one lot first, and he was opposed to the cost of development of two sites at this time. He noted Schrowang's mention of empty stores uptown and held this was due largely to not meeting "super-market" competition.

In referring to Mayor Schwenk's recent statement dealing with "who's going to get the credit" as not worthy of consideration as compared to getting something done, Davis said, "If it's going to be a dud or white elephant, then let's see who's going to get the credit."

Anticipates Consideration

Alderman Sass said that even though he is chairman of the council's urban renewal committee, he still has a lot to learn about urban renewal. He felt, however, that the "contingencies" as mentioned by Hastings, could be met without heavy burden on the city, and he also thought it possible that water department projects might come "under a special section for urban renewal help." If the city gets in a plight that becomes too tight financially ,he felt the federal government would give it consideration.

Alderman Robert P. Slover (R) Fourth Ward, said the main point to be considered was that "We're looking for adequate parking." The city, he felt, should not place itself in the position of the farmer, who spent too much time fixing a wrecked wagon, only to find that the horse had died.

Changes His Mind

Arthur Smith (D) Eighth Ward, indicated he had arrived at the meeting intending not to vote for the off-street parking plan, "because he was a little mad at the administration" for other reasons, one being the ringing of his telephone night and day because of interest in employment in his ward.

Donald E. Quick (D) 10th Ward, indicated his vote was based on the mayor's statement, as read by Koenig, and promising no action until federal assitance was approved.

Koenig emphasized that "One main thing was being overlooked." Had the city, he said, in the past 25 years "looked into problems concerning its growth, it would not have the problems facing it now. He felt ,also, he said, that it is now up to the merchants to do something to benefit themselves. They must "take the bull by the horns," he said and try to mete the competition of outlying areas.

Alderman Adams held that "We must give the city off-street parking, or stop dangling the program in front of the faces of our merchants." After appointment of a committee in the Radel administration, he noted, and because of the "complex nature of the problem" no hasty decision could be given.

The committee, he said, put in many hours of study and the firm of Brinpier & Larios was employed. "During the campaign," he said, "Mayor Schwenk denounced the use of this firm as being unnecessary and a waste of the taxpayers' money. Strange as it may seem Mayor Schwenk has used the same firm to prepare another plan. Why were we deceived by Mayor Schwenk?"

In December, he noted, the Radel administration offered a plan considered the best after months of study, but "Republicans on the advice of Mayor Schwenk voted against this plan." The reason given, he said was that the mayor had a plan that should be considered before any action was taken.

Sees No Value Now

"We could have had parking in operation now, and at less cost than is now proposed," he said "Mayor Schwenk presented his plan." It was rejected, he said, "by everyone I have spoken to. It has been rejected by his own advisory committee, and Republican members of this council." He contended that the Schwenk plan had no value now, and "never had," and again asked, "Why were we deceived by Mayor Schwenk?"

Adams recalled the mayor's contention that a project should be so placed as to not remove property from the tax rolls. His present plan, he said, "does just that," and again the question, "why were we deceived, etc."

On the question of spreading out the lots, Adams held, but the present plan does just the opposite. Now, he said the plan includes "part of the area offered in the Radel plan of December. What was not good in December is good in May."

Adams contended that "we were deceived" by the mayor, "because he wanted to be elected mayor more than he wanted to hold on to the principles of honesty, integrity and sincerity. Now with the help of a $4,750 city paid public relations man, he is feeding the citizens a picture of a mayor who wants only what is good for the city. I am convinced that Mayor Schwenk is concerned only with what is good for Mayor Schwenk."

'Must Act Tonight'

The present plan, Adams claimed, had been studied in conjunction with others proposed, "except the Schwenk plan, which has been discarded to the junk heap as being most impractical." All groups that have studied off-street parking, he said, have agreed that "the present plan is the preferred plan of them all," and have reached the state "where further study will only add to the already confused and highly political ping-pong ball. We must act tonight, either for or against."

Adams noted that the bond resolution does not indicate a tie-in with urban renewal, but said, "we have the assurance of the administration that the bonds will not be used unless and until two conditions are met:

1. That uptown urban renewal is approved. 2. That money spent for off-street parking will be applied as credit toward our urban renewal obligation in full.

The alderman expressed a preference for a plan that would not be so expensive, nor take such high tax-producing properties from the rolls, but one that would be diversified and one that would "do the job it set out to do." However, he felt, more delay would mean passing "the point of no return."

Moving into decay, and then spending money on a dead issue, he said, could not be afforded.

Since there was no assurance that the plan would solve all "problems that prevail uptown," he advised that merchants "will be expected to re-evaluate their operations and find means of attracting shoppers to the area." He said he had received assurance from merchants that stores would be improved.

Hopes There's Time

"We can only hope," he said, "it is not too late. I will grant that one-half million dollars is a large amount of money, but when we compare this with loss of tax that will result if uptown goes into decay, we are not spending money foolishly." Noting that the project would not be 100 per cent liquidating, he held that people must be given stronger inducement to shop uptown, and if not, the blame will be with the merchants. He said at the end: "Let us not forget we have been deceived by Mayor Schwenk, but let us not compound his faults with shortsightedness."

The aldermen voted to hire Attorney Hubert A. Richter, to handle two pending assessment claims for which Corporation Counsel Harry Gold has disqualified himself because of former dealing with parties involved. Mayor Schwenk recently vetoed a measure which authorized the hiring of Attorney George A. Beck, because the mayor felt a conflict of interest due to Beck's connection with similar past cases. Beck also withdrew.

John Kain Hurt Trying to Stop Car From Moving

John Kain, 68, of 608 Broadway, suffered a scalp laceration and possible concussion, when he attempted to stop a car which had rolled back on Foxhall Avenue Wednesday afternoon, police said.

A report at 1:20 p. m. said the car of Mary G. Seafidi of 58 Roosevelt Avenue, parked on Foxhall Avenue near Broadway began rolling back apparently after its hand brake failed to hold, and Kain, who was walking in the area, was thrown to the ground as he tried to stop it. Officer Edward Edwards and Kain was treated at Kingston Hospital.

Young Mother Erred in Picking Speculative Issues

Q) "I am 27 years old, married, and have a 5-months-old daughter. I have accumulated some stocks which I thought had growth appeal, but they show serious losses. My holdings include Roosevelt Field, Bowling Corp. of America, Infrared Industries, and Lestoil Products. I'm investing for my daughter's education and would like your advice." — P. P.

A) It's always very pleasant to encounter a forward-looking parent. I believe your daughter's future is in good hands.

In making your initial purchases, however, I think you have fallen into one of the most common of all investment errors —confusing growth stocks with speculative situations that can fluctuate for special reasons. Your shares, in my opinion, fall into the latter category rather than into the growth class.

Broadley speaking, a growth stock is one where sales, earnings and dividends have risen faster than the economy as a whole over a period of time. There should be a consistent and established pattern of such growth, and the company should be in an expanding industry.

Judged by these standards, none of your stocks measure up, although Lestoil and Infrared could eventually do so. I would hold these two and dispose of the others. As a replacement I suggest National Starch (NYSE).

Q) "I am 74 years old and I need a place to live. I own 500 shares of General Motors; 120 U. S. Steel; 220 Lone Star Gas; 100 United Gas Corp. I have $4,000 on loan to reliable parties and $40 per month social security. How can I buy a nice small home and still have enough to live on?" — M. R.

A) I think you can just about do it, provided you can buy a nice small home for around $9,600. To raise this sum, I would sell 120 shares of U. S. Steel—where the present dividend rate doesn't look too secure — and also 100 shares of Lone Star Gas. If you are getting 6 per cent on your loans, you will have an income, at current dividend rates, of about $43 a week.

Area Firm Places In Service New Bulk Cement Ship

Marquette Cement Manufacturing Company and its subsidiary, North American Cement Corporation, next month will place the new bulk cement carrier, the 329-foot motor ship NORAMAR, in operation on the Atlantic seaboard. Final work of commissioning is now being completed by Todd Shipyards Corporation in Brooklyn.

Soon after June 1 the Noramar will regularly ply between Marquette's producing plant on the Hudson River, at Catskill, and its new distributing plants at College Point, L. I., and Providence, R. I. Later in the year this movement of cement by water will be extended to other distributing plants to be located elsewhere along the Atlantic seaboard, according to company officials. The vessel will thus facilitate economical distribution of the cement marketed in the East by North American Cement Corporation, near Catskill.

The ship has a capacity of 20,000 barrels of cement which it will move at a speed of about 11 knots. Highly automated, it contains equipment to discharge its cargo at destination in less than six hours. Facilities on the dock at Catskill enable loading the 20,000 barrel cargo in a mere two hours.

Dior Introduces Very Bouffant Skirts and Bustles

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The capacities of elevators, automobiles and night club dance floors were challenged today as the Christian Dior house here introduced the widest hipped costume since the bustle.

A crush of fashion buyers who would never have squeezed into the showroom if they had been wearing designer Guy Douvier's newest suits, nevertheless applauded the broad-beamed silhouette as the best he has done yet.

Manikins wore heavily shadowed eyelids, false eyelashes; orange, blonde, or white streaked black hair, tams or bullet-shaped hats and remote expressions on their faces as they began the style parade in bulky wool suits and dresses Wednesday.

The jackets were slope-shouldered with three-quarter length sleeves. Bodices were snug at the bosom but blousy at the waist. Girding the ballooning skirts were contour belts that rested just above the hipbone.

Every now and then, however, the models changed the pace with costumes as spare as exclamation points. But they returned again in skirts that parachuted out from multi-pleated or gathered yokes.

As the daytime costumes gave way to the night life wardrobes, skirts grew in volume, knocking programs out of the hands of the front row audience as they swished along. One slim white bodice of a cocktail dress perched on a huge ball of black fringe, a skirt shaggier than untrimmed poodle. Even the dinner gowns that did not gather at the waist tapered wide enough at the hems to require double doors for coming and going.

Noted Choirmaster Will Speak Here; Guild of Organists

Central Hudson Valley Chapter, American Guild of Organsits, will hold its annual guest night and dinner meeting on Monday, May 21 at 6:30. The Chapter will meet at the Trinity Lutheran Church, Spring and Hone Streets. Dinner reservations may be made with Alice Beehler of Kingston.

Business meeting will include balloting for chapter and national officers. John Davis, Dean, announces the guest speaker will be Stuart Gardner, organist-choirmaster of the Church of the Transfiguration, New York City, (The Little Church Around the Corner).

Mr. Gardner's boys choir has done a great deal of concert, radio and TV work, and is the group which did the "Play of Daniel" in New York City to sold-out audiences the past few seasons. They went on tour with this work a few summers ago, singing in various parts of Europe. Mr. Gardner will speak informally on all of these aspects of his work, dealing especially with the European tour, and illustrating that portion of his talk with color slides. He has degrees from Westminster Choir College and Yale University, and has had a great deal of experience in the field of church music.

Dior Introduces Very Bouffant Skirts and Bustles

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The capacities of elevators, automobiles and night club dance floors were challenged today as the Christian Dior house here introduced the widest hipped costume since the bustle.

A crush of fashion buyers who would never have squeezed into the showroom if they had been wearing designer Guy Douvier's newest suits, nevertheless applauded the broad-beamed silhouette as the best he has done yet.

Manikins wore heavily shadowed eyelids, false eyelashes; orange, blonde, or white streaked black hair, tams or bullet-shaped hats and remote expressions on their faces as they began the style parade in bulky wool suits and dresses Wednesday.

The jackets were slope-shouldered with three-quarter length sleeves. Bodices were snug at the bosom but blousy at the waist. Girding the ballooning skirts were contour belts that rested just above the hipbone.

Every now and then, however, the models changed the pace with costumes as spare as exclamation points. But they returned again in skirts that parachuted out from multi-pleated or gathered yokes.

As the daytime costumes gave way to the night life wardrobes, skirts grew in volume, knocking programs out of the hands of the front row audience as they swished along. One slim white bodice of a cocktail dress perched on a huge ball of black fringe, a skirt shaggier than untrimmed poodle. Even the dinner gowns that did not gather at the waist tapered wide enough at the hems to require double doors for coming and going.

take it from Kathy

By KATHY PETERSON

Dear Kathy: A girl sits beside me for the last three classes every day who is so odd that everyone teases her. They tell her all sorts of crazy things and she believes them. I hate to hurt people's feelings so I've tried to be polite. Because I'm the only one who treats her decently, she has started to haunt me and even follows me after school. She gets passing grades but says silly things all the time and never really makes much sense. I don't want her for a friend, in fact it's impossible even to carry on a conversation with her.

The kids have started teasing me, too. School used to be fun but now I hate to go because I dread those last classes so much. It wouldn't be so bad if she would take a hint and let me talk in peace to other people or at least leave me alone after school. I talked to one of the teachers about her but that didn't help.—Lucy M.

Dear Lucy: Everyone else teases her? It may seem that way but you're wrong. A few follow the ringleaders in this as they do in everything else. Most people feel sorry for someone like this, just as you do, but they don't know what to do about it. Keeping quiet makes them seem like allies of those who tease maliciously.

It sounds as if this girl needs to consult a trained social worker or educator who can help or direct her to someone who can. The problem is too big for you to solve considering your limited experience. It would take professional guidance to change this girl and make her happier on a long-range basis.

Softening a few of the rough spots is the most that can be done by someone in your situation. You have been kind enough to do this.

GIVING AWAY A NO LONGER SUITABLE PRESENT

Q: Two years ago my husband's sister gave us a very lovely lamp for an anniversary present and we have been using it ever since. Just recently we bought new living room furniture and the lamp no longer went with our furnishings. My sister always admired this lamp and as it went with her furnishings, I gave it to her. I understand my sister-in-law is peeved over this and thinks the lamp should have been given to her as she gave it to us in the first place. It seems to me that having given us the lamp she had no further claim to it and it was ours to dispose of as we pleased. I would very much appreciate your opinion on this matter.

A: Even though the lamp was yours to dispose of as you pleased, you really should have explained to your sister-in-law that you had no further use for it and asked her if she would like it back or would she mind your giving it to your sister.

Title of an Ex-Assistant Secretary

Q: Is the title "The Honorable" a lifetime one once it has been betowed upon a gentleman? My specific reference is in the case of a former Assistant Secretary of a governmental department. During his tour of duty with the government in Washington, he is referred to as "The Honorable John Doe." Upon his resignation from the post and return to private life is he still correctly addressed as "The Honorable"?

A: Most correctly he will be "Mr.," although some people, especially those associated with him now in Washington, will consider it courteous to address him as "The Honorable."

Returning Gifts After Baby's Death

Q: I had a baby boy recently who lived only three weeks after he came home from the hospital. We received many presents for him from relatives and friends as well as business acquaintances of my husband. Should these gifts be returned?

A: Offer to return the gifts, though probably most of those who sent them will ask you to keep them for another baby they hope you will have in the future.

take it from Kathy

By KATHY PETERSON

Dear Kathy: A girl sits beside me for the last three classes every day who is so odd that everyone teases her. They tell her all sorts of crazy things and she believes them. I hate to hurt people's feelings so I've tried to be polite. Because I'm the only one wh treats her decently, she has started to haunt me and even follows me after school. She gets passing grades but says silly things all the time and never really makes much sense. I don't want her for a friend, in fact it's impossible even to carry on a conversation with her.

The kids have started teasing me, too. School used to be fun but now I hate to go because I dread those last classes so much. It wouldn't be so bad if she would take a hint and let me talk in peace to other people or at least leave me alone after school. I talked to one of the teachers about her but that didn't help.—Lucy M.

Dear Lucy: Everyone else teases her? It may seem that way but you're wrong. A few follow the ringleaders in this as they do in everything else. Most people feel sorry for someone like this, just as you do, but they don't know what to do about it. Keeping quiet makes them seem like allies of those who tease maliciously.

It sounds as if this girl needs to consult a trained social worker or educator who can help or direct her to someone who can. The problem is too big for you to solve considering your limited experience. It would take professional guidance to change this girl and make her happier on a long-range basis.

Softening a few of the rough spots is the most that can be done by someone in your situation. You have been kind enough to do this.

GIVING AWAY A NO LONGER SUITABLE PRESENT

Q: Two years ago my husband's sister gave us a very lovely lamp for an anniversary present and we have been using it ever since. Just recently we bought new living room furniture and the lamp no longer went with our furnishings. My sister always admired this lamp and as it went with her furnishings, I gave it to her. I understand my sister-in-law is peeved over this and thinks the lamp should have been given to her as she gave it to us in the first place. It seems to me that having given us the lamp she had no further claim to it and it was ours to dispose of as we pleased. I would very much appreciate your opinion on this matter.

A: Even though the lamp was yours to dispose of as you pleased, you really should have explained to your sister-in-law that you had no further use for it and asked her if she would like it back or would she mind your giving it to your sister.

Title of an Ex-Assistant Secretary

Q: Is the title "The Honorable" a lifetime one once it has been betowed upon a gentleman? My specific reference is in the case of a former Assistant Secretary of a governmental department. During his tour of duty with the government in Washington, he is referred to as "The Honorable John Doe." Upon his resignation from the post and return to private life is he still correctly addressed as "The Honorable"?

A: Most correctly he will be "Mr.," although some people, especially those associated with him now in Washington, will consider it courteous to address him as "The Honorable."

Returning Gifts After Baby's Death

Q: I had a baby boy recently who lived only three weeks after he came home from the hospital. We received many presents for him from relatives and friends as well as business acquaintances of my husband. Should these gifts be returned?

A: Offer to return the gifts, though probably most of those who sent them will ask you to keep them for another baby they hope you will have in the future.

Kuenn, Giants Are Sizzling; Stenhouse Wins for Senators

NL Leaders Get 7-2 Triumph Over St. Louis Cards

By MIKE RATHET

And that's the story of another victory for the sizzling San Francisco Giants, who continued their headlong rush over all opposition Wednesday by whipping the St. Louis Cardinals 7-2 for their 17th victory in the last 20 games.

While the Cards were dropping into fourth place with their ninth defeat in 12 games, Musial, 41, snapped an 0-for-15 slump with a single in the sixth inning for the elusive hit that tied him with Honus Wagner for the most hits in National League history—3,430.

The left-handed swinger had previously set two league career records this season—runs scored and games played—and now holds or shares 40 NL records and 13 major league marks.

Kuenn's key hit won it for the Giants. The former American League batting king upped his average to a league-leading .360 with the sinle that drove in Ed Bailey with the tie-breakin run in the seventh.

Orlando Cepeda then hit a three-run homer, his 10th, as the Giants erupted for five runs to wrap it up. The triumph kept San Francisco's lead at four games over the second-place Los Angeles Dodgers, who won their seventh in eight games, 5-2 over Houston.

Cincinnati's defending champion Reds took over third place, 6½ games back, by nipping Philadelphia 6-5. Al McBean and Diomedes Olivo combined for a five-hitter in Pittsburgh's 6-0 shutout of Milwaukee and the New York Mets beat Chicago's Cubs 6-5 in 11 innings.

The Cards got single runs off Juan Marichal (7-2) in the second and sixth, but he slammed the door thereafter. The Giants tied it in the sixth when Cepeda singled and Felipe Alou homered, then came up with five in the seventh. Lindy McDaniel (1-3) was the loser.

The Dodgers stole five bases and converted four walks into runs to beat the Colts. Maury Wills scored one of two runs in the first on a wild pitch, then came across with the run that proved to be the winner in the third when he singled, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and scored on Wally Moon's single. Joe Moeller (2-3) won it with ninth inning relief help from Ed Roebuck. Dick Farrell (3-3) lost it.

Felix Mantilla's bases-loaded single in the 11th after a pair of walks and a single by winner Jay Hook (3-2) gave the Mets their second straight extra-inning triumph over the last-place Cubs. The New Yorkers had tied it in the eighth on Gil Hodges' inside-the-park homer. Glen Hobbie gave up Mantilla's hit, but the loss went to Don Elston (2-1).

Rookie Hurls A Four-Hitter Against Chisox

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

In the helter-skelter scramble of the American League race it is not so surprising that the hottest pitcher of the moment is a rookie with the club stuck in last place—Dave Stenhouse of the Washington Senators.

The right-hander, 28, who waited eight seasons before his first big league start came along 11 days ago, scored impressively again Wednesday night with a four-hitter that cooled off the Chicago White Sox 3-1.

Cleveland protected its league lead by overcoming Kansas City 10-9 on John Romano's two-run homer with two out in the bottom of the ninth. New York and Minnesota stayed a half game behind with victories, the Yankees rallying for a 9-8 decision over Boston and the Twins clubbing Detroit 8-4. Los Angeles stopped Baltimore 3-1 behind the neat pitching of Ken McBride, Jack Spring and Ryne Duren.

Stenhouse, a graduate engineer from the University of Rhode Island, was a minor leaguer for seven seasons as a farmhand for the Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds before the Reds dealt him to Washington this past winter.

The White Sox gained a tie in the first inning on Jim King's three-base error on Luis Aparicio's deep drive and a sacrifice fly. But the Senators pinned the loss on Early Wynn.

Mike Fornieles had two strikes on Mickey Mantle with two out in the Yankee ninth at Boston but the Bombers, trailing 7-6, staved off their fourth straight loss. Mantle finally walked, Yogi Berra singled, then Elston Howard and Bill Skowron put the Yanks ahead with singles off Dick Radatz. Clete Boyer followed with a double against the Boston rookie, making it 9-7.

McBride stifled the Orioles on three scratch hits but needed relief after putting two on with none out in the ninth. Spring was tagged for John Powell's two-out single, chasing in the Baltimore run, then Duren struck out pinch hitter Gus Triandos.

Baldwin Star Won 1961 Tournament With 670 Score

Pat Culp, who held the singles record of 670 until it was broken this year by Barbara Korthas of Syracuse, will head another field of crack keglers this weekend as the New York State Women's Bowling tournament continues. Action is listed this week and next weekend before the 29th tourney becomes history.

Mrs. Culp, who hails from Baldwin, Long Island, slammed 267, 178 and 225 in winning the singles title with her 670 in 1961. She is also a former doubles champion, teaming with Marge Seaman to score 1189 in the 1958 championships. They entered the tourney as Class B bowlers that year and not only won the B title but the A as well.

The pair are slated to roll their doubles and singles on Sunday, 1 p. m. They will bowl with the Baldwin Modern I team on Saturday night, 7 p. m., at the Bowlero.

In Every Tournament

Another former champion expected to make a bid for the 1770 all-events title, now held by Mrs. Korthas, is Ruth Brisson of Syracuse. She holds a unique distinction of having participated in every state tournament and won a doubles title in 1935 with Frances Prolo and in 1938 with Martha Rimf. Mrs. Brisson will compete in the doubles this year with her daughter Ruth on Saturday on the 11 a. m. shift. They will roll in the team event Friday night at 9:30 with the A. A. Henninger squad.

Other top names this weekend are the doubles team of Lorraine Albeke and Marie Verrastro of Port Chester. They won the crown in 1960 with an 1173 score and are scheduled to bowl at 3 o'clock Sunday and in the team event with Wil-For-Ac Jewelers on Saturday at 9:30 p. m.

Anne Bush of Nassau County, the 1947 all-events champion, will roll doubles with Skip Oliver on Sunday at 3 and their team, Five Turtles, will shoot for the 2797 score, held by Pasquale's Restaurant of New York City, on the 9:30 squad Saturday night.

Jo San Filippo of Brooklyn, a single champion in 1955 with 641, will team with Gail Holm in the doubles and singles at 7 Saturday night and in the team event with Davoll Bowling Center at 11:30 Sunday morning.

There is no action listed in the doubles and singles on Friday of this week but the team event will get underway at 7 Friday night. There are full squads listed in both events on Saturday and Sunday.

Ex-Saugerties Star

Barry Wolven Has 4-0 Record For Rutgers Baseball Squad

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.—The big pitching surprise on the Rutgers baseball team this spring has been Barry Wolven, a slender sophomore from Saugerties.

Heading into the final game of the season, May 19, Rutgers enjoys a fine 14-3 mark. Wolven has been largely responsible for that mark, owning a personal record of 4-0 and boasting the best earned run average on the team—1.27.

Barry's victims have been Army, Colgate, Columbia and Penn. He's pitched 28 innings, went the route against Columbia, and has given only six runs, four of them earned. He's fanned 17 and walked only seven.

Wolven's development was surprising because he played no freshman baseball, having concentrated on his studies after an arduous basketball season. As a result, no one knew about the 6-1, 170-pounder, until he showed up for indoor pre-season work.

Indoors everyone looks fast, so coach Matt Bolger paved only casual attention to the likable righthander. But when he continued to throw hard and exhibit good control outdoors, and did well in exhibition games in South Carolina, Bolger began to count on him for steady work.

Beat Army

The faith Bolger placed in Wolven paid off. His first start was against Army. Although touched for seven hits in five innings, he left with a big lead and Rutgers went on to a 14-3 victory.

His next outing was against Colgate. He went eight innings before tiring, and was a 12-3 victor.

Through his first three appearances, Barry had been liberal with the base hits, but hard to score against.

Then, two days after beating Columbia, he was needed in relief against Penn and came up with his finest performance, a two-hit four inning stint during which Rutgers came from behind to win. Barry got the credit.

Needless to say, he's counted on as one of Rutger's top pitchers for 1963. Incidently, he's done well with the bat, too. He's had three hits in 10 chances, a .300 average, and has driven home two runs.

While at Saugerties, Wolven was a standout in basketball and baseball, being selected to the Freeman "All DCSL Basketball" team for two straight seasons.

Musial Ties Wagner Record; Is Happy But Not Overjoyed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Stan Musial can't get excited about tying Honus Wagner as the National League's leading hit producer of all time, but he figures he's at least struck a blow for modern youth.

"Some of us younger generation guys are showing we have just as good players as some of those old timers," he reflected after swatting a clean single Wednesday that was the 3430th hit of his 21-year big league career.

"Look at Williams, Wynn and Spahn, Feller and Dimaggio and Slaughter," he said. "These guys all played 20 years or close to it, and they had good averages or won 300 games or something else and were great."

The record-tying hit was a liner to right-center off Juan Marichal of San Francisco—a safety in the sixth inning off a low fast ball that Marichal wanted to keep away from the Musial power.

Musial was happy about the hit, but was no picture of joy as he reclined on a rubbing table. "I don't get much kick out of it as when we win," he explained. The Cardinals had lost 7-2.

En route to perhaps his best year since 1958, Musial, 41, said he's in better shape because he s eight or nine pounds lighter than in the last five years. He's a trim 180 pounds, only five more than he weighed in 1941.

But even with modern conditioning methods to counteract advancing age, Musial had to admit that "these last 400 sure have been tougher than the first 3,000."

Kuenn, Giants Are Sizzling; Stenhouse Wins for Senators

NL Leaders Get 7-2 Triumph Over St. Louis Cards

By MIKE RATHET

And that's the story of another victory for the sizzling San Francisco Giants, who continued their headlong rush over all opposition Wednesday by whipping the St. Louis Cardinals 7-2 for their 17th victory in the last 20 games.

While the Cards were dropping into fourth place with their ninth defeat in 12 games, Musial, 41, snapped an 0-for-15 slump with a single in the sixth inning for the elusive hit that tied him with Honus Wagner for the most hits in National League history—3,430.

The left-handed swinger had previously set two league career records this season—runs scored and games played—and now holds or shares 40 NL records and 13 major league marks.

Kuenn's key hit won it for the Giants. The former American League batting king upped his average to a league-leading .360 with the sinle that drove in Ed Bailey with the tie-breakin run in the seventh.

Orlando Cepeda then hit a three-run homer, his 10th, as the Giants erupted for five runs to wrap it up. The triumph kept San Francisco's lead at four games over the second-place Los Angeles Dodgers, who won their seventh in eight games, 5-2 over Houston.

Cincinnati's defending champion Reds took over third place, 6½ games back, by nipping Philadelphia 6-5. Al McBean and Diomedes Olivo combined for a five-hitter in Pittsburgh's 6-0 shutout of Milwaukee and the New York Mets beat Chicago's Cubs 6-5 in 11 innings.

The Cards got single runs off Juan Marichal (7-2) in the second and sixth, but he slammed the door thereafter. The Giants tied it in the sixth when Cepeda singled and Felipe Alou homered, then came up with five in the seventh. Lindy McDaniel (1-3) was the loser.

The Dodgers stole five bases and converted four walks into runs to beat the Colts. Maury Wills scored one of two runs in the first on a wild pitch, then came across with the run that proved to be the winner in the third when he singled, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and scored on Wally Moon's single. Joe Moeller (2-3) won it with ninth inning relief help from Ed Roebuck. Dick Farrell (3-3) lost it.

Felix Mantilla's bases-loaded single in the 11th after a pair of walks and a single by winner Jay Hook (3-2) gave the Mets their second straight extra-inning triumph over the last-place Cubs. The New Yorkers had tied it in the eighth on Gil Hodges' inside-the-park homer. Glen Hobbie gave up Mantilla's hit, but the loss went to Don Elston (2-1).

Rookie Hurls A Four-Hitter Against Chisox

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

In the helter-skelter scramble of the American League race it is not so surprising that the hottest pitcher of the moment is a rookie with the club stuck in last place—Dave Stenhouse of the Washington Senators.

The right-hander, 28, who waited eight seasons before his first big league start came along 11 days ago, scored impressively again Wednesday night with a four-hitter that cooled off the Chicago White Sox 3-1.

Cleveland protected its league lead by overcoming Kansas City 10-9 on John Romano's two-run homer with two out in the bottom of the ninth. New York and Minnesota stayed a half game behind with victories, the Yankees rallying for a 9-8 decision over Boston and the Twins clubbing Detroit 8-4. Los Angeles stopped Baltimore 3-1 behind the neat pitching of Ken McBride, Jack Spring and Ryne Duren.

Stenhouse, a graduate engineer from the University of Rhode Island, was a minor leaguer for seven seasons as a farmhand for the Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds before the Reds dealt him to Washington this past winter.

The White Sox gained a tie in the first inning on Jim King's three-base error on Luis Aparicio's deep drive and a sacrifice fly. But the Senators pinned the loss on Early Wynn.

Mike Fornieles had two strikes on Mickey Mantle with two out in the Yankee ninth at Boston but the Bombers, trailing 7-6, staved off their fourth straight loss. Mantle finally walked, Yogi Berra singled, then Elston Howard and Bill Skowron put the Yanks ahead with singles off Dick Radatz. Clete Boyer followed with a double against the Boston rookie, making it 9-7.

The Red Sox came back in their half of the inning with one run before Marshall Bridges stopped the threat.

McBride stifled the Orioles on three scratch hits but needed relief after putting two on with none out in the ninth. Spring was tagged for John Powell's two-out single, chasing in the Baltimore run, then Duren struck out pinch hitter Gus Triandos.

Baldwin Star Won 1961 Tournament With 670 Score

Pat Culp, who held the singles record of 670 until it was broken this year by Barbara Korthas of Syracuse, will head another field of crack keglers this weekend as the New York State Women's Bowling tournament continues. Action is listed this week and next weekend before the 29th tourney becomes history.

Mrs. Culp, who hails from Baldwin, Long Island, slammed 267, 178 and 225 in winning the singles title with her 670 in 1961. She is also a former doubles champion, teaming with Marge Seaman to score 1189 in the 1958 championships. They entered the tourney as Class B bowlers that year and not only won the B title but the A as well.

The pair are slated to roll their doubles and singles on Sunday, 1 p. m. They will bowl with the Baldwin Modern I team on Saturday night, 7 p. m., at the Bowlero.

In Every Tournament

Another former champion expected to make a bid for the 1770 all-events title, now held by Mrs. Korthas, is Ruth Brisson of Syracuse. She holds a unique distinction of having participated in every state tournament and won a doubles title in 1935 with Frances Prolo and in 1938 with Martha Rimf. Mrs. Brisson will compete in the doubles this year with her daughter Ruth on Saturday on the 11 a. m. shift. They will roll in the team event Friday night at 9:30 with the A. A. Henninger squad.

Other top names this weekend are the doubles team of Lorraine Albeke and Marie Verrastro of Port Chester. They won the crown in 1960 with an 1173 score and are scheduled to bowl at 3 o'clock Sunday and in the team event with Wil-For-Ac Jewelers on Saturday at 9:30 p. m.

Anne Bush of Nassau County, the 1947 all-events champion, will roll doubles with Skip Oliver on Sunday at 3 and their team, Five Turtles, will shoot for the 2797 score, held by Pasquale's Restaurant of New York City, on the 9:30 squad Saturday night.

Jo San Filippo of Brooklyn, a single champion in 1955 with 641, will team with Gail Holm in the doubles and singles at 7 Saturday night and in the team event with Davoll Bowling Center at 11:30 Sunday morning.

There is no action listed in the doubles and singles on Friday of this week but the team event will get underway at 7 Friday night. There are full squads listed in both events on Saturday and Sunday.

Ex-Saugerties Star

Barry Wolven Has 4-0 Record For Rutgers Baseball Squad

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.—The big pitching surprise on the Rutgers baseball team this spring has been Barry Wolven, a slender sophomore from Saugerties.

Heading into the final game of the season, May 19, Rutgers enjoys a fine 14-3 mark. Wolven has been largely responsible for that mark, owning a personal record of 4-0 and boasting the best earned run average on the team—1.27.

Barry's victims have been Army, Colgate, Columbia and Penn. He's pitched 28 innings, went the route against Columbia, and has given only six runs, four of them earned. He's fanned 17 and walked only seven.

Wolven's development was surprising because he played no freshman baseball, having concentrated on his studies after an arduous basketball season. As a result, no one knew about the 6-1, 170-pounder, until he showed up for indoor pre-season work.

Indoors everyone looks fast, so coach Matt Bolger paved only casual attention to the likable righthander. But when he continued to throw hard and exhibit good control outdoors, and did well in exhibition games in South Carolina, Bolger began to count on him for steady work.

Beat Army

The faith Bolger placed in Wolven paid off. His first start was against Army. Although touched for seven hits in five innings, he left with a big lead and Rutgers went on to a 14-3 victory.

His next outing was against Colgate. He went eight innings before tiring, and was a 12-3 victor.

He finally managed a full nine innings in defeating Columbia, 7-2.

Through his first three appearances, Barry had been liberal with the base hits, but hard to score against.

Then, two days after beating Columbia, he was needed in relief against Penn and came up with his finest performance, a two-hit four inning stint during which Rutgers came from behind to win. Barry got the credit.

Needless to say, he's counted on as one of Rutger's top pitchers for 1963. Incidently, he's done well with the bat, too. He's had three hits in 10 chances, a .300 average, and has driven home two runs .

While at Saugerties, Wolven was a standout in basketball and baseball, being selected to the Freeman "All DCSL Basketball" team for two straight seasons.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Kingston's Hobie Armstrong is continuing fine progress as ace hop, step and jump man for Harvard's trackmen.

In last Saturday's Heptagonal meet, the 5-11, 190 pounder flew 47 feet 6½ inches to place second. Armstrong missed the blue ribbon by only an inch and a half. It was the third time that Armstrong had ever competed in this event.

Armstrong will make his last dual-meet appearance of the year against Yale on May 19 at Harvard's Soldiers Field.

Sunrise County Rated a Threat In Preakness

By JOHN CHANDLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — The sun actually hasn't set on Sunrise County.

The dipsy-do colt who was disqualified in both the Flamingo and the Wood Memorial for interference, still is an important factor in the $150,000-added Preakness Saturday at old Pimlico.

Trainer Tommy Kelly, a Baltimore boy, will attest to this.

Two weeks ago Sunrise County was one of the top contenders for the Kentucky Derby. When Sir Gaylord bowed out with an injury the day before the Derby, Ridan became the favorite at $1.10 to $1, and Sunrise County was next at $2.80 to $1. Decidedly, of course, won, with Ridan third, and Sunrise County fifth.

Eleven 3-year-olds are expected to start in the 86th Preakness, with George A. Pope Jr.'s Decidedly, Mrs. Moody Jolley's Ridan, and George D. Widener's Jaipur the three big colts to reckon with.

Jaipur was held out of the Derby, pointing for the Preakness and then the final in the Triple Crown, the Belmont June 9.

"This is going to be the best race yet this season for 3-year-olds," said Kelly, a 43-year-old trainer who just missed in the Preakness last year with Globemaster.

Kelly admits the Preakness will be tough to crack for any horse, let alone Sunrise County, owned by Townsend B. Martin of Locust, N.J.

"I said it a year ago, and that's still true. There's no other race I'd rather win than this one."

Sunrise County Rated a Threat In Preakness

By JOHN CHANDLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — The sun actually hasn't set on Sunrise County.

The dipsy-do colt who was disqualified in both the Flamingo and the Wood Memorial for interference, still is an important factor in the $150,000-added Preakness Saturday at old Pimlico.

Trainer Tommy Kelly, a Baltimore boy, will attest to this.

Two weeks ago Sunrise County was one of the top contenders for the Kentucky Derby. When Sir Gaylord bowed out with an injury the day before the Derby, Ridan became the favorite at $1.10 to $1, and Sunrise County was next at $2.80 to $1. Decidedly, of course, won, with Ridan third, and Sunrise County fifth.

Eleven 3-year-olds are expected to start in the 86th Preakness, with George A. Pope Jr.'s Decidedly, Mrs. Moody Jolley's Ridan, and George D. Widener's Jaipur the three big colts to reckon with.

Jaipur was held out of the Derby, pointing for the Preakness and then the final in the Triple Crown, the Belmont June 9.

"This is going to be the best race yet this season for 3-year-olds," said Kelly, a 43-year-old trainer who just missed in the Preakness last year with Globemaster.

Kelly admits the Preakness will be tough to crack for any horse, let alone Sunrise County, owned by Townsend B. Martin of Locust, N.J.

"I said it a year ago, and that's still true. There's no other race I'd rather win than this one."

Ties With Tito Improve: Nik

VARNA, Bulgaria (AP)—Premier Khrushchev says the Soviet Union's longstrained relations with Communist Yugoslavia are once again good.

"Our relations with Yugoslavia were rather strained previously," Khrushchev declared Wednesday, "but now I can say with satisfaction that our relations are normal and I would even say good."

Speaking before a crowd of 30,000 Bulgarians in the main square of Varna, a Black Sea resort city, Khrushchev declared that the Soviet Union and Yugoslavia are in harmony on many questions and commercial ties between the two countries are improving continuously.

"We are also ready to develop scientific and cultural relations with Yugoslavia in the interests of strengthening peace," he said.

Tito's independent brand of communism caused the first split in Communist ranks after World War II, and the United States has sought to encourage Tito's independent course with large-scale economic and military aid.

Khrushchev also held out the olive branch to another of Bulgaria's neighbors, Western-allied Turkey.

The Soviet Union looks forward to the time when the Black Sea will become "a sea of peace," Khrushchev said.

"Isn't it time for the ruling circles in Turkey to understand that military preparations are useless? It is time to transform launching sites into peaceful corners."

Talking with Western Newsmen, Khrushchev confirmed that the Soviet Union is preparing a new series of nuclear tests of its own.

"We are forced to renew our tests because, despite our appeals, the Americans did not refrain from renewing theirs," he said.

Strike Vote Set May 26 by UAW At Four Plants

NEW YORK (AP)—The United Auto Workers has set a May 26 strike date at plants of the National Lead Company's Doehler-Jarvis Division in Batavia, N.Y.; Pottstown, Pa.; Toledo, Ohio, and Grand Rapids, Mich.

A union spokesman made the announcement Tuesday after a breakdown in contract negotiations here. He said the company's last proposals would be submitted to 2,800 UAW members at the four plants for a vote May 25, although the workers had voted several weeks ago to strike if no agreement was reached.

If the company's proposals are rejected in the May 25 vote, the spokesman said, the strike will start at 9 a.m. the following day.

Bargaining has been going on here since March 3. A 3-year contract expired April 1 and was extended by mutual consent.

Little Bit of Everything

Even Weather Goes On U.S.-Wide Binge

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

May went on a weather binge today, slapping parts of the country with a wild assortment that included midsummer heat, snow and heavy rain, wind and hail storms.

4-8 Inch Rainfall

Strong winds, heavy rain and hail swept areas in Texas and the Southwest. Torrential rain totaling up to five inches send a muddy torrent racing down a normally dry creek bed near Clarendon, Tex., and swept two persons from a pickup truck. One drowned and the other was missing.

Rainfall estimated at 4 to 8 inches deluged farm country between Plainview and Hale Center, Tex.

A tenant farmer and three children suffered minor injuries when winds of 75 miles per hour toppled a small farm house near Lubbock, Tex. Twenty farms in the area were reported stripped of cotton crops by moth-ball size hail.

In the Southeast, three persons were injured as winds up to 90 m.p.h. lashed Mobile, Ala., during a rainstorm. Thundershowers and strong winds were reported in other parts of Alabama and south Georgia.

Snow in West

In the West, seven inches of wet snow fell in Reno and Sparks, Nev. Snow also was reported in mountain areas of New Mexico and Northern California.

In the Midwest heat belt, both Chicago and Detroit reported record high temperatures for the third straight day. Chicago's maximum was 94 while Detroit's 92 topped the previous high for May 16 by four degrees. Other record marks for the date included 90 in Syracuse, N.Y.

Fairly cool weather continued in much of the West with temperatures during the night and early morning in the 40-50 degree range. New England also was out of the hot weather belt.

Millerton Boy Is Drowning Victim

A nine-year-old Millerton non-swimmer was drowned Tuesday afternoon on Kimball's Pond, Millerton, when an abandoned boat which he and a companion had raised was swamped 50 feet from shore. Ronald Farnham, son of Webster and Lillian Farnham, and Robert Moore, 11, raised a sunken rowboat and set out with a broken oar and a piece of wood to paddle about the seven-acre lake. The boat capsized. Moore swam to shore but Farnham, who had been standing in the boat, was unable to make shore.

The body was recovered by deputy sheriffs after a two-hour dragging operation at the pond. It was located in five to six feet of water.

William Coons, a service station operator across the pond, saw the accident but was unable to reach the scene to give assistance. A verdict of accidental drowning was given by Dutchess County Assistant Medical Examiner Thompson of Rhinebeck.

Ad Corrections

The anniversary celebration of the United Cut Rate Pharmacy at 329 Wall Street will feature the appearance of Mary Margaret McBride Friday, May 18, at 2 p. m. The store also is offering 30 Triple S Blue Stamp with every purchase of Barton's candy. The amount of stamps did not appear in the advertisement.

Test Ionosphere

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. and Japanese scientists sent two rockets 76 and 80 miles into space Wednesday to test the temperature and density of the ionosphere. The two firings from Wallops Island, Va., completed a series of three shots begun April 26, and a U.S. space official said preliminary data indicates all three were successful.

The rose is the national emblem of England and Iran.

Ties With Tito Improve: Nik

"Our relations with Yugoslavia were rather strained previously," Khrushchev declared Wednesday, "but now I can say with satisfaction that our relations are normal and I would even say good."

Speaking before a crowd of 30,000 Bulgarians in the main square of Varna, a Black Sea resort city, Khrushchev declared that the Soviet Union and Yugoslavia are in harmony on many questions and commercial ties between the two countries are improving continuously.

"We are also ready to develop scientific and cultural relations with Yugoslavia in the interests of strengthening peace," he said.

Tito's independent brand of communism caused the first split in Communist ranks after World War II, and the United States has sought to encourage Tito's independent course with large-scale economic and military aid.

Khrushchev also held out the olive branch to another of Bulgaria's neighbors, Western-allied Turkey.

The Soviet Union looks forward to the time when the Black Sea will become "a sea of peace," Khrushchev said.

"Isn't it time for the ruling circles in Turkey to understand that military preparations are useless? It is time to transform launching sites into peaceful corners."

Talking with Western Newsmen, Khrushchev confirmed that the Soviet Union is preparing a new series of nuclear tests of its own.

"We are forced to renew our tests because, despite our appeals, the Americans did not refrain from renewing theirs," he said.

Strike Vote Set May 26 by UAW At Four Plants

NEW YORK (AP)—The United Auto Workers has set a May 26 strike date at plants of the National Lead Company's Doehler-Jarvis Division in Batavia, N.Y.; Pottstown, Pa.; Toledo, Ohio, and Grand Rapids, Mich.

A union spokesman made the announcement Tuesday after a breakdown in contract negotiations here. He said the company's last proposals would be submitted to 2,800 UAW members at the four plants for a vote May 25, although the workers had voted several weeks ago to strike if no agreement was reached.

If the company's proposals are rejected in the May 25 vote, the spokesman said, the strike will start at 9 a.m. the following day.

Bargaining has been going on here since March 3. A 3-year contract expired April 1 and was extended by mutual consent.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

May went on a weather binge today, slapping parts of the country with a wild assortment that included midsummer heat, snow and heavy rain, wind and hail storms.

4-8 Inch Rainfall

Strong winds, heavy rain and hail swept areas in Texas and the Southwest. Torrential rain totaling up to five inches send a muddy torrent racing down a normally dry creek bed near Clarendon, Tex., and swept two persons from a pickup truck. One drowned and the other was missing.

A tenant farmer and three children suffered minor injuries when winds of 75 miles per hour toppled a small farm house near Lubbock, Tex. Twenty farms in the area were reported stripped of cotton crops by moth-ball size hail.

In the Southeast, three persons were injured as winds up to 90 m.p.h. lashed Mobile, Ala., during a rainstorm. Thundershowers and strong winds were reported in other parts of Alabama and south Georgia.

Snow in West

In the West, seven inches of wet snow fell in Reno and Sparks, Nev. Snow also was reported in mountain areas of New Mexico and Northern California.

In the Midwest heat belt, both Chicago and Detroit reported record high temperatures for the third straight day. Chicago's maximum was 94 while Detroit's 92 topped the previous high for May 16 by four degrees. Other record marks for the date included 90 in Syracuse, N.Y.

Fairly cool weather continued in much of the West with temperatures during the night and early morning in the 40-50 degree range. New England also was out of the hot weather belt.

Millerton Boy Is Drowning Victim

A nine-year-old Millerton nonswimmer was drowned Tuesday afternoon on Kimball's Pond, Millerton, when an abandoned boat which he and a companion had raised was swamped 50 feet from shore. Ronald Farnham, son of Webster and Lillian Farnham, and Robert Moore, 11, raised a sunken rowboat and set out with a broken oar and a piece of wood to paddle about the seven-acre lake. The boat capsized. Moore swam to shore but Farnham, who had been standing in the boat, was unable to make shore.

The body was recovered by deputy sheriffs after a two-hour dragging operation at the pond. It was located in five to six feet of water.

William Coons, a service station operator across the pond, saw the accident but was unable to reach the scene to give assistance. A verdict of accidental drowning was given by Dutchess County Assistant Medical Examiner Thompson of Rhinebeck.

The anniversary celebration of the United Cut Rate Pharmacy at 329 Wall Street will feature the appearance of Mary Margaret McBride Friday, May 18, at 2 p. m. The store also is offering 30 Triple S Blue Stamp with every purchase of Barton's candy. The amount of stamps did not appear in the advertisement.

Test Ionosphere

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. and Japanese scientists sent two rockets 76 and 80 miles into space Wednesday to test the temperature and density of the ionosphere. The two firings from Wallops Island, Va., completed a series of three shots begun April 26, and a U.S. space official said preliminary data indicates all three were successful.

The rose is the national emblem of England and Iran.
